The bishop of Durham, thoughtful British prelate, is very much discouraged about us poor things in the United States. He says we are the wealthiest and most criminal nation, even worse than England.

It distresses him especially to discover that suicide is common "among wealthy, highly educated persons."

He is mistaken there, the wealthiest do commit suicide, occasionally, but not the highly educated.

You may have a Rothschild killing himself in Vienna, worrying about some girl. But youu don't find John D. Rockefeller or Henry Ford committing suicide. They are interested in their work.

Men "highly educated" in the wrong sense of the word, that is, merely stuffed with education that they don't use, commit suicide sometimes. Money not used and education not used may lead to suicide. A useless life, neglecting to use power possessed, is a discouraging, desperate thing.

The veneral bishop says our trouble in America is that we "neglect the moral factor in human life." There is something to that.

But, then, men have always neglected the moral factor in life. And in the past they neglected it a good deal more than they do now.

For instance, even in good old Bible days there was a lack of the moral factor here and there.

In the twenty-first chapter of Exodus, concerning slaves, various things are written that would seem strange in our day. In those ancient times it was all right to have slaves, keep them indefinitely, and do about as you chose with them, as long as they were not Hebrew slaves, and therefore members of the Lord's chosen people. It says, for instance, these interesting verses:

"If thou buy an Hebrew servant, six years he shall serve; and in the seventh he shall go out free for nothing.

"If he came in by himself, he shall go out by himself; if he were married, then his wife shall go out with him.

"If his master have given him a wife, and she have borne him sons or daughters, the wife and her children shall be her master's, and he shall go out by himself.

"And if the servant shall plainly say, I love my master, my wife, and my children; I will not go out free;

"Then his master shall bring him unto the judges; he shall also bring him to the door, or unto the door post; and his master shall bore his ear through with an aul; and he shall serve him forever."

How does that strike you?

We are not so very moral now, but suppose a man owned a slave, and the law compelled him to set the slave

CHURCH RECTOR ROTARY GUEST

American citizenship is being menaced by powers from the outside as well as powers from the inside, Rev. T. G. C. McCalla, acting rector of the St. Stephen's Episcopal church, told 60 Rotarians and their friends at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Y. M. C. A. today.

Gary Wills, former member of the Wheeling Rotary club, who came here recently to become superintendent of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company, was introduced as a new member.

Charles Boyce, chairman of the boys' work committee, discussed plans for a book reading contest which the club will conduct among school children this year.

President F. L. Wells presided. The chorus singing was led by Attorney Blaine Cochran. W. H. Cordwin, of the Frank Crook company, introduced Rev. McCalla, who has assumed charge of the St. Stephen's church during the illness of Rev. Lionel C. Difford. His subject was "American Citizenship."

In part he said:

"American citizenship today is being weighed in a balance. The real citizen is the man behind.

"We are voting today on a three-mill levy for the schools. Have you men investigated the need for a three-mill levy? I don't mean to say that the levy isn't needed, but have you investigated as to its need? KEEP WATCH ON SCHOOL PUPILS

Parties and Club Meetings Attended by Quarantined Persons Blamed For Spread of Disease.

Steps to check the spread of the scarlet fever outbreak in Newell, which, it is claimed, has developed nearly 50 cases, will be taken at a mass meeting which will be held in the Newell district school at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The session has been called by the county health board. Dr. B. J. Ahouse, county health commissioner, and Miss Caroline Brown, county health nurse, both of New Cumberland; Dr. V. E. McEldowney, Newell; Dr. H. A. Turk, this city, and Dr. J. L. Pyle, of Chester. They will discuss ways and means of preventing the disease.

According to Superintendent of means of prev nting the disease. scarlet fever now exist in Newell, while the quarantine has been lifted upon almost equal number of cases. There have been no deaths since the outbreak developed about a month ago.

Oppose Closing Schools.

County health authorities, who have been assisted by Drs. McEldowney and Turk in combating the disease, believe that it has been checked. It is declared that most of the cases can be traced to parties and club meetings attended by persons who have broken quarantine.

Miss Brown will visit Newell tomorrow and make an examination of school pupils in an effort to discover new cases. Every child who is found to be suffering from the slightest rash or other symptom will be sent home.

Public sentiment is said to oppose the closing of the schools, as children would only congregate on the streets.

As fast as precinct judges report to the election supervisors, the figures will be announced at the Washington street office of the East Liverpool Publishing company.

Reports will be given on all contests as well as the tabulation of the vote on special issues.

Inasmuch as eight ballots are to be counted, it is not improbable that the returns will be late.

MIDLAND ROAD TO BE CLOSED AT NOON THURSDAY

Traffic Will be Barred Until Winter Weather.

ENGINEER ACTS

Rinehart Brothers Rush Work in Smiths Ferry.

The Midland-East Liverpool road, west of Midland, will be closed to traffic after the noon hour Thursday, according to an announcement from the Beaver office of the Pennsylvania state highway department, today.

J. L. Herber, Pittsburgh, district engineer for the state highway department, visited the Midland-East Liverpool road job yesterday and at the request of Rinehart Brothers, local contractors in charge of the work, agreed to close the road until winter sets in.

Because of bad weather during October, the contractors have been unable to work on the road for almost five weeks. The road bed is almost a sea of mud and, because of the traffic over the highway, contractors are unable to drain it or prepare it for the surfacing operation. If there is no further rainfall, pouring of concrete will be started probably next Monday. The road will be barricaded Thursday morning, halting all traffic.

James Rinehart, a member of the contracting firm, announced today that the company will complete that part of the road from the upper end of Smiths Ferry to that point where the highway leaves the street car line, a distance of about 3,000 feet, in 10 working days. About 500 feet of the job has already been laid, the remaining stretch being about 2,500 feet.

That part of the highway where the road branches away from the street car tracks to Midland, another 3,000

ELECTORS OF 13 STATES GO TO POLLS TO ELECT GOVERNORS AND MAYORS

Political Railbirds of Capital Watch Klan and Wet and Dry Issues in Today's Balloting.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Some millions of American voters are marching to the polls today in thirteen states to elect governors, mayors, legislators, municipal and county officers, and pass upon a scattered assortment of important local amendments.

It is the quietest off-year election the country has witnessed in years.

Save for the governorship contests in New Jersey and Virginia, and the mayoralty fights in some of the larger cities like New York, Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis and Buffalo, there is little of the usual election day flavor in today's battle of the ballots.

Nevertheless, the leaders of all parties will view the results with analytical eyes, for today's decisions will reveal, to some extent at least, the trend of popular political opinion. Straws show which way the wind blows. And the highly important congressional elections are just around the corner. Campaigning, in many instances, already has begun for this biennial show.

Eyes On Indiana.

Indiana, for example, may furnish a revealing trend of electorial thought. Every city of size in the state, 101 to be exact, is electing a mayor today. While the municipal fights usually are independent of party, nevertheless in many cases these fights are hooked up more or less directly with district and state politics.

The political railbirds of the capital are chiefly interested in two issues that figure in today's balloting, and which, to a greater or lesser extent, may figure in the congressional elections of next year.

One of these is the Ku Klux Klan. This issue, with its accompaniment of racial and religious bitterness, has been injected prominently into the mayoralty campaigns of Detroit, Indianapolis and Buffalo. In these cities and many smaller ones, the Klan is out in the open with its endorsements and red fire. The results will be scrutinized with interest by Republican and Democratic leaders alike, for the Democrats have painful memories of this issue at Madison Square Garden, and the Republicans in some states are closely identified with the hooded order.

Interest in New Jersey Fight

Another issue, magnified by its isolation in today's balloting, is found in the Wet-and-Dry fight in New Jersey. A. Harry Moore, Democratic candidate for Governor, has openly declared for modification of the Volstead act. His Republican opponent, Arthur Whitney is endorsed by the Anti-Saloon league.

Peculiar interest attaches to the New Jersey contest because of the renewed agitation for modification, and reports, never confirmed but still persistent, that some of the biggest industrial leaders of the country will come out for modification in 1926 if the reorganized enforcement unit does not make a better stab at the enforcing the law.

Only two congressional seats are to be filled in today's election, one in New Jersey and one in Kentucky, both vacancies caused by death. The Republicans control the house by

Impression Prevails That Democrats Will Win by Large Majority in Mayoralty Fight.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The voters of New York city went to the polls today to elect a new mayor.

Early voting was light. The campaign had established a record for apathy on the part of the voting public. A light rain was falling when the polls opened at 6 o'clock this morning. They will close at 6 p. m. The result of the election is expected to be known within an hour after the polls close.

Betting greatly favored James J. Walker, the Democratic candidate, to win over Frank D. Waterman, his Republican opponent. The betting odds last night closed at 15 to 1 that Walker would win—the highest ever offered on a New York mayoralty candidate.

Both Walker and Waterman campaigned until a late hour. Each delivered a final appeal to the voters on the radio.

The general impression prevailed this morning that the Democrats will win by a large plurality. Both sides, however, claimed victory. Tammany predicted Walker would canter in by a majority of more than 300,000, while Republican leaders insisted Waterman would win by 100,000.

Despite the light voting this morning, it was expected a fairly large vote will be polled. A vote of about 1,110,000 is anticipated. The total registration was 1,240,000 in round numbers. Aside from other candidates besides mayor being voted upon in the municipal contests, there are four constitutional amendments to be decided upon.

The vote during the morning hours was extremely light. All sections of the city reported inactivity at the polling boths. Up to 10 o'clock the average vote at the various polling places was less than half of what was in the last mayoralty fight.

Voting was desultory in Senator Walker's voting place, while in the wealthy Park avenue section, home of Waterman, citizens showed an especial antipathy towards early voting.

It was expected, however, that the vote would increase as the day advanced.

ENGINEER ACTS

Rinehart Brothers Rush Work in Smiths Ferry.

The Midland-East Liverpool road, west of Midland, will be closed to traffic after the noon hour Thursday, according to an announcement from the Beaver office of the Pennsylvania state highway department, today.

J. L. Herber, Pittsburgh, district engineer for the state highway department, visited the Midland-East Liverpool road job yesterday and at the request of Rinehart Brothers, local contractors in charge of the work, agreed to close the road until winter sets in.

Because of bad weather during October, the contractors have been unable to work on the road for almost five weeks. James Rinehart, a member of the contracting firm, announced today that the company will complete that part of the road from the upper end of Smiths Ferry to that point where the highway leaves the street car line, a distance of about 3,000 feet, in 10 working days. About 500 feet of the job has already been laid, the remaining stretch being about 2,500 feet.

George Dawson and Charles McNicol are Entered in Races for Ward Council Places, While it is Said J. H. Brookes Will Receive Complimentary Votes for School Board Place.

With the municipal offices, school levy and road bond issue as the paramount questions, voting in East Liverpool during the early morning hours today was heavy, according to figures from a majority of the 21 precincts.

At 11:30 o'clock an estimated total of 1,400 to 1,500 votes had been cast here. Nearly one-half of the ballots in the boxes at that hour were marked by women, reports indicated.

Fourteen of the 21 polling places showed a total poll of 881, an average of about 68 per precinct. This ratio maintained throughout the city would mean 1,428 ballots were in the boxes.

The heaviest vote was reported in the Second ward. At Precinct B, known as the Thompson Hill district, 115 votes had been cast while Precinct C, in the O. J. Herrington garage, Minerva street, reported 106 ballots.

ELECTORS OF 13 STATES GO TO POLLS TO ELECT GOVERNORS AND MAYORS

Political Railbirds of Capital Watch Klan and Wet and Dry Issues in Today's Balloting.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Some millions of American voters are marching to the polls today in thirteen states to elect governors, mayors, legislators, municipal and county officers, and pass upon a scattered assortment of important local amendments.

It is the quietest off-year election the country has witnessed in years.

Save for the governorship contests in New Jersey and Virginia, and the mayoralty fights in some of the larger cities like New York, Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis and Buffalo, there is little of the usual election day flavor in today's battle of the ballots.

Nevertheless, the leaders of all parties will view the results with analytical eyes, for today's decisions will reveal, to some extent at least, the trend of popular political opinion. Straws show which way the wind blows. And the highly important congressional elections are just around the corner. Campaigning, in many instances, already has begun for this biennial show.

Eyes On Indiana.

Indiana, for example, may furnish a revealing trend of electorial thought. Every city of size in the state, 101 to be exact, is electing a mayor today. While the municipal fights usually are independent of party, nevertheless in many cases these fights are hooked up more or less directly with district and state politics.

The political railbirds of the capital are chiefly interested in two issues that figure in today's balloting, and which, to a greater or lesser extent, may figure in the congressional elections of next year.

One of these is the Ku Klux Klan. This issue, with its accompaniment of racial and religious bitterness, has been injected prominently into the mayoralty campaigns of Detroit, Indianapolis and Buffalo. In these cities and many smaller ones, the Klan is out in the open with its endorsements and red fire. The results will be scrutinized with interest by Republican and Democratic leaders alike, for the Democrats have painful memories of this issue at Madison Square Garden, and the Republicans in some states are closely identified with the hooded order.

Interest In New Jersey Fight

Another issue, magnified by its isolation in today's balloting, is found in the Wet-and-Dry fight in New Jersey. A. Harry Moore, Democratic candidate for Governor, has openly declared for modification of the Volstead act. His Republican opponent, Arthur Whitney is endorsed by the Anti-Saloon league.

Peculiar interest attaches to the New Jersey contest because of the renewed agitation for modification, and reports, never confirmed but still persistent, that some of the biggest industrial leaders of the country will come out for modification in 1928 if the reorganized enforcement unit does not make a better stab at the enforcing the law.

Only two congressional seats are to be filled in today's election, one in New Jersey and one in Kentucky, both vacancies caused by death. The Republicans control the house by

Impression Prevails That Democrats Will Win by Large Majority in Mayoralty Fight.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The voters of New York city went to the polls today to elect a new mayor.

Early voting was light. The campaign had established a record for apathy on the part of the voting public. A light rain was falling when the polls opened at 6 o'clock this morning. They will close at 6 p. m. The result of the election is expected to be known within an hour after the polls close.

Betting greatly favored James J. Walker, the Democratic candidate, to win over Frank D. Waterman, his Republican opponent. The betting odds last night closed at 15 to 1 that Walker would win—the highest ever offered on a New York mayoralty candidate.

Both Walker and Waterman campaigned until a late hour. Each delivered a final appeal to the voters on the radio.

The general impression prevailed this morning that the Democrats will win by a large plurality. Both sides, however, claimed victory. Tammany predicted Walker would canter in by a majority of more than 300,000, while Republican leaders insisted Waterman would win by 100,000.

Despite the light voting this morning, it was expected a fairly large vote will be polled. A vote of about 1,110,000 is anticipated. The total registration was 1,240 000 in round numbers. Aside from other candidates besides mayor being voted upon in the municipal contests, there are four constitutional amendments to be decided upon.

The vote during the morning hours was extremely light. All sections of the city reported inactivity at the polling boths. Up to 10 o'clock the average vote at the various polling places was less than half of what was in the last mayoralty fight.

Voting was desultory in Senator Walker's voting place, while in the wealthy Park avenue section, home of Waterman, citizens showed an especial antipathy towards early voting.

It was expected, however, that the vote would increase as the day advanced.

"Son of His Father," Paramount Picture At Ceramic Theatre

The Paramount picture, "A Son of His Father," produced by Victor Fleming from Harold Bell Wright's latest "best seller," is the photo play at the Ceramic theatre tonight. It is claimed to be the finest "Western" that has ever reached the screen. To back up this big claim Paramount mentions:

First—the author, Harold Bell Wright. Wright's tales of the west have gone into more homes than those of any other writer. During the last eight years his books have been read by more than $56,000,000 people in the United States alone.

Second—the director, Victor Fleming, who made "Adventure" and "The Devil's Cargo." He also made "To the Last Man," the first Zane Grey-Paramount production. "The Call of the Canyon," another Zane Grey special, and "Empty Hands," are also on his long list of successes.

Then—the cast, Bessie Love, Warner Baxter and Raymond Hatton are featured in the leading roles. Other popular players are Charles Stevens, Walter McGrail, Carl Stockdale, Billy Eugene and James Farley.

In order to have "A Son of His Father" historically and geographically correct, Fleming took his company of two hundred to a location seventy miles from Tuscon, Arizona, a beautiful stretch of wild country, within walking distance of the Mexican border.

All this was in actual keeping with the story. To make the production even more perfect, men and women were engaged right "on the spot" to play the minor roles. It is rather interesting to think that some of these men once might have engaged in the actual gorilla-warfare which, after the loss of many lives, finally ridded the state of cattle smugglers.

Following the failue of a Swedish bank recently it was found that the directors had to take $10,000,000 loss in industrial stocks held by the institution.

Chicago Newspaper Critics Say 'Show-Off' Is Big Hit

Great American Comedy Will be Attraction at Ceramic Theatre, Thursday, Nov. 12.

Here is what the Chicago newspaper critics say about "The Show-Off," the great American comedy which comes to the Ceramic theater Thursday, November 12:

"George Kelly's 'Show-Off' is a trim, a shapely and a reasonable comedy. It is authentic stuff. It is good. It is a transcript of life, and I beg of you to see 'The Show-Off'."—Frederick Donaghey, Tribune.

"A real play was a real hit at Cohan's Grand — a very real play named 'The Show-Off.' I love it. It catches me in the funnybone and in the heart. You'll be surprised how many times you laugh during a play so honest and a performance so square. The whole cast is a roll of honor."—Ashton Stevens, Herald and Examiner.

"'The Show-Off' received the most enthusiastic ovation seen in a Chicago theater in many moons and it deserved it. Everyone was gladly swept along in a whirlwind of laughter. It recalled the triumphs of immortals long dead. The acting is superb."—C. J. Bulliet, Evening Post.

"Last night's audience laughed until it cried; in fact, more laughter has not been heard in a theater all season, not even in the funniest farces. The acting is all the play demands—excellent, everywhere."—Paul Martin, Journal of Commerce.

"A play of quality, 'The Show-Off' refreshed Chicago theatergoers. The night was noisy with prolonged demonstrations of approval and the demand for admission was greater than the supply of tickets."—O. L. Hall, Daily Journal.

"The promoters were right in inviting all Chicago to sign on the dotted line with 'The Show-Off.' The play's a good laugh. The audience hated to leave and the curtain bobbed up and down at the end of the play nearly a dozen times."—F. McQuigg, Evening American.

"'The Show-Off' is one play America can be proud of no matter where it goes, and we can laugh our Yankee heads off over its clear cut vitality and truth. And what's more, we can stand up and cheer and applaud after its last climax just as we did last night at Cohan's Grand."—Amy Leslie, Daily News.

DISTURBANCE IN A LOCAL THEATRE.

The patrons of a local show house were very much disturbed and annoyed by the continuous coughing of a person in the audience. Don't be a nuisance because you have a cough or cold. A few doses of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND taken promptly will bring speedy relief from coughs, colds and hoarseness. Mrs. W. T. Clary, White Plains, Va., writes: "We have used FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND for colds and bad coughs with splendid results." Sold everywhere.

DENTAL STATISTICS tell this grim story: four people out of every five are destined, through neglect, to contract pyorrhea after they pass the age of forty. Thousands younger also suffer.

Pyorrhea is the dread disease of the gums which is responsible often for loss of teeth, rheumatism, neuritis and other dangerous disorders.

It starts with tender bleeding gums. Pockets form below the teeth and poisons spread relentlessly through the body. If you have pyorrhea or any of its symptoms see your dentist at once and start brushing your teeth with Forhan's for the Gums.

To safeguard yourself against pyorrhea make Forhan's your regular dentifrice. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., and contains his pyorrhea liquid which has been used by dentists the last 15 years in the treatment of pyorrhea. If used regularly and used in time it will prevent pyorrhea or check its course. Don't give this insidious disease a chance to start. Start using Forhan's this very day. All druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Railroad President Finds Walking to Be a Tonic

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.

NOT long ago I attended an all day function which attracted the presidents of thirty-one great railroads. I had a natural curiosity to meet these men, many of whom I had never seen but whose names had been familiar for years.

It was interesting to find that a number of them read these health articles. In little groups we talked about many things and frequently about health. From time to time I shall tell you the methods used by different ones of these famous men to maintain physical vigor.

Towards the end of the day, one railroad president gave me his daily program. It is pretty strenuous and could not be followed by another man except he possessed the same fundamentally strong body. But with equal physical equipment and leisure to do the things, there could be no more desirable way of maintaining figure and vigor.

After an early breakfast the president rides horseback. He does not go out before daylight to ride on an empty stomach. He takes the sensible view that there is more pleasure and more good in his way.

After the ride the office work is done with cheerfulness and alacrity. I can tell by looking at him that nobody loafs in his office, and surely the man himself doesn't.

At the end of office hours what do you suppose this railroad president does? He walks home every day, rain or shine—six miles!

Recently a newspaper man dropped in for an interview. Instead of staying to give it, as most of us weak mortals would do, the railroader said: "Sorry, it's too late; I'm going home." When he saw the look of disappointment on the face of the reporter he said: "If you care to walk along with me I'll give you the interview." At the end of three miles the reporter was worn out, but the president kept on with his walk and the interview for the full distance.

Of course, this man does not play golf. He doesn't need to; his daily programme makes it unnecessary.

The most valuable idea I gained from our talk was the rule followed in case of a trip of several days on the railroad. If you have had occasion, as I have had many times, to spend three or four nights on a sleeper, you know how worn out you become.

This president does not go to the office the day after his return. He stays at home, walks in the fields and woods, giving himself a whole day of fresh air and freedom from the strain and worries of business.

You may not do all this strenuous man does, but you can do a part of each of the things. If you will, you can be as vigorous and young looking as he is. I looked him up in "Who's Who." It is hard to believe the record. This successful railroad president is older by at least twelve years than his face and carriage indicate.

Extending The National Debt

If the time allowed for retirement of the American public debt were extended to 50 years, as some urge, it would be possible to cut federal taxes $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 a year instead of about half that much.

It is a tempting thought. Taxpayers could use the saved money. It sounds fair, too, to argue that American war debtors (and that is what all of us are) should have as much time for payment as our foreign war debtors. Why should we have to pay in a few years when foreigners have 62 years for it?

Yet there are considerations on the other side. We have the money to pay, and can do so far better than our foreign debtors. By paying as soon as we can, thereby following good business methods, we shall save a lot of interest. Also we shall avoid saddling up on the next generation the burden of a war for which this generation was responsible.

The Boom In Local Pride

Whether the Florida boom was the forerunner of many booms or whether it was merely the most prominent feature of a widespread movement for local boosting and development is hard to say. At any rate there is today hardly a community of any energy at all that is not taking its own possibilities and future very seriously. From one section in the south comes three striking statements.

St. Tammany, La., announces, "We have possibilities or potential opportunities even greater than Florida had. Climate, soil, water, transportation, fruit growing, trucking, fishing, hunting, inland waterways and lake frontage. Florida is a wonderful state and has done wonderful things. But we wish to call attention to the fact that Louisiana can develop just as rapidly as Florida has if her people will go in for publicity and do the big things that should be done."

From Natchez, Miss., comes this forceful statement: "We have a very substantial and meaningful message for the world. This city is the heart of a country of opportunities. No other in this whole section of the south is more happily circumstanced. We can do more different kinds of useful things in this city and section, and can prosecute these activities for a longer period during the year, than the people of any other city and section in the whole breadth of this republic."

From Shreveport, La., comes this: "This is the 'Pep City of America.' In days of sunshine and of tempest Shreveport traditionally has exhibited the 'pep' required by the occasion. It is a city of big deeds. It is a city in which the people know how to work together. And in their co-operation there always is 'pep'."

North, south, east and west, similar communities are discovering themselves and awakening to their opportunities and bestirring themselves to grasp them. The enthusiasm may not last to fulfillment in every case, but the general stirring up is likely to produce many good results. It is far better than having many communities sitting back complaining because a few others have all the luck and prosperity.

Tourng Canada

Canada, not Europe, is the Mecca of the American tourist. It seems to be the literal truth that far more Americans were attracted to Canada this year than to all Europe.

The volume of this movement is almst incredible. Figures from Ottawa show that, up to October, more than 2,000,000 automobiles crossed the border, carrying about 9,000,000 tourists. And this takes no account of the great numbers who went to Canada on trains and steamships.

Did it pay Canada? It did. Dominion authorities estimate that the visitors from the states brought not less than $150,000,000 into the country. This sum is equal to one-fourth of the value of the annual mining output of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia combined.

The money needn't be grudged to our Canadian friends, either. Trips to Canada are comparatively inexpensive, and probably pay bigger average dividends than trips to the Old World. Especially do they pay in the health benefits gained from vacationing in Canada's beautiful and illimitable outdoors, and in the friendship that the "Yank" usually learns to feel for his kindly courteous "Canuck" neighbors.

Progress In Health

In most respects health figures in the United States continue to improve and the death rate keeps on decreasing.

Improvement is found especially in the death rate from influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, diphtheria, diabetes, measles and infants' digestive diseases.

But three ailments particularly continue their ravages and grow more menacing. They are heart disease, which heads the mortality list in many states, followed pretty closely by brain diseases—ceregral hemorrhage and softening—and by cancer and other malignant growths.

In the first group it is evident that the medical profession, helped by intelligent popular interest, is on the right track. In the second there is little reason for satisfaction. Something can be done along broad lines of healthful living to forestall heart and brain ailments, though definite cures are lacking. Cancer remains the great pathological mystery and menace.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The Thalia theatre has been catering to the amusement public for one hundred years but one. It was first built at Canal and the Bowery where it now stands. In those days white-faced cows grazed in Times Square and the town journeyed in stage coaches to 72d street to picnic.

It is given over to the Oriental drama. Gom Woo Deep is the leading lady and Mon Gah Yin the leading man. The Chinese play is a deep mystery to orderly Occident minds. A musician may suddenly climb out of the pit and over the footlights to take a role.

It creaks with sympolism. A spot of black court plaster on the nose indicates the deep dyed villain and a man carrying a whip is a Paul Revere—the horse is left to imagination. Some one in the audience may recognize an old friend and mount the stage to greet him.

The play courteously stops for this ceremony. If it grows too hot an actor will remove his wig or coat. Between acts the players join the audience in friendly chat and they may have to send a gunner out front to herd the orchestra back in the pit for the next act.

If there is a commotion in the audience during a tense scene, the play again stops and the players chat amiably and without offense until the interruption is over. If the Chinese see a stranger hasn't a good seat, they will offer theirs.

It was in the Mad Hatter Hendrick Van Loon wrote his "Story of Mankind." In much of the Village gaudy cheapness this tea room seems to preserve a certain detachment. Harry Kemp is now grinding out his second version of "Tramping on Life" at one of the tables. Peddling fakers are barred. Patrons often sit about an open fireplace and read.

A New York woman gave a dinner party in a public cafe and wore pearls and diamonds valued at more than $500,000. At a nearby table sat three men in evening clothes—private detectives employed to guard her. What a life!

Noel Coward, whose London successes have been duplicated on Broadway, lived in an East Ninth street boarding house three years ago. Unable to sell a play, his small savings dwindled and he returned home broke. He was here a year ago in the first flush of success. He was then 25 and every night he was in his hotel room working. He did not attend one party to which he was invited. There is one of those success articles there somewhere.

Cows may be seen grazing in a Central Park pasture from the bus tops on Upper Fifth avenue. No city is so big as to prevent the rural touch from peeping through.

St. Marks-in-the-Bouwerie is still a spiritual retreat for married souls. It is flanked on all sides by alien touches—Kosher shops, Greek cafes and Turkish coffee houses. There is a small and pleasant church yard and an air of peace. The ancient edifice conceals one of the greatest New York mysteries. From one of its vaults ghouls stole of the body of A. T. Stewart, the great merchant prince of his day. The mystery has never been solved. Another vault contains the body of Petrus Stuyvesant.

HASKIN'S LETTER

An Art Centennial

WASHINGTON, D. C. Nov. 3.—At the Corcoran Gallery of Art in this city there is now being held the Centennial Exhibition of the National Academy of Design. Here may be seen the representative works of the leading American artists and sculptors during the past hundred years. For the private view two special cars carried artists from New York City and Philadelphia, among them being Edwin H. Blashfield, President of the National Academy, Harry W. Watrous, Douglas Volk, Gardner Symons and Charles Dana Gibson. There were many other shining lights of the world of art, as well as lesser ones with ambitions of one day having their work accepted by the Academy.

The exhibition shows many signatures which impress even those who lay no claim to knowledge of art. Without knowing whether the flesh tints are good, or whether the color is exceptional, they stand and gaze with awe at such paintings as the portrait by John Singer Sargent, entitled "A Vele Gonfie."

Also the recent death of George Bellows and the many expressions of regret which have appeared in the public press and current magazines make the layman doubly interested in the contribution by this artist. It is entitled "Club Night" and depicts a prize ring wehrein presumably a championship fight is taking place. In the background are shown the interested and enthusiastic spectators. Like all of Bellows' work, it is said to be remarkable for its virility.

The death of George Bellows was a great shock to the world of art, as it was felt that it was particularly unfortunate that one just at the height of success and with such a brilliant future should have been taken. He was admired for his work and loved for himself.

The contribution of Mr. Blashfield is "Academia," while that of the first president of the National Academy, Samuel F. B. Morse, is a portrait of the Marquis de Lafayette. It is said that Morse by means of his painting was able to finance his great invention the electric telegraph, through which he is known the world over.

In a short article it is impossible to mention all the various contributions, or even those of outstanding importance. There are examples of each line such as architectural drawings, etchings, wood engravings, lithographs and sculpture. Among the illustrators exhibiting are Maxfield and Jules Guerin. There are etchings by Joseph Pennell and Otto Bacher. Among the prominent sculptors represented are Paul Wayland Bartlett, Solon Borglum, Augustus Saint Gaudens, Frederick W. MacMonnies and Daniel Chester French. The French contribution is the Lincoln statue used in the Lincoln Memorial at Washington, except that it is done on a smaller scale.

Morse One Of The First Fifteen

In November, 1825, a number of young artists and students of New York organized the New York Drawing Association, which in January of the next year resolved itself into a new organization known as the National Academy of the Arts of Design. Fifteen members were chosen who in turn were to select fifteen others and these were to constitute the new society. Samuel F. B. Morse was among the first fifteen named, and he became the first president of the society, serving in that capacity for many years.

The society prospered and grew despite the frequent necessity of finding new quarters. In 1863 a permanent home was established and a unique and beautiful building was erected at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-third street. Here there was provision for exhibition galleries and classrooms for the students. One of the most valued possessions of the Academy was a collection of casts and some of these are still used in the classrooms. This was the original collection of the Academy of Fine Arts which begun with gifts from Napoleon and foreign governments and augmented by the purchases of Robert R. Livingston while Ambassador to France.

In 1895 this property was sold and later the present site was purchased at 109th and Amsterdam Avenue. The present building contains the executive offices of the society, library, art collections and classrooms. With the awakening of the public to a new consciousness of its national art there is a growing demand for art instruction, and the Academy feels that its facilities are inadequate. It hopes to enlist the cooperation of the public so that a new building may be constructed which will have accommodations for larger schools and allow more room for the housing and exhibition of the magnificent rat collection of the Academy.

It also hopes to establish an endowment fund, the proceeds of which will be used to enable talented students to continue their studies both here and abread. A further ambition of the Academy is that with the erection of a suitable building a College of Art May be founded. This would offer to its students an academic course ranking with that of regular colleges, combined with comprehensive training in the graphic arts.

Irving A Lecturer

Since the earliest days of the Academy its schools have been managed by a committee elected from the Council of the Academy, and the instructors have for the most part been drawn from its membership. Under a policy laid down nearly a hundred years ago, well known artists, architects and scientists deliver lectures which are free to the student body. It is an interesting fact that Washington Irving was the first of these lecturer-professors.

There is no charge made by the schools of the Academy for the instruction they offer. Thus many talented men and women have been enabled to obtain necessary instruction which they could not have had if a tuition fee had been demanded. In addition to this free instruction there are traveling scholarships, and for those desiring a general college course as well as instruction in drawing and painting, the Academy has formed an affiliation with New York University.

Many real artists and sculptors have been developed in the schools of the Academy, as is attested by the fact that such men as George Inness, Augustus Saint Gaudens, William M. Chase, Winslow Homer, Francis D. Millet and Frank Duveneck received their first training there.

In 1916 H. W. Ranger, well known in the world of artists, died and left his entire estate to the National Academy of Design. This money is known as the "H. W. Ranger Bequest." The Ranger Bequest yields the Ranger Fund and provides for the purchase of pictures by living American artists, the larger percentage of which shall be by artists of forty-five years of age or over. These pictures are presented to various museums and art associations throughout the United States. They are assigned on the understanding that the National Gallery at Washington may claim them for the permanent collection after a period of time has elapsed under certain conditions. To date about fifty pictures have already been purchased and donated.

In the early days the United States was too busy struggling with the prosaic task of building a nation to have much time for the cultural arts. The past hundred years, as evidenced by this Centennial Exhibition, however, has shown tremendous strides made toward putting this country on an equal footing with the other nations in artistic development.

Pavlowa, the dancer, has recently been in Germany and says that she always gets a great deal of money from Germans for her housefull of Russian Orphans in Paris.

FORMER WIFE SUED AS "POISON PEN"

Ask $250,000 of Woman of Four Romances.

New York.—Indicted for sending a poison pen letter through the mails to Arthur H. Marks, millionaire tire and organ manufacturer, Mrs. Lydia Locke Dornblaser, singer, is being sued for $250,000 for defamation of character by Mrs. Marks, formerly Mrs. Margaret Hoover of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Dornblaser has been married four times. Marks was her third husband. Her second was Orville Harold, Metropolitan opera tenor. Her present husband has been described as a bond broker and her private secretary from whom she is estranged. He is a good looking youth.

Her first husband was A. W. ("Prince") Talbot, race track gambler, whom she killed at Reno in 1909. She was acquitted because of his deathbed statement that the shooting was accidental.

Federal authorities revealed that the singer's sister, Mrs. Frances Adams, wife of a Joplin (Mo.) merchant, had been arrested and released on bail there as the actual sender of the note. It was mailed from Bellefontaine, Ohio, July 30, by a public stenographer, to whom it is charged, Mrs. Adams had given it on a train. The text of the letter is withheld.

Marks settled $400,000 on Mrs. Dornblaser when they were divorced last fall, $100,000 of which was put in trust on condition that she would not annoy him for five years. The good behavior pact was first broken shortly after the divorce, counsel for Marks avers, when she attempted to palm off a bogus child on him. Court proceedings in New York resulted in the child being returned to a sanitarium in Kansas City.

The good behavior fund was cut in half as a result of the paternity charge, Marks' lawyers say, and has now been cancelled entirely.

Counsel for Mrs. Dornblaser said the poison pen charges were an attempt by Marks to get out of fulfilling the trust fund agreement.

Extending The National Debt

If the time allowed for retirement of the American public debt were extended to 50 years, as some urge, it would be possible to cut federal taxes $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 a year instead of about half that much.

It is a tempting thought. Taxpayers could use the saved money. It sounds fair, too, to argue that American war debtors (and that is what all of us are) should have as much time for payment as our foreign war debtors. Why should we have to pay in a few years when foreigners have 62 years for it?

Yet there are cnsiderations on the other side. We have the money to pay, and can do so far better than our foreign debtors. By paying as soon as we can, thereby following good business methods, we shall save a lot of interest. Also we shall avoid saddling up on the next generation the burden of a war for which this generation was responsible.

The Boom In Local Pride

Whether the Florida boom was the forerunner of many booms or whether it was merely the most prominent feature of a widespread movement for local boosting and development is hard to say. At any rate there is today hardly a community of any energy at all that is not taking its own possibilities and future very seriously. From one section in the south comes three striking statements.

St. Tammany, La., announces, "We have possibilities or potential opportunities even greater than Florida had. But we wish to call attention to the fact that Louisiana can develop just as rapidly as Florida has if her people will go in for publicity and do the big things that should be done."

From Natchez, Miss., comes this forceful statement: "We have a very substantial and meaningful message for the world. This city is the heart of a country of opportunities. No other in this whole section of the south is more happily circumstanced. We can do more different kinds of useful things in this city and section, and can prosecute these activities for a longer period during the year, than the people of any other city and section in the whole breadth of this republic."

From Shreveport, La., comes this: "This is the 'Pep City of America.' In days of sunshine and of tempest Shreveport traditionally has exhibited the 'pep' required by the occasion. It is a city of big deeds. It is a city in which the people know how to work together. And in their co-operation there always is 'pep'."

North, south, east and west, similar communities are discovering themselves and awakening to their opportunities and bestirring themselves to grasp them. The enthusiasm may not last to fulfillment in every case, but the general stirring up is likely to produce many good results. It is far better than having many communities sitting back complaining because a few others have all the luck and prosperity.

With the awakening of the public to a new consciousness of its national art there is a growing demand for art instruction, and the Academy feels that its facilities are inadequate. It hopes to enlist the cooperation of the public so that a new building may be constructed which will have accommodations for larger schools and allow more room for the housing and exhibition of the magnificent rat collection of the Academy.

It also hopes to establish an endowment fund, the proceeds of which will be used to enable talented students to continue their studies both here and abread. A further ambition of the Academy is that with the erection of a suitable building a College of Art May be founded. This would offer to its students an academic course ranking with that of regular colleges, combined with comprehensive training in the graphic arts.

Irving A Lecturer

Since the earliest days of the Academy its schools have been managed by a committee elected from the Council of the Academy, and the instructors have for the most part been drawn from its membership. Under a policy laid down nearly a hundred years ago, well known artists, architects and scientists deliver lectures which are free to the student body. It is an interesting fact that Washington Irving was the first of these lecturer-professors.

There is no charge made by the schools of the Academy for the instruction they offer. Thus many talented men and women have been enabled to obtain necessary instruction which they could not have had if a tuition fee had been demanded. In addition to this free instruction there are traveling scholarships, and for those desiring a general college course as well as instruction in drawing and painting, the Academy has formed an affiliation with New York University.

Many real artists and sculptors have been developed in the schools of the Academy, as is attested by the fact that such men as George Inness, Augustus Saint Gaudens, William M. Chase, Winslow Homer, Francis D. Millet and Frank Duveneck received their first training there.

In 1916 H. W. Ranger, well known in the world of artists, died and left his entire estate to the National Academy of Design. This money is known as the "H. W. Ranger Bequest." The Ranger Bequest yields the Ranger Fund and provides for the purchase of pictures by living American artists, the larger percentage of which shall be by artists of forty-five years of age or over. These pictures are presented to various museums and art associations throughout the United States. They are assigned on the understanding that the National Gallery at Washington may claim them for the permanent collection after a period of time has elapsed under certain conditions. To date about fifty pictures have already been purchased and donated.

In the early days the United States was too busy struggling with the prosaic task of building a nation to have much time for the cultural arts. The past hundred years, as evidenced by this Centennial Exhibition, however, has shown tremendous strides made toward putting this country on an equal footing with the other nations in artistic development.

FORMER WIFE SUED AS "POISON PEN"

Ask $250,000 of Woman of Four Romances.

New York.—Indicted for sending a poison pen letter through the mails to Arthur H. Marks, millionaire tire and organ manufacturer, Mrs. Lydia Locke Dornblaser, singer, is being sued for $250,000 for defamation of character by Mrs. Marks, formerly Mrs. Margaret Hoover of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Dornblaser has been married four times. Marks was her third husband. Her second was Orville Harold, Metropolitan opera tenor. Her present husband has been described as a bond broker and her private secretary from whom she is estranged. He is a good looking youth.

Her first husband was A. W. ("Prince") Talbot, race track gambler, whom she killed at Reno in 1909. She was acquitted because of his deathbed statement that the shooting was accidental.

Federal authorities revealed that the singer's sister, Mrs. Frances Adams, wife of a Joplin (Mo.) merchant, had been arrested and released on bail there as the actual sender of the note. It was mailed from Bellefontaine, Ohio, July 30, by a public stenographer to whom it is charged, Mrs. Adams had given it on a train. The text of the letter is withheld.

Marks settled $400,000 on Mrs. Dornblaser when they were divorced last fall, $100,000 of which was put in trust on condition that she would not annoy him for five years. The good behavior pact was first broken shortly after the divorce, counsel for Marks avers, when she attempted to palm off a bogus child on him. Court proceedings in New York resulted in the child being returned to a sanitarium in Kansas City.

The good behavior fund was cut in half as a result of the paternity charge Marks' lawyers say, and has now been cancelled entirely.

Counsel for Mrs. Dornblaser said the poison pen charges were an attempt by Marks to get out of fulfilling the trust fund agreement.

HYGIENE TAUGHT

Old Houses Torn Down to Check Disease.

PARIS.—There is more tuberculosis in Paris than in any other city in the world. This was the startling statement made before the Conseil General de la Seine in December, 1920. More recent statistics show that some progress has been made, but there is still great room for improvement.

The last perod which preceded the war showed a general decrease in mortality from plumonary diseases among all nations, France excepted. Death increased in Germany at the rate of 15.6 for every 1,000 inhabitants; 14.8 in Belgium, 13.3 in England and 17.7 in France. For every 10,000 inhabitants 32 died in France from pulmonary tuberculosis. As far back as the period from 1969-1913 Paris was at the head of the mortality list of all the great cities of Europe, tuberculosis then causing 3.53 deaths for every 1,000 inhabitants.

Such a situation called for immediate clearing up. The sanitary service got busy and within ten years discovered six groups of streets, in all about five thousand houses, wheer the malady caused three times as many deaths as in all the rest of the capital. The causes were simple, principally lack of air and light and too many dark bedrooms on damp courts. These houses were suppressed and within three years tubercular martality diminished from 9,714 to 9,371.

This was only a beginning. During the war Leon Bourgeois founded a noteworthy dispensary which bears his name and forced the Parliament to vote for the law of April 15, 1916, by which France seriously began her fight against the disease which was ravaging the country. The City hall commission began work with the idea that there can be no real aid without education. Its first task was to look for the child, not suffering from the disease, but the one menaced.

Every child upon entering school must now present a health certificate. Once the danger is signalled, the work is infinitely easier. If there are any signs of the disease the child is sent to a preventorium or to a sanatorium, or merely to a fresh air school, which is usually effective.

Fresh air all day long and all night as well is being urged for the many French who are afraid of night air and sleep in crowded quarters with the window sealed. Old houses in unsanitary districts are being torn down. Schools are teaching more and more hygience and it is expected that within a few years the white plague will not be able to boast of so many victims in the gay French capital.

HYGIENE TAUGHT

Old Houses Torn Down to Check Disease.

PARIS.—There is more tuberculosis in Paris than in any other city in the world. This was the startling statement made before the Conseil General de la Seine in December, 1920. More recent statistics show that some progress has been made, but there is still great room for improvement.

The last perod which preceded the war showed a general decrease in mortality from plumonary diseases among all nations, France excepted. Death increased in Germany at the rate of 15.6 for every 1,000 inhabitants; 14.8 in Belgium, 13.3 in England and 17.7 in France. For every 10,000 inhabitants 32 died in France from pulmonary tuberculosis. As far back as the period from 1909-1913 Paris was at the head of the mortality list of all the great cities of Europe, tuberculosis then causing 3.53 deaths for every 1,000 inhabitants.

Such a situation called for immediate clearing up. The sanitary service got busy and within ten years discovered six groups of streets, in all about five thousand houses, wheer the malady caused three times as many deaths as in all the rest of the capital. The causes were simple, principally lack of air and light and too many dark bedrooms on damp courts. These houses were suppressed and within three years tubercular mortality diminished from 9,714 to 9,371.

This was only a beginning. During the war Leon Bourgeois founded a noteworthy dispensary which bears his name and forced the Parliament to vote for the law of April 15, 1916, by which France seriously began her fight against the disease which was ravaging the country. The City hall commission began work with the idea that there can be no real aid without education. Its first task was to look for the child, not suffering from the disease, but the one menaced.

Every child upon entering school must now present a health certificate. Once the danger is signalled, the work is infinitely easier. If there are any signs of the disease the child is sent to a preventorium or to a sanatorium, or merely to a fresh air school, which is usually effective.

Fresh air all day long and all night as well is being urged for the many French who are afraid of night air and sleep in crowded quarters with the window sealed. Old houses in unsanitary districts are being torn down. Schools are teaching more and more hygience and it is expected that within a few years the white plague will not be able to boast of so many victims in the gay French capital.

SCHOOL TEACHERS TO HOLD MEETING

Annual fall meeting of the Hancock county school teachers will be held in Weirton next month. This was decided on at a meeting of the executive committee of the county association held recently in Weirton.

Those attending the conference were: R. L. Hoke, superintendent of the Grant district schools; County Superintendent H. C. Miller; Superintendent Albert Rabenstein, Chester; Superintendent C. D. Henderson, New Cumberland; Superintendent W. D. Johnson, Weirton, and G. A. Beck, president of the county association.

Many Defects Found.

Examination of the teeth of 101,372 school children in 24 counties last year resulted in the discovery of 15,913 defects, states a report to the state department of health from the school and county nurses who examined the children. Only 3,627 of these defects were corrected, the report shows, leaving many children with bad teeth, a condition which is a handicap to them in doing their school work.

was manufacturing more. He paid a fine of $50.

Ivan J. Solay, Hollidays Cove, admitted he had 60 gallons of wine and 40 gallons of home brew. He drew a fine and was ordered to jail until the fine was paid.

James Mitchell, Weirton, took the blame for the charge against his brother David, a visitor in his home. James was fined $50 for possessing 50 gallons of home brew.

Morris McNamura, Weirton, had home brew.

Morris McNamura, Weirton, had home brew in his home and was fined $100, as was Mrs. Geo. Wazenskz.

Pete Psiar was fined $100 for a violation in Weirton, and his wife was allowed to go free.

Soccer Team Scheduled.

Homer Laughlin China soccer team is scheduled to meet Ellwood City at the latter place next Saturday afternoon in the Northwest division. Ellwood City is considered one of the fastest soccer teams in the district.

Attend Mission Meeting.

Number of local residents attended the Missionary rally held last evening in the Chester Nazarene church which was addressed by Miss Eva Carpenter and Miss Isabel Myler, both of whom attended the convention here last week.

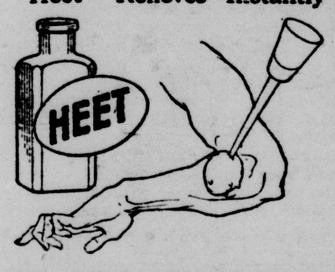
PAIN, NEURITIS, RHEUMATISM

"Heet" Relieves Instantly



With applicator attached to cork, just brush "Heet" over the pain area, whether in elbows, arms, shoulders, feet, knees, legs, back, neck or body. Instantly, you feel this harmless, glorious, penetrating heat draw the pain, soreness and stiffness right out of the aching or swollen joint, muscle or nerve. Besides, "Heet" scatters the congestion and establishes a cure.

"Heet" contains two soothing, penetrating ingredients, too expensive to use in ordinary liniments or analgesics. "Heet" is a clean, pleasant liquid; doesn't stain, blister or irritate the skin and costs only 60 cents at any drug store.

Hair Beauty

Thick, Gleamy Hair —Full of Life

The constant curling and waving demanded by modern style in hair dress, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

This Is Your Chance to Prove That Toning Up Your Liver Will End That Tired, Run-Down Feeling. Build Yourself Up! Win Back Sound Digestion, Strength and Energy — Feel Your Very Best Again!

In his private practice Dr. H. S. Thacher demonstrated that such symptoms as Indigestion, Gas on a Sour Stomach, Belching, Dizziness, Colds that Hang On, Sick Headaches, Constipation, that Tired Feeling and a general Run-Down condition of the System are often the result of a Sluggish Liver—and that relief in such cases comes quickly when the Liver is properly Cleansed and Toned and the System is working normally again.

Why This Gives Relief.

When working as Nature intended your Liver does three things necessary to keep you feeling your best. First, it purifies your BLOOD, every drop of which passes through the Liver every fifteen minutes. Second, your Liver furnishes the essences that are essential to perfect DIGESTION. Third, your Liver supplies the secretions Nature uses to lubricate your intestines so that your Bowels can move naturally, gently and regularly every day. When your liver becomes sluggish it cannot do these three things; consequently, you suffer from one or more of the symptoms above described.

Share It With Family!

Just to prove to you that you CAN get quick RELIEF, druggists are giving away FREE liberal trial size bottles of Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup. It is a syrup of PURELY VEGETABLE ingredients known to Physicians for their CORRECTIVE and HEALTH-BUILDING properties. Each ingredient is chosen to help Nature to cleanse and tone the Liver—to correct this cause of Constipation—to improve Digestion and Appetite—to Nourish and Strengthen the System—to tone the Tired and Overtaxed Nerves, and to send purer, Healthier Blood coursing through your veins.

Instantly, you feel this harmless, glorious, penetrating heat draw the pain, soreness and stiffness right out of the aching or swollen joint, muscle or nerve. Besides, "Heet" scatters the congestion and establishes a cure.

Hair Beauty

Thick, Gleamy Hair —Full of Life

The constant curling and waving demanded by modern style in hair dress, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

EIGHT DIE AS SCHOOL BUS IS HIT BY TRAIN

CROSSING CRASH

Village Grief-stricken as Result of Tragedy.

NAHUNTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—A pall of sorrow hung over this village today, as preparations were made to bury the eight children killed when the Everglades limited, New York to Florida flyer on the Atlantic Coast line, crashed into a school bus near here, at a grade crossing.

Twenty children are in the Atlantic Coast line hospital at Waycross, where they were rushed after the crash, recovering from injuries. Seven were killed outright or died within a few minutes, and the eighth child died last night.

The dead and injured children all live in the country surrounding Nahunta, and it was hours before parents of some of the killed and injured children learned of the tragedy.

Heart-rending scenes were enacted when committees of Nahunta citizens traveled in motor cars into the surrounding country to notify the parents of the children that their babies were not safe in the new consolidated school building at Nahunta, but were lying dead or maimed in the morgue and hospital at Waycross.

Ebert Denies Candidacy Report.

According to precinct rumors, considerable scratching marked the voting during the forenoon. Among the reports was one to the effect that the name of Dr. J. P. Ebert, East Fifth street optometrist, was being written on the ballot for the mayoralty place. Dr. Ebert, at noon, denied he was a candidate for the office.

"I am not in politics and if my name is being written on the ballot by my friends it is without my knowledge and consent," Dr. Ebert said. "A year ago a committee visited me, requesting that I enter the race for mayor, but my answer was 'no' then and I have not changed my mind since then."

L. M. Poole, Republican nominee for Third ward council, and who is unopposed by the Democrats, will face opposition from Charles McNicol, pottery manufacturer, whose friends announced they will write his name on the independent ballot.

George Dawson, special police officer, has been entered as a candidate for Fourth ward councilman, it is reported, opposing George Hughes, Republican, and James Godwin, Democrat. Dawson's name will be written in the independent column.

Another report indicated that Attorney J. H. Brookes, who resigned from the school board early in the fall, will receive complimentary votes for the place today, although he declined to be a candidate. His name, it is said, is being written on the ballot.

C. A. Ferguson, who was appointed to succeed Brookes, and Robert Stevenson, are unopposed for the two board of education memberships.

State amendments will be the first ballot to be counted after the polls close. The county road bond issue will be the second, after which will come the city ticket and municipal court judgeship.

Nevins Purchases Clothing Store in New Kensington, Pa.

P. H. Nevins, former owner of the P. H. Nevins, and company store, which occupied quarters in the Milligan building, East Fifth street, destroyed by fire February 22, last, has purchased Fisher Brother's clothing store in New Kensington, Pa. Mrs. Nevins and children will leave Thursday for New Kensington, where they will make their future home.

13 States Vote

Today's Calendar

Virginia—General election of governor, all state officers and new assembly.

Indiana—Municipal elections in 101 cities.

Michigan—Municipal elections in many cities, including Detroit.

New York—Municipal elections in New York, Buffalo, and other cities, election of entire new assembly and voting upon four constitutional amendments.

Kentucky—Election of new assembly, one congerssman, many county and municipal officers.

Ohio—Municipal election in many cities, statewide vote on constitutional amendments; local bond issue elections.

Utah—Municipal elections in many cities.

Missouri—Municipal election in Kansas City.

California—Special election in San Francisco to determine municipal purchase of a street railway.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3.—Despite favorable weather conditions a light vote is being cast throughout Ohio today, according to indications early this afternoon at the offices of Secretary of State Brown.

While voters, apparently, were turning out in good numbers in cities, where warm contests had developed over proposed bond issues, special tax levies and municipal offices, lack of interest prevailed generally in rural districts.

Pittsburgh Goes To Polls.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 3.—Voting for a mayor and five councilmen, Pittsburgh went to the polls today at the conclusion of one of the quietest campaigns in years. Voters were hesitant in the early hours, causing election officials to anticipate a light vote.

Besides the municipal election, a slate of county officers was to be chosen and the state was to elect a superior court judge.

In Pittsburgh the Republicans counted on a plurality of 50,000 for Judge Charles H. Kline, nominee for mayor. Opposing the jurist were W. L. Smith, Prohibitionist, and C. C. Johnson, Democrat.

Hans Wagner, star shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates in former years, stood for election as sheriff on the Labor-Non-Partisan ticket. He was opposed by both Republican and Democrat candidates, however.

Klan Issue in Two Cities.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 3.—Detroit voters, stirred by the Klan issue, went to the polls today to decide one of the hardest fought campaigns in the city's history. A mayor and nine councilmen are to be elected by what is believed will be a record vote.

Mayor John W. Smith and Charles Bowles, an attorney, are opposing each other for the mayoralty office. Mayor Smith charges the Klan with attempting to get control of the city government, while Bowles denies membership in the order.

Fair weather and bitterness between the two factions will bring out a record vote, it is believed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—Voters in a number of Indiana cities trekked to the polls today to elect municipal officials.

Indianapolis was expected to vote John L. Duvall, Republican backed by the Klan, into the mayoral chair, but the fight admittedly will be decidedly close. The personal popularity of Walter Myers spurred Republican leaders to strenuous efforts to defeat him.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—Kansas City was voting today to elect a mayor under a new charter embracing the city manager plan of the government and a bond issue of $26,500,000 for public improvements.

Although, under the new form, politics were supposed to be cast aside, each party had endorsed a candidate. A. I. Beach, incumbent, was backed by the Republican organization and Ben Jaudon, city treasurer, by the Democrats.

Boston's Spectacular Campaign

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—Fair weather and a heavy early vote marked the opening today of the mayoralty election, which came in the wake of an eleventh hour frenzied drive for votes by the 10 candidates in the windup of of one of the most spectacular campaigns in the city's history. Polls opened at 6 a. m. and were scheduled to close at 8 p. m.

Political control of Boston, expenditure of four hundred million dollars in the appropriations and public improvements during the next mayor's four-year term of office and the bearing of the contest next fall between United States Senator William M. Butler and former United States Senator David I. Walsh were the sweepstakes of this year's mayoralty election.

Vote Upon Amendments.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Ohio voters today were voting upon three amendments to the state constitution, most Ohio cities were choosing city officers and townships were electing township officials in the biennial "off-year" election.

Main interest in thes tate results centered in the proposal to amend the constitution by providing for the classification of property for taxation. Reformers have long pointed to the Ohio constitutional rule which provides for taxation of "all property real and personal, at its true value in money," as archaic. It was adopted in 1851, and repeated attempts to change it since that time have been unavailable. A second amendment would impose a constitutional limit upon the debt making power of municipalities, and a third would extend the terms of state and county officials to four years from the present limit of two in most instances.

Interest in municipal results was "spotted." Cleveland with more than a quarter million voters was not expected to poll more than 100,000. Here a city council of 25 was to be chosen on a proportional representation ballot—the second test of this ballot in a metropolitan community.

Cincinnati was to choose a council of nine members under a new charter effective next January. A reform ticket was opposed by the regular Republican nominees, who had the support of Rud K. Hynicka, Republican leader since the death of George B. Cox.

Toledo was voting upon bond issues totalling $32,500,000, providing for an ambitious plan of civic improvement.

In other cities the municipal elections were expected to bring out a large vote. The Ku Klux Klan had in many instances entered the fight with slates of endorsed candidates and its influences was expected to sway the result in many municipalities.

Hot Fight in New Jersey.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 3.—Faced with last-minute claims of a large majority victory by both Republicans and Democrats, the voting populace of New Jersey went to the polls today to choose between State Senator Arthur Whitney, backed by the Republican party and the Anti-Saloon league, and Commissioner A. Harry Moore, the Democratic candidate for governor.

Harry Heher, chairman of the Democratic state committee, asserted that Moore would carry New Jersey by at least 150,000. He based his figures on the admitted plurality of at least 100,000 that Moore will poll in Jersey City, the Democratic stronghold. Whitney's supporters, on the other hand, contend that they will carry practically all other counties, with a vote heavy enough to win by 60,000 over Moore.

Squads of detectives were on hand as crowds began to gather at the polls, prompted by charges that thousands of "floaters" from New York city would be imported to "steal" the election.

Toledo's Ambitious Program.

TOLEDO, Nov. 3.—Voters of Toledo today, in addition to electing a mayor and other city officials, were voting on the most ambitious improvement plan, to be financed by bond issues, ever submitted to the voters of an Ohio city.

Bond issues totalling $32,500,000, providing for such things as harbor improvement, street paving and widening, parks and playgrounds, a modern traffic control system and a score of lesser matters, have taken the attention of the voters from the personality of the candidates.

Walter F. Brown, long the leader of the Republican party here, is directing the fight for the bond issues and predicts success for most if not all the issues.

Opponents declare that the seuccess of the plan means an average annual increase in taxation of $7 or more. Friends of the proposals say the cost will be from $1.50 to $2.00 annually to the average taxpayer.

Proponents of the bonds point to the example of St. Louis, where $80,000,000 was voted by the people at one time for improvements, and contend that taxes on the increased duplicate bound to follow a modern city will pay the entire cost within the life of the bonds.

feet, is ashed and can be traveled in winter weather if necessary. With a month of good weather, the contractors may complete the job, but this is regarded as improbable.

The contractors have been forced to pay railroad demurrage on several carloads of sand, gravel, cement and other materials for several weeks, because of the inclement weather. These materials have been standing on sidings in Smiths Ferry.

The Beaver county commissioners have awarded the Rinehart firm the contract for filling the approaches to the new highway span across Beaver creek. Material for the fills will be hauled from the upper end of the improvement in traction dump cars.

While the Midland-East Liverpool road is being improved, traffic to Midland, Vanport, Industry, Beaver and other Beaver valley towns will be detoured over what is known as the Tuscarawas road, which goes through Smiths Ferry, up the hill through Ohioville, Esther and follows the ridge into Beaver. This road is unimproved.

Court-Martial Case Adjourns Until Monday.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The army court-martial that is trying Col. William Mitchell for "conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline" decided today to give the flying general ample opportunity to defend himself before finding him guilty.

After promptly over-ruling a motion to dismiss the whole case, which indicated an eventful verdict of guilt, the jury of generals granted him an adjournment until Monday next in order to obtain numerous witnesses through whom Mitchell will endeavor to prove that his charges of "criminal negligence" and "almost treasonable" administration of the army and navy air services were fully justified.

free—after seven years—merely because that slave happened to be of the same religion as the owner. Suppose the slave had the decency to want to stay with his family born in slavery, what would the modern man do?

You wouldn't find many men that would nail his ear to the door, and keep him a slave forever simply because the poor fellow wouldn't leave his wife and children.

We are better than they were in old Bible days, good bishop of Durham. If a modern patriarch turned a slave girl, with his own child, adrift in the desert, to please a jealous old wife, he would not brag about it.

The bishop says the people are committing suicide and generally going wrong because they lack religion.

On the other hand the bishop must remember that some of the most terrible recent suicides have been based on religious frenzy, pushing religion too far.

Aristotle wasn't a Christian, never had a chance to be, for Christianity had not started in his day. Yet there is a great deal of Christian wisdom in his saying: "Not too much, not too little."

We have just now too much of the jazz band, perhaps, too little of the book of Job. A man of real intellect would find in the magnificent writing of Job ten times the inspiration he would find in all the jazz bands of the world combined.

But the bishop must be patient. We have come out of a great war, young people have had a bad example put before them. They have seen the very rich swindling their own government, on a "dollar a year" patriot basis.

They have seen Liberty bonds that they bought at par knocked down to $85 for $100 worth. Then they saw them go above par after the big gentlemen had gathered them in.

They have seen little people conscripted, to be sent out to be gassed and shot, while the more prosperous sat in their swivel chairs, wearing magnificent uniforms, play heroic parts.

Men have been taken from their villages and farms, marched around, bossed and bullied by officers manufactured over night.

Girls have been taken from their homes and put into ammunition factories and in other queer, unfit places. There has been some breaking down of moral fiber.

But the human race hasn't gone to the dogs. Incidentally, if the British bishop were well informed, he would know that there is much more general morality in the United States than there is in Great Britain.

Statistics will prove to him that diseases born of immorality are far more frequent and harmful in Great Britain than in this country.

However, both Great Britain and the United States are all right, fundamentally.

We have within ourselves, as every man can testify, an intense desire to do what is right.

There is not one of us outside of the insane asylum that has any intense desire to do what is wrong. We are driven to wrong, sometimes by our weaknennesses, lack of education, poor environment.

But our spirits turn to the light, toward what is good.

We can truly say that we needn't worry about our civilization, our race, or the worries that torment the good bishop of Durham.

LOSE SAVINGS IN HOME FIRE

R. R. Garrett, Wife and Son Dependent Upon Friends.

Savings of a lifetime were lost last Thursday morning when fire totally destroyed the home of R. R. Garrett, about a mile from Stop 55, on the Y. & O. railroad and the Lincoln highway, it developed today.

Garrett, his wife and son, Raymond, 18, are dependent upon relatives and friends.

Garrett, who is employed on the John Chaney farm in Madison township, had just left his home, a five-room frame dwelling, last Thursday morning when his attention was attracted by a cloud of smoke. He hurried back and found the house in a mass of flames.

Several pieces of furniture which had been purchased two days before the fire and other furnishings, together with a small sum of money, were lost in the blaze.

EIGHT DIE AS SCHOOL BUS IS HIT BY TRAIN

CROSSING CRASH

Village Grief-stricken as Result of Tragedy.

NAHUNTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—A pall of sorrow hung over this village today, as preparations were made to bury the eight children killed when the Everglades limited, New York to Florida flyer on the Atlantic Coast line, crashed into a school bus near here, at a grade crossing.

Twenty children are in the Atlantic Coast line hospital at Waycross, where they were rushed after the crash, recovering from injuries. Seven were killed outright or died within a few minutes, and the eighth child died last night.

The dead and injured children all live in the country surrounding Nahunta, and it was hours before parents of some of the killed and injured children learned of the tragedy.

Heart-rending scenes were enacted when committees of Nahunta citizens traveled in motor cars into the surrounding country to notify the parents of the children that their babies were not safe in the new consolidated school building at Nahunta, but were lying dead or maimed in the morgue and hospital at Waycross.

Ebert Denies Candidacy Report.

According to precinct rumors, considerable scratching marked the voting during the forenoon. Among the reports was one to the effect that the name of Dr. J. P. Ebert, East Fifth street optometrist, was being written on the ballot for the mayoralty place. Dr. Ebert, at noon, denied he was a candidate for the office.

"I am not in politics and if my name is being written on the ballot by my friends it is without my knowledge and consent," Dr. Ebert said. "A year ago a committee visited me, requesting that I enter the race for mayor, but my answer was 'no' then and I have not changed my mind since then."

L. M. Poole, Republican nominee for Third ward council, and who is unopposed by the Democrats, will face opposition from Charles McNicol, pottery manufacturer, whose friends announced they will write his name on the independent ballot.

George Dawson, special police officer, has been entered as a candidate for Fourth ward councilman, it is reported, opposing George Hughes, Republican, and James Godwin, Democrat. Dawson's name will be written in the independent column.

Another report indicated that Attorney J. H. Brookes, who resigned from the school board early in the fall, will receive complimentary votes for the place today, although he declined to be a candidate. His name, it is said, is being written on the ballot.

C. A. Ferguson, who was appointed to succeed Brookes, and Robert Stevenson, are unopposed for the two boards of education memberships.

State amendments will be the first ballot to be counted after the polls close. The county road bond issue will be the second, after which will come the city ticket and municipal court judgeship.

California—Special election in San Francisco to determine municipal purchase of a street railway.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3.—Despite favorable weather conditions a light vote is being cast throughout Ohio today, according to indications early this afternoon at the offices of Secretary of State Brown.

While voters, apparently, were turning out in good numbers in cities, where warm contests had developed over proposed bond issues, special tax levies and municipal offices, lack of interest prevailed generally in rural districts.

Pittsburgh Goes To Polls.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 3.—Voting for a mayor and five councilmen, Pittsburgh went to the polls today at the conclusion of one of the quietest campaigns in years. Voters were hesitant in the early hours, causing election officials to anticipate a light vote.

Besides the municipal election, a slate of county officers was to be chosen and the state was to elect a superior court judge.

In Pittsburgh the Republicans counted on a plurality of 50,000 for Judge Charles H. Kline, nominee for mayor. Opposing the jurist were W. L. Smith, Prohibitionist, and C. C. Johnson, Democrat.

Hans Wagner, star shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates in former years, stood for election as sheriff on the Labor-Non-Partisan ticket. He was opposed by both Republican and Democrat candidates, however.

Klan Issue in Two Cities.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 3.—Detroit voters, stirred by the Klan issue, went to the polls today to decide one of the hardest fought campaigns in the city's history. A mayor and nine councilmen are to be elected by what is believed will be a record vote.

Mayor John W. Smith and Charles Bowles, an attorney, are opposing each other for the mayoralty office. Mayor Smith charges the Klan with attempting to get control of the city government, while Bowles denies membership in the order.

Fair weather and bitterness between the two factions will bring out a record vote, it is believed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—Voters in a number of Indiana cities trekked to the polls today to elect municipal officials.

Indianapolis was expected to vote John L. Duvall, Republican backed by the Klan, into the mayoral chair, but the fight admittedly will be decidedly close. The personal popularity of Walter Myers spurred Republican leaders to strenuous efforts to defeat him.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—Kansas City was voting today to elect a mayor under a new charter embracing the city manager plan of the government and a bond issue of $26,500,000 for public improvements.

Although, under the new form, politics were supposed to be cast aside, each party had endorsed a candidate. A. I. Beach, incumbent, was backed by the Republican organization and Ben Jaudon, city treasurer, by the Democrats.

Boston's Spectacular Campaign

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—Fair weather and a heavy early vote marked the opening today of the mayoralty election, which came in the wake of an eleventh hour frenzied drive for votes by the 10 candidates in the windup of of one of the most spectacular campaigns in the city's history. Polls opened at 6 a. m. and were scheduled to close at 8 p. m.

Political control of Boston, expenditure of four hundred million dollars in the appropriations and public improvements during the next mayor's four-year term of office and the bearing of the contest next fall between United States Senator William M. Butler and former United States Senator David I. Walsh were the sweepstakes of this year's mayoralty election.

Vote Upon Amendments.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Ohio voters today were voting upon three amendments to the state constitution, most Ohio cities were choosing city officers and townships were electing township officials in the biennial "off-year" election.

Walter F. Brown, long the leader of the Republican party here, is directing the fight for the bond issues and predicts success for most if not all the issues.

Opponents declare that the seuccess of the plan means an average annual increase in taxation of $7 or more. Friends of the proposals say the cost will be from $1.50 to $2.00 annually to the average taxpayer.

Proponents of the bonds point to the example of St. Louis, where $80,000,000 was voted by the people at one time for improvements, and contend that taxes on the increased duplicate bound to follow a modern city will pay the entire cost within the life of the bonds.

feet, is ashed and can be traveled in winter weather if necessary. With a month of good weather, the contractors may complete the job, but this is regarded as improbable.

The contractors have been forced to pay railroad demurrage on several carloads of sand, gravel, cement and other materials for several weeks, because of the inclement weather. These materials have been standing on sidings in Smiths Ferry.

The Beaver county commissioners have awarded the Rinehart firm the contract for filling the approaches to the new highway span across Beaver creek. Material for the fills will be hauled from the upper end of the improvement in traction dump cars.

While the Midland-East Liverpool road is being improved, traffic to Midland, Vanport, Industry, Beaver and other Beaver valley towns will be detoured over what is known as the Tuscarawas road, which goes through Smiths Ferry, up the hill through Ohioville, Esther and follows the ridge into Beaver. This road is unimproved.

Court-Martial Case Adjourns Until Monday.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The army court-martial that is trying Col. William Mitchell for "conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline" decided today to give the flying general ample opportunity to defend himself before finding him guilty.

After promptly over-ruling a motion to dismiss the whole case, which indicated an eventful verdict of guilt, the jury of generals granted him an adjournment until Monday next in order to obtain numerous witnesses through whom Mitchell will endeavor to prove that his charges of "criminal negligence" and "almost treasonable" administration of the army and navy air services were fully justified.

free—after seven years—merely because that slave happened to be of the same religion as the owner. Suppose the slave had the decency to want to stay with his family born in slavery, what would the modern man do?

You wouldn't find many men that would nail his ear to the door, and keep him a slave forever simply because the poor fellow wouldn't leave his wife and children.

We are better than they were in old Bible days, good bishop of Durham. If a modern patriarch turned a slave girl, with his own child, adrift in the desert, to please a jealous old wife, he would not brag about it.

The bishop says the people are committing suicide and generally going wrong because they lack religion.

On the other hand the bishop must remember that some of the most terrible recent suicides have been based on religious frenzy, pushing religion too far.

Aristotle wasn't a Christian, never had a chance to be, for Christianity had not started in his day. Yet there is a great deal of Christian wisdom in his saying: "Not too much, not too little."

We have just now too much of the jazz band, perhaps, too little of the book of Job. A man of real intellect would find in the magnificent writing of Job ten times the inspiration he would find in all the jazz bands of the world combined.

But the bishop must be patient. We have come out of a great war, young people have had a bad example put before them. They have seen the very rich swindling their own government, on a "dollar a year" patriot basis.

They have seen Liberty bonds that they bought at par knocked down to $85 for $100 worth. Then they saw them go above par after the big gentlemen had gathered them in.

They have seen little people conscripted, to be sent out to be gassed and shot, while the more prosperous sat in their swivel chairs, wearing magnificent uniforms, play heroic parts.

Men have been taken from their villages and farms, marched around, bossed and bullied by officers manufactured over night.

Girls have been taken from their homes and put into ammunition factories and in other queer, unfit places. There has been some breaking down of moral fiber.

But the human race hasn't gone to the dogs. Incidentally, if the British bishop were well informed, he would know that there is much more general morality in the United States than there is in Great Britain.

Statistics will prove to him that diseases born of immorality are far more frequent and harmful in Great Britain than in this country.

However, both Great Britain and the United States are all right, fundamentally.

We have within ourselves, as every man can testify, an intense desire to do what is right.

There is not one of us outside of the insane asylum that has any intense desire to do what is wrong. We are driven to wrong, sometimes by our weaknesses, lack of education, poor environment.

But our spirits turn to the light, toward what is good.

We can truly say that we needn't worry about our civilization, our race, or the worries that torment the good bishop of Durham.

HEAVY LOSSES DUE TO THEFTS

Poultry Thieves Active in Various Sections of County.

Columbiana county farmers have lost between $5,000 and $10,000 worth of poultry during the first 10 months of this year through theft, according to reports made known to Sheriff George Wright. Knox township heads the list with a loss of $1,000, farmers of that township assert.

Hardly a week passes but what the office of Sheriff Wright is advised of the theft of from 50 to 100 head of poultry by several different farmers. Clues are hard to obtain, for the reason that trucks are used, and although treads may be traced along dirt roads, as soon as the truck is driven onto a hard surfaced road, all traces of the truck is lost.

That an organized band of chicken thieves is operating in this county is not only the opinion of farmers but also of Sheriff Wright. Poultry thieves have been operating in the night season, and after poultry houses have been robbed, the heads of the poultry are wrung off and the stock cast into the truck.

At times stolen live poultry from this county is sold through a "fence" at Youngstown, but the majority of the stolen poultry is sold as "full dressed" or "hog dressed."

Farmers in Butler township have suffered severe losses, also those in Knox, West, Salem and Center townships. A second poultry robbery has just been reported to Sheriff Wright from the McPherson farm on the Salem-Lisbon road north of Lisbon. At this farm, after the poultry was "lifted" from the poultry houses heads of stock were wrung off and the heads left lying on the road.

A movement has been launched among farmers to form a rural police patrol, under the provisions of an old law operative during the "horse stealing days" and for the same purpose, to shoot thieves. All night watches are now being maintained in some localities of the county.

Over 1,500 head of poultry has been lost to farmers of this county during the last month, and all through theft.

"Lock poultry houses securely," is the warning that has been broadcasted by Sheriff Wright to all farmers. "Attach alarms to all windows and entrances of poultry houses. Where it is possible, wire poultry houses for electricity, with such an alarm system attached so that when any door or window or entrance is opened an alarm will be sounded and the lights switched on. This is a sure cure for the band of poultry thieves," Sheriff Wright warned.

Receivers Discharged.

Receivers who were appointed recently by Judge James G. Moore in the case of the Dollar Savings & Trust company of Youngstown against the Coll-Cochrane company of East Palestine have been discharged by the court. The report of the receivers has been approved and confirmed by the court and the costs in the action have been paid.

Two Men Paroled.

Upon the written recommendation of Justice of the Peace J. O. McCord of West Point, Madison township, the county commissioners have granted a parole to Frank Galla, who was fined $1,000 and costs in the court of Mr. McCord for violating the liquor laws.

Mayor George E. Shaffer of Salem recommended the release of Wilber Shultz, who was sent to the county jail for violating his first parole. Both paroled men have announced their intention to discount remaining fines on a monthly basis.

A marriage license has been issued to Fred H. Hadley, formerly of Cleveland, but now residing in East Liverpool and engaged as a telephone engineer, and Miss Mary Hawkins, formerly of Chicago, Ill., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Hawkins, and now employed as a bookkeeper in East Liverpool.

Howard Rankin of Niles and Miss Olive Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Ward of Salem, but a former resident of Missouri, has been granted a marriage license.

Case Appealed.

After judgment by default in favor of the plaintiff, Charles E. Wymer took an appeal to common pleas court in this action, his appeal bond for $50 being signed by T. W. Walton. The case was filed in the justice of the peace court of Charles W. Powell by Barbara Fowler for $11.59 claimed due for groceries sold.

Home Statistics.

There are 76 males and 36 females now being cared for at the county home, according to the October report just furnished the county commissioners by Supt. John P. Neil. The records show that more people are cared for at this institution during the winter than during the summer season. During October two deaths occurred at the home.

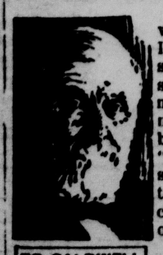
Tells Women to Avoid "Physics"



DR. CALDWELL AT AGE 83

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated women and girls had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, biliousness, sallow skin, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross feverish, sick child gladly takes it.

HEAVY LOSSES DUE TO THEFTS

Poultry Thieves Active in Various Sections of County.

Columbiana county farmers have lost between $5,000 and $10,000 worth of poultry during the first 10 months of this year through theft, according to reports made known to Sheriff George Wright. Knox township heads the list with a loss of $1,000, farmers of that township assert.

Hardly a week passes but what the office of Sheriff Wright is advised of the theft of from 50 to 100 head of poultry by several different farmers. Clues are hard to obtain, for the reason that trucks are used, and although treads may be traced along dirt roads, as soon as the truck is driven onto a hard surfaced road, all traces of the truck is lost.

That an organized band of chicken thieves is operating in this county is not only the opinion of farmers but also of Sheriff Wright. Poultry thieves have been operating in the night season, and after poultry houses have been robbed, the heads of the poultry are wrung off and the stock cast into the truck.

At times stolen live poultry from this county is sold through a "fence" at Youngstown, but the majority of the stolen poultry is sold as "full dressed" or "hog dressed."

Farmers in Butler township have suffered severe losses, also those in Knox, West, Salem and Center townships. A second poultry robbery has just been reported to Sheriff Wright from the McPherson farm on the Salem-Lisbon road north of Lisbon. At this farm, after the poultry was "lifted" from the poultry houses heads of stock were wrung off and the heads left lying on the road.

A movement has been launched among farmers to form a rural police patrol, under the provisions of an old law operative during the "horse stealing days" and for the same purpose, to shoot thieves. All night watches are now being maintained in some localities of the county.

Over 1,500 head of poultry has been lost to farmers of this county during the last month, and all through theft.

"Lock poultry houses securely," is the warning that has been broadcasted by Sheriff Wright to all farmers. "Attach alarms to all windows and entrances of poultry houses. Where it is possible, wire poultry houses for electricity, with such an alarm system attached so that when any door or window or entrance is opened an alarm will be sounded and the lights switched on. This is a sure cure for the band of poultry thieves," Sheriff Wright warned.

Receivers Discharged.

Receivers who were appointed recently by Judge James G. Moore in the case of the Dollar Savings & Trust company of Youngstown against the Coll-Cochrane company of East Palestine have been discharged by the court. The report of the receivers has been approved and confirmed by the court and the costs in the action have been paid.

Two Men Paroled.

Upon the written recommendation of Justice of the Peace J. O. McCord of West Point, Madison township, the county commissioners have granted a parole to Frank Galla, who was fined $1,000 and costs in the court of Mr. McCord for violating the liquor laws.

Mayor George E. Shaffer of Salem recommended the release of Wilber Shultz, who was sent to the county jail for violating his first parole. Both paroled men have announced their intention to discount remaining fines on a monthly basis.

Marriage Licenses.

A marriage license has been issued to Fred H. Hadley, formerly of Cleveland, but now residing in East Liverpool and engaged as a telephone engineer, and Miss Mary Hawkins, formerly of Chicago, Ill., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Hawkins, and now employed as a bookkeeper in East Liverpool.

Howard Rankin of Niles and Miss Olive Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Ward of Salem, but a former resident of Missouri, has been granted a marriage license.

Case Appealed.

After judgment by default in favor of the plaintiff, Charles E. Wymer took an appeal to common pleas court in this action, his appeal bond for $50 being signed by T. W. Walton. The case was filed in the justice of the peace court of Charles W. Powell by Barbara Fowler for $11.59 claimed due for groceries sold.

Home Statistics.

There are 76 males and 36 females now being cared for at the county home, according to the October report just furnished the county commissioners by Supt. John P. Neil. The records show that more people are cared for at this institution during the winter than during the summer season. During October two deaths occurred at the home.

TRAIN SINKS IN GUMBO, FIND OIL

Drilling Crew, Forced to Unload, Makes Strike.

Dallas, Texas.—The opening up of Reagan county, Texas, as a great oil-producing area has furnished one of the most interesting chapters in the history of oil-field developments in this country.

A year or so ago a party of Texas business men obtained from the state authorities leases on many square miles of prairie lands in that county for the purpose of exploiting the acreage for oil. The leases in question were located about 150 miles from the nearest oil production.

After the company had sold stock for about 20 cents a share and raised more money by the formation of an allied organization to which a considerable acreage was assigned the work of drilling a test well in this wildcat territory was undertaken.

A railroad that has been in the hands of receivers for a long time passed through a large section of this property. Believing the railroad was in a hopeless condition, the receivers had petitioned the state authorities for consent to abandon the property, which was in reality a streak of rust, and to sell the rails and other assets as junk. The state railroad commission declined to grant the request.

After loading up several flat cars with derrick timber, casings and other material necessary to drill an oil well, the Pioneer Oil company of Reagan county directed the railroad officials to convey the material to a point along the broken down railroad, from which point the drilling material was to be hauled some miles by horses to a place where it was considered most desirable to start the test well.

After the drilling material had been transported about fifty miles from the loading point the rails began to settle and finally the weight of the locomotive and freight cars caused the roadway to sink in Texas gumbo to the depth of several feet.

Being unable to proceed any farther, the drilling material was unloaded and it was then and there decided to drill on the spot. The well came in a large high-gravity producer. It opened up what is now considered the most promising light oil field in Texas.

Enlarge Welland Canal for Ocean Steamships

New York.—When Canada completes the job of expanding the Welland ship canal, it will offer a channel for vessels of 15,000 tons capacity with lock chambers 820 feet long.

This artificial waterway provides the way for vessels passing between Lake Erie to Lake Ontario "to climb up and down Ningara falls." Canada has already spent $50,000,000 on improvement and plans to spend another $50,000,000 before the work is finished in 1929.

Within five years big ocean steamers can come directly up the lakes to Cleveland, Chicago, Duluth and other important shipping points. The Welland lock chambers, 820 feet long, will admit the passage of almost every type of ocean vessel. The lock chambers of the Panama canal, capable of handling any boat afloat, are only 1,000 feet long.

The near approach of this notable improvement in the Welland canal, the total cost of which is borne by Canada, may prove an incentive to a speedy decision on international plans for the continuation of the seaward route improvement through the canalization of the St. Lawrence river by the United States and Canada.

PLAN TO FIGHT STATE TAX LAW

Manufacturers Light and Gas Company to Wage Battle.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—Counsel for the Manufacturers Light & Gas company of Pittsburgh prepared today to fight the West Virginia gross sales tax law "to the last ditch."

The company has on file in federal court at Charleston a bill of complaint against the gross sales tax law, questioning it constitutionality.

At the office of E. O. Weil, counsel for the firm, it was learned that the chief allegation of the company in attacking the law's constitutionality would be on the grounds that "a tax on the producing and purchasing of gas as measured by gross proceeds derived from the sale of the gas, irrespective of where the gas is delivered, is a tax on the transportation in interstate commerce and a direct burden on commodity transportation."

Weil's office expects the case to come up in federal court at the West Virginia capital in about three or four weeks, the date to be set later by Judge George W. McClintic.

In anticipation of a bitter contest from forces of the state tax commission, the Pittsburgh concern already has begun planning its attack. Should the Charleston court hand down an adverse decision, an appeal will be taken to the United States supreme court.

How to stop BOILS!

There's only one way to stop boils. Stop the cause of boils! That's common sense—isn't it? All right. Boils thrive because the blood gets so weak in healthy, red cells that it can't throw off the impurities that get into the body. There's not enough rich, red blood to purify the system.

Now—S. S. S. builds back the blood to fighting strength. S. S. S. builds red-blood-cells—builds them by the millions! Boils dry up!

S. S. S. is the thing. Impurities that cause boils and other skin eruptions can't stand up against the rich, healthy, red blood that S. S. S. builds. That's all there is to it.

Stop boils with S. S. S. It's the way. Get it at any druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Box Norris

CHAPTER 85.

The star reporter of the Daily News, Sam Sherwood, approached the city editor briskly. "Got a great story, Jack. Charities Union is sore because this Ainsley girl isn't going to have anything to do with the union. A committee of directors called on her today and a break developed. The women almost got to pulling hair, despite Sam Hill Gagley could do to keep them apart. Mrs. Ovid Slaughter razzed the Ainsley girl." "Whew! But wait a minute! It's loaded with dynamite. These Charity Union directors or their husbands are all advertisers, and you know we can't shoot off any fireworks around any of the Ainsleys: Put on the soft petal, and I'll get the boss' O. K. on the story."

"Oh, hell," Sam Sherwood grumbled.

"Yeah, I hate to spoil the story, too. Now run along like a nice boy and maybe papa will buy you an all day sucker," the city editor said, resuming his reading of the latest issue of Crime Mysteries Magazine.

Sherwood, pecking with two fingers, typed his story as he smoked a cigarette, the smoke curling around his eyes so that he blinked as he worked.

"Hope that the new Westland Community House, founded by Miss Amoura Ainsley, would soon become a member of the Charities Union was expressed by directors of the organization today.

"A committee of directors, Mrs. Ovid Slaughter, Mrs. J. G. Stone and Sam Hill Bagley, called on Miss Ainsley today, and after an inspection of the house, expressed to her the desire of the union to have her as a member, co-operating with the union in its work. Miss Ainsley promised co-operation but declined to enter the union at this time, explaining that the Community House was, in her opinion, not strictly a charity.

"At the same time Miss Ainsley announced that the Community House would not solicit funds for maintenance purposes, as do other local organizations."

There was more to Sherwood's story, but these paragraphs are sufficient to indicate its tone.

The members of the committee read the story in the afternoon's News with mixed feelings. Amoura Ainsley did not see the item. She did not go home to dinner that evening, but worked into the night with the dietician and nurses, hot, tired, fretful, preparing for the opening of the house on the morrow.

The plan was for the nurses to visit all the houses in the slum district in turn, informing the women of the purposes of the Community House, and inviting them to attend opening exercises on Mondty of the following week. Each house was to be listed, with the name of occupant and owner, number of rooms, number of occupants, sanitary conveniences, state of condition, and any general information that might be useful. It was intended to keep a card index file history of the residents of the district.

"All of this information we must obtain without giving them the idea we are snooping," Amoura cautioned the staff. "We're not going to uplift anybody against their will. We want to help them, but they must want us to."

It rained the following morning, a chilling, depressing rain that seemed like an ominous warning of what was to follow. Amoura paced from room to room of the house, distrait with a curious restlessness that made her want to leave and do something nerve-racking, like driving an automobile furiously through the rain.

The members of the staff were not excited, but appeared to be bored. The nurses, dismissing any idea of beginning their rounds in the downpour, sat and talked of school days; they had been trained in different hospitals and had much to compare and comment upon. The janitor smoked his pipe beside the furnace and read a newspaper, slow and "hard of hearing," who had been chosen by Amoura from a number of applicants because he was the cleanest in appearance. The dietician alone was busy. She was hammering up new hooks and rearranging untensils in the model kitchen. Her assistant was idly watching her; a glum woman of the district, chosen by Amoura for the role because she believed that this woman, when properly trained, would be better able to tell her Green street sisters how to do things than the collegiate dietician.

"We just thought we'd come an' look aroun'," said one of the callers, speaking for herself and neighbor.

'Come right in and welcome. I'm Miss Ainsley," Her smile faded before their penetrating glances.

"Oh, you was th' lady that was kidnaped, wasn't you?" one of them said, cackling.

Not knowing what to say, Amoura smiled again. "I know you'd like to see the house. Come with me." They followed her silently, regarding her with curious eyes as she explained volubly the purpose of the rooms and the various equipment. With relief, Amoura turned them over to the dietician.

In the afternoon there was a string of callers from the district. For the most part they stared at Amoura, listened silently to what she and the dietician had to say, and departed whispering. A few asked helpful questions.

At 5 o'clock the nurses returned. "We were'nt very welcome anywhere, and some wanted us to prescribe for their ills," both reported, though the two hod worked singly.

Amoura smiled blankly. "I'm going home now. I don't think I'll come down this evening. If no one come in after dinner—their supper—let the janitor close up early. Good night." She left shivering. It was in her mind to walk home, but at a corner a group of men stared at her so that she quickened he pace and turned to Main street to get a taxicab. Without saying whether she was going to have dinner, she went directly to her room and crumpled upon the bed, a weeping, disillusioned figure.

The company has on file in federal court at Charleston a bill of complaint against the gross sales tax law, questioning it constitutionality.

At the office of E. O. Weil, counsel for the firm, it was learned that the chief allegation of the company in attacking the law's constitutionality would be on the grounds that "a tax on the producing and purchasing of gas as measured by gross proceeds derived from the sale of the gas, irrespective of where the gas is delivered, is a tax on the transportation in interstate commerce and a direct burden on commodity transportation."

Weil's office expects the case to come up in federal court at the West Virginia capital in about three or four weeks, the date to be set later by Judge George W. McClintic.

In anticipation of a bitter contest from forces of the state tax commission, the Pittsburgh concern already has begun planning its attack. Should the Charleston court hand down an adverse decision, an appeal will be taken to the United States supreme court.

How to stop BOILS!

There's only one way to stop boils. Stop the cause of boils! That's common sense—isn't it? All right. Boils thrive because the blood gets so weak in healthy, red cells that it can't throw off the impurities that get into the body. There's not enough rich, red blood to purify the system.

Now—S. S. S. builds back the blood to fighting strength. S. S. S. builds red-blood-cells—builds them by the millions! Boils dry up!

S. S. S. is the thing. Impurities that cause boils and other skin eruptions can't stand up against the rich, healthy, red blood that S. S. S. builds. That's all there is to it.

Stop boils with S. S. S. It's the way. Get it at any druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Poe Norris

CHAPTER 85.

The star reporter of the Daily News, Sam Sherwood, approached the city editor briskly. "Get a great story, Jack. Charities Union is sore because this Ainsley girl isn't going to have anything to do with the union. A committee of directors called on her today and a break developed. The women almost got to pulling hair, despite Sam Hill Gagley could do to keep them apart. Mrs. Ovid Slaughter razzed the Ainsley girl." "Whew! But wait a minute! It's loaded with dynamite. These Charity Union directors or their husbands are all advertisers, and you know we can't shoot off any fireworks around any of the Ainsleys: Put on the soft petal, and I'll get the boss' O. K. on the story."

"Oh, hell," Sam Sherwood grumbled.

"Yeah, I hate to spoil the story, too. Now run along like a nice boy and maybe papa will buy you an all day sucker," the city editor said, resuming his reading of the latest issue of Crime Mysteries Magazine.

Sherwood, pecking with two fingers, typed his story as he smoked a cigarette, the smoke curling around his eyes so that he blinked as he worked.

"Hope that the new Westland Community House, founded by Miss Amoura Ainsley, would soon become a member of the Charities Union was expressed by directors of the organization today.

"A committee of directory, Mrs. Ovid Slaughter, Mrs. J. G. Stone and Sam Hill Bagley, called on Miss Ainsley today, and after an inspection of the house, expressed to her the desire of the union to have her as a member, co-operating with the union in its work. Miss Ainsley promised co-operation but declined to enter the union at this time, explaining that the Community House was, in her opinion, not strictly a charity.

"At the same time Miss Ainsley announced that the Community House would not solicit funds for maintenance purposes, as do other local organizations."

There was more to Sherwood's story, but these paragraphs are sufficient to indicate its tone.

The members of the committee read the story in the afternoon's News with mixed feelings. Amoura Ainsley did not see the item. She did not go home to dinner that evening, but worked into the night with the dietician and nurses, hot, tired, fretful, preparing for the opening of the house on the morrow.

The plan was for the nurses to visit all the houses in the slum district in turn, informing the women of the purposes of the Community House, and inviting them to attend opening exercises on Mondty of the following week. Each house was to be listed, with the name of occupant and owner, number of rooms, number of occupants, sanitary conveniences, state of condition, and any general information that might be useful. It was intended to keep a card index file history of the residents of the district.

"All of this information we must obtain without giving them the idea we are snooping," Amoura cautioned the staff. "We're not going to uplift anybody against their will. We want to help them, but they must want us to."

It rained the following morning, a chilling, depressing rain that seemed like an ominous warning of what was to follow. Amoura paced from room to room of the house, distrait with a curious restlessness that made her want to leave and do something nerve-racking, like driving an automobile furiously through the rain.

The members of the staff were not excited, but appeared to be bored. The nurses, dismissing any idea of beginning their rounds in the downpour, sat and talked of school days; they had been trained in different hospitals and had much to compare and comment upon. The janitor smoked his pipe beside the furnace and read a newspaper, slow and "hard of hearing," who had been chosen by Amoura from a number of applicants because he was the cleanest in appearance. The dietician alone was busy. She was hammering up new hooks and rearranging untensils in the model kitchen. Her assistant was idly watching her; a glum woman of the district, chosen by Amoura for the role because she believed that this woman, when properly trained, would be better able to tell her Green street sisters how to do things than the collegiate dietician.

"We just thought we'd come an' look aroun'," said one of the callers, speaking for herself and neighbor.

'Come right in and welcome. I'm Miss Ainsley." Her smile faded before their penetrating glances.

"Oh, you was th' lady that was kidnaped, wasn't you?" one of them said, cackling.

Not knowing what to say, Amoura smiled again. "I know you'd like to see the house. Come with me." They followed her silently, regarding her with curious eyes as she explained volubly the purpose of the rooms and the various equipment. With relief, Amoura turned them over to the dietician.

In the afternoon there was a string of callers from the district. For the most part they stared at Amoura, listened silently to what she and the dietician had to say, and departed whispering. A few asked helpful questions.

At 5 o'clock the nurses returned. "We were'nt very welcome anywhere, and some wanted us to prescribe for their ills," both reported, though the two had worked singly.

Amoura smiled blankly. "I'm going home now. I don't think I'll come down this evening. If no one come in after dinner—their supper—let the janitor close up early. Good night." She left shivering. It was in her mind to walk home, but at a corner a group of men stared at her so that she quickened he pace and turned to Main street to get a taxicab. Without saying whether she was going to have dinner, she went directly to her room and crumpled upon the bed, a weeping, disillusioned figure.

NASH
Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value

AGAIN!
OFFERS GREATER VALUE

July 23rd Nash introduced new models—by long odds the finest motor cars Nash ever built.

These new models presented new and uniquely original body designs, far-reaching improvements in construction, and many notable refinements in engineering and equipment—all at far greater manufacturing cost.

BUT—NASH DID NOT INCREASE PRICES!

NOW!
PRICES REDUCED

Reductions up to $300

The above price reductions are effective November 1st on exactly these same models.

It is possible to make such price reductions only because of the tremendous volume of sales inspired by the manifestly GREATER QUALITY and GREATER VALUE of the Nash product.

In the first 3 months these cars have been on the market the total sales have more than equaled one-half the sales for the entire year of 1924.

70,000 MAY SEE STATE-ILLINOIS

Clash Will be Grange's Last in Big Ten Conference.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3. — A throng that seems certain to reach 70,000 and may even eclipse the assemblage which witnessed the dedication of the stadium three years ago, already appears assured for the Ohio State-Illinois football conflict here November 21.

While they are confident of an eventful sell-out for the game, Ohio State athletic officials today were mystified by reports reaching them from various parts of the middle west that no more tickets were available.

The ticket sale to date, H. D. Taylor, dispenser of ducats, explained, is somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000. Considering that the number of permanent seats in the stadium is 64,000, and the emergency capacity much greater than that, it is a simple matter of arithmetic to see how much room is left.

Interest in the game with Illinois is heightened since it is the annual homecoming affray, by the fact that it will mark the final appearance of "Red" Grange as a player in Western Conference football, and, naturally, as a result of Ohio State's improved showing this year.

If the Illinois game throng should reach 70,000 it would be one of the three greatest crowds in Big Ten history to date. Ohio State also entertained both the other crowds. The attendance at the dedication game in 1922 was 73,000, while that at the homecoming melee with Michigan last fall was about 69,000.

MOUNTS DISPLAY REAL OFFENSE

ALLIANCE, Nov. 3.—The two things in connection with Mount's 32 to 0 victory over Case last Saturday most pleasing to Coach Jack Thorpe were that for the first time this season his proteges showed real offensive power and that the team came out of the contest with no injuries to handicap them for this week's program. The high lights of the game were the open field running of Mills and Labor, while the punting and bucking of Fullback "Army" Armstrong were up to his usual high standard, and the quarterback, Wilcoxen, showed increased efficiency in running back punts. Captain Ball and Klippert, tackles, maintained their reputation of being two of the best defensive men in Mount's history, and Center Burkle was everywhere during the game, upsetting the plays of the opponents.

Miami comes to Mount Union Saturday as guest for the annual homecoming. Coach Thorpe realizes that the visitors are a formidable foe with a perfect record in the Ohio Conference until Denison took their measure at Dayton last week. The scouts report that they have an unusually fast set of backs and ends. With the return of McElroy to the Mount lineup, the Mount mentor will be able to send his full strength against the down staters, and a great game is assured the old grads and former students.

Most men tell their wives everything even if they don't know it.—Defiance Crescent News.

"Touchdown for Touchdown" Demands Harvard

Harvard, still smarting under the 34 to 0 defeat at the hands of Princeton last year, wants revenge—34 points of it—when the teams meet at Princeton, N. J., Nov. 7. Photo above is a glimpse of last year's massacre. Slagle of Princeton has just tossed a forward pass to Le Gendre, who is scoring a touchdown on the play. Inset are the Harvard captain and one of Princeton's stars.

MOORE'S ELECTION IN JERSEY MAY CAUSE RING CODE CHANGES

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—According to the official megaphone man of the Harry Wills menage, much that is momentous will hang upon the manner in which the political cat jumps in the New Jersey elections today. Probably consequences, it is said, of a return to power by the so-called "old guard" include a proposed change in the state boxing code and an attempt to bid in the Dempsey-Wills match by negotiation with that South Bend, Ind., syndicate, of which one hears much but sees little.

All that the boys need, it seems, is the election of A. Harry Moore as governor of the state. They can then begin firing without waiting to see the whites of anyone's eyes and, at the first volley, the present boxing law in Jersey is supposed to take one full on the chin.

While they are sweeping up the debris, an amendment to the law will be made, it is said, changing state control of boxing from a one-man proposition to the commission form of government. Then the Dempsey-Wills negotiations are supposed to follow.

Credence might be given the report for the reason that Moore is Frank Hague's candidate and Frank was the gentleman whose political connections made the Dempsey-Carpentier business possible. The only money lost by anyone that day was lost by those who paid scalpers $200 for tickets, entitling holders to peep through the armpit of the enthusiast immediately in front.

New Jersey politicians, therefore, would like to try it again.

Their idea, if any, that the South Bend parties can be bought out means that Jersey has taken certain reports very seriously. These were to the effect that middle western money to swing the deal has turned up missing and that the would-be promoters wish to "peddle" their proposition elsewhere.

This, if true, would give Jersey its chance, provided Dempsey is willing to be "sold" along with South Bend's interest in the proceedings. That is a doubtful point. The champion, in fact, probably would insist upon disposing of his own immediate future as he saw fit, with special reference to guarantees and what not.

Jack's guarantee could not be in keeping with his self-valuation, if only for the fact that the Jersey law permits the customers to be harpooned for no more than $25 for the best tickets. But perhaps the alleged amendment will carry a "rider" to take care of that embarrassing provision. They catch the buck early in Jersey, you know. Also the doe, or dough, just as you see it.

Raise Level of Entire English Town Five Feet

Northwich, England. — Shifting houses bodily several miles and towns some yards along the level has often been done, but raising a whole town five feet is something new.

This is claimed to have been accomplished by the surveyor of this town in just under three years.

The entire business portion of Northwich, including ten streets, three banks, the county court and 200 stores and houses, have been raised to counteract the effect of subsidence caused by the brine pumping which proceeds continually in the salt mines under the town.

There has been no stoppage of business and only eight buildings have had to be demolished because they could not be safely lifted.

In raising operations, parts of the lower brickwork were removed and small hydraulic jacks inserted. Chemists' stores were lifted so carefully that not one bottle was disturbed.

The town bridge was raised five feet at each end to bring it up to the new level of the town.

More Oranges, Fewer Grapefruit, Tangerines

Washington.—A preliminary estimate of the orange crop in Florida by the United States Department of Agriculture indicates 10,900,000 boxes, excluding tangerines, for 1925-26, or about 600,000 boxes more than the revised estimate of the crop last year.

Tangerine production is placed at 600,000 boxes, or 100,000 less than last year, and grapefruit, 7,500,000 boxes, or 700,000 less than last year.

The total preliminary estimate for citrus fruits is 19,000,000 boxes, compared with a revised estimate of 19,200,000 boxes last year. These estimates are of the commercial car lot and express movement, and exclude the usual loss from drops.

Decreased production of grapefruit is attributed to light and spotted setting of fruit, and to the fact that there will be more over-sized fruit than usual. Unless market conditions are such that the large sizes can be shipped and sold, they will either move by truck or be lost from dropping, the department says.

Colored Light System to Warn French Solons

Paris.—Members of the French chamber of deputies, when they reassemble after the vacation, will find installed a useful innovation. Twenty-two tape-machines are being placed in different parts of the building, each equipped with red, blue, green and yellow lights for conveying messages to deputies and journalists. Thus it will be possible for all to know what is taking place at any time.

In the French chamber, no means has hitherto been provided whereby a deputy or minister might know, without going to see, what was transpiring in the tribune. Consequently "surprise votes" often have been tallied.

Minorities, taking advantage of this lack, have sometimes been able to muster beforehand and carry the day. Many queer situations have developed. On one occasion a vote of confidence in the government, proposed by an unwary minister who had failed to note the absence of most of his supporters resulted in a vote of no confidence.

This sort of thing cannot occur under the new arrangement. A red light will indicate a vote, so that deputies may hurry back to their places.

Whenever a teacher expresses his gratitude for seeing "so many shining faces" in school, the girls immediately get busy with their powder puffs. —Zanesville Signal.

Reserve Eleven Will Try to Shake Oberlin From Its Perch

Days of Tandem Bucks, The Portmans, Cripps Terrill and Others, Say Clevelanders Whipped Congregationalists Frequently, But in The Last Decade Only The Memory Has Remained.

By Stanley D. Koch.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Back in the days when Cleveland was more truly the forest than the fifth city and when college styles included wide pegged trousers, a soft hat with a match stuck in the brim and the proverbial bull dog, the football teams from Western Reserve used to mix up with the Oberlin elevens of that period in battles that rumbled the whole state.

Those were the days when "Muff" and "Doc" Portman, Cripps, Tommy Terrill and Ray Barney, wore red and white. While Glen Gray, Pyle and Metcalf sported gold "O's" on crimson sweaters. Those were the days when the tandem bucks were patterned after pile drivers and the flying wedge flew high. Those, too, were the days when touchdowns counted five points and ambulances scurried on and off the field. And in that halcyon era, Western Reserve had a fairly consistent habit of beating Oberlin more times than she was defeated by the Congregationalists.

But in the past decade, only that memory has remained—at least with any regularity. This week-end, another Reserve team bumps up against another Oberlin outfit at Oberlin. The latter is tied for first place in the Ohio conference race. It hasn't been defeated this year, although Mt. Union played it a scoreless tie. And the Crimson and Gold followers are sighting another championship in the offing.

Western Reserve, on the other hand, has had a freak reason, looking good and bad with the majority in favor of the bad. But that intangible college spirit that inspires a team to play way over its head in a crucial game, seemingly in honor of its more noteworthy predecessors, is running rampant on the Reserve campus.

Oberlin is a smooth running, hard tackling eleven, so characteristic of Crimson and Gold teams. That team has been trained to go into a game with a methodical plan and purpose of winning and then, except against Mt. Union, it has followed out its instructions. So, all in all, it looks like a whale of a battle Saturday.

At Cincinnati, the undefeated St. Xavier crew meets Akron. At present, the Saints look like the one and only bet to defeat Ohio Wesleyan, who is encountered a few weeks later, but to justify that belief, the Saints must wallop Akron this week. Coach Coleman's eleven is an in-and-outer, and its only a reasonable guess than this week will be another "outer" week. Xavier's neat football in winning the Kenyon game has stamped Coach Myer's team as dangerous and if Akron can be overcome, all will hinge on the Wesleyan contest.

Another good scrap is carded for Alliance when Miami meets Mt. Union. The Mounts overwhelmed Cast last week, showing all kinds of stuff, while Miami dropped a 6-0 game to Denison, thereby giving all the dopesters a sudden and devastating shock. However, should the same Oxford squad that annihilated Wittenberg, 30-0, function as such, the Mounts will be beaten. But, it will take all of that early season form to defeat Coach Thorpe's eleven.

Denison, elated with the outcome of the Miami scrap takes on another tough nut in Muskingum at Granville. The Muskies are a regular aggregation this year and the Big Red will be forced to play its string to the full to defeat them. Last week, saw the Denison forwards showing extremely well and this week needs a repetition in addition to more power from the Granville backs.

At Springfield, Wittenberg and Cincinnati hook up, with the Lutherans giving the shade.

Having successfully overcome the inertia of losing the first three games, Baldwin-Wallace has swung into a winning stride, apparently unstoppable. This week-end, Otterbein is met Westerville and the United at Westerville and the United Brethren will need more than a spiritual bond to hold the line intact against Lisse and his coworkers. The Berea team is a pleasant surprise this season and should be a fairly easy winner.

Kenyon, despite the loss to St. Xavier, is hoping for the best, which means that some eleven will defeat Wesleyan. Oberlin and St. Xavier, which will still give the Gambierites a chance for the title. This week, Kenyon will have the pleasure of defeating Hiram at Gambier and unless all the edifices of football prophecy come tumbling down, this will obtain.

Two .333 teams meet at Cleveland when Case and Ohio Northern play. Over-confidence is blamed for the Norsemen's defeat at the hands of Ohio university, while sheer inability is the reason for Case's 32-0 defeat by Mt. Union. Mark your own ticket on this game, but the dope points to Ohio Northern.

In the two non-conference games, the Ohio Wesleyan-Syracuse contest at Syracuse is obviously the bigger. The undefeated, unscored-on Syracuse eleven will undoubtedly win, but Wesleyan can be counted on to do itself justice. In the other battle, Ohio university meets Marietta at Athens and may take a beating.

Call Out Floor Squad.

ATHENS, O., Nov. 3.—A call for baseball candidates for the Ohio University team has been issued by Coach B. T. Grover. Suits will be given out and a short practice session will be held. Practice will be held daily this week. Varsity men from last year include Captain Wright, Sayres, Muir, Longley, King, Beckwith, Kennard, Wise and Eisenbrey. Several promising players from the freshman squad of last year will report.

Two Industrial Duckpin records were broken and third endangered when Taylor, Smith and Taylor bowlers cleaned up last night on the American Express in a three-game series at the Liberty alleys.

Canne, of the T. S. T. five, in the second game shot a 188 and topped Art Smith's 166 by 22 pins. Smith was high during the first week of the pin competition.

In the other two games Canne rolled 126 and 141, respectively, and, as a result, compiled a 455 total for the series which considerably shades the 424 marks rolled by Oliver and Ashbaugh last week.

The Chesterites lacked 20 pins of reaching the 1818 high series team total rolled last week by the Smith News.

As a result of their triple victory the T. S. T. outfit moves into second place in the league standing today, ousting K. T. K.

MUSICIAN ALSO FOOTBALL STAR

Clarence Elder, leader of the Steamer Washington orchestra, which will play at the Eagles' home during the winter, is an ex college grid player of some repute.

Elder's home is in Iowa, but he played at Westminster college at Fulton, Mo., in the Missouri valley conference, starring as a tackle in 1920. His great bulk—he will scale more than 200—combined with natural ability, made enemy ground gaining through his side of the line a precarious pastime.

And, too, he could almost pose as a double for Babe Ruth, both in size and facial features.

Lehigh to Play Out Schedule; is Wish Of Former Quarter

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 3.—Following the wishes of Charles Prior, former quarterback for the Lehigh university football eleven, who died last Sunday from injuries received in the game with West Virginia Wesleyan fifteen days ago, the athletic varsity council has decided to play the remaining football games on its schedule this season.

Last Night's Fights

At Cuolmbus—Shifty Dando, Dayton lightweight, defeated Bud Christiano, 12 rounds. Jackie Mellman, 132, defeated Vic Ross, Cincinnati, 132, 8 rounds. Lou Bloom, Columbus bantamweight, drew at end of 8 rounds with Cooper Pence, Cincinnati. Ray Meyers outpointed Jimmie O'Hara, lightweights, 4 rounds.

Brooklyn—Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchell Field, L. I., got the decision over Georgie Levine, California, ten rounds. Eddie Anderson, Wyoming, knocked out Joey Kaufman, Brooklyn, seventh round.

New York — Maxey Rosenbloom, New York, knocked out Joe Silvani, New York, ninth round.

LEETONIA GAME IS NOT NEEDED TO LAND TITLE

Highs, by Beating East Palestine Saturday Can Bring Back County Championship to Ceramic City; Brown and White Record Shows Early Season 6-6 Tie With North County Outfit.

If East Liverpool high school gridders and football mathematics run true to form next Saturday at East Palestine, it will make no difference, so far as the Ceramic City eleven's championship hopes are concerned, if there is no game played with Leetonia this year.

A victory for the Boone outfit Saturday over the Brown and White will clinch the championship.

Here's the reason: Early in the season East Palestine defeated Columbiana, which this year had little chance to figure in the title running, and only a short time later played a 6-6 tie with Leetonia. Salem walloped the East Palestine outfit two weeks ago and Saturday Boone's gridders won decisively from Salem. This "arithmetic," in itself, would practically insure the return of the championship to East Liverpool, but the Ceramic City representatives can make it more emphatic by winning from East Palestine on the coming Saturday.

Efforts were made by Coach Boone and Leetonia school athletic directors to schedule the annual meeting between the two schools, but proposed dates on one schedule conflicted with dates on the other and nothing definite has been done yet with the season now headed down the home stretch.

It is understood that a Thanksgiving day date was tentatively discussed but no action one way or another wastaken on this proposal.

Captain Paul English, of the high school squad, until Saturday held a monopoly on haberdashery hung up by the Hub and Dick Bryan as prizes for touchdowns against opposing teams.

A week ago the Hub offered a sweater and Bryan a silk shirt, both of which were copped by English. Saturday, following the Salem tilt, English split with Heddleston on a slicker given by the Hub and a scarf by Bryan.

Over at Providence, R. I., athletic officials Saturday will take the matter of football rules in their own hands for the day when Boston plays Brown. The stop watch method of time will be discarded and the game run on a basis of 40 plays per period. They contend that the 15 minute quarter system is of no benefit save to the team that scores first and can use up time by legitimate delays in order to minimize scoring chances by opponents.

Only one eastern eleven, Syracuse, retains an uncrossed goal line following Saturday's engagements. Cornell permitted 14 Columbia points, while Bucknell and New York went down before Holy Cross and Fordham, respectively. Ten eastern football elevens remain unbeaten. Penn, Army and Navy are now numbered among the has-beens.

Tonight.
Laughlin 1 vs Hall China.

Two Industrial Duckpin records were broken and third endangered when Taylor, Smith and Taylor bowlers cleaned up last night on the American Express in a three-game series at the Liberty alleys.

Canne, of the T. S. T. five, in the second game shot a 188 and topped Art Smith's 166 by 22 pins. Smith was high during the first week of the pin competition.

In the other two games Canne rolled 126 and 141, respectively, and, as a result, compiled a 455 total for the series which considerably shades the 424 marks rolled by Oliver and Ashbaugh last week.

The Chesterites lacked 20 pins of reaching the 1818 high series team total rolled last week by the Smith News.

As a result of their triple victory the T. S. T. outfit moves into second place in the league standing today, ousting K. T. K.

MUSICIAN ALSO FOOTBALL STAR

Clarence Elder, leader of the Steamer Washington orchestra, which will play at the Eagles' home during the winter, is an ex college grid player of some repute.

Elder's home is in Iowa, but he played at Westminster college at Fulton, Mo., in the Missouri valley conference, starring as a tackle in 1920. His great bulk—he will scale more than 200—combined with natural ability, made enemy ground gaining through his side of the line a precarious pastime.

And, too, he could almost pose as a double for Babe Ruth, both in size and facial features.

Lehigh to Play Out Schedule; is Wish Of Former Quarter

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 3.—Following the wishes of Charles Prior, former quarterback for the Lehigh university football eleven, who died last Sunday from injuries received in the game with West Virginia Wesleyan fifteen days ago, the athletic varsity council has decided to play the remaining football games on its schedule this season.

Last Night's Fights

At Cuolmbus—Shifty Dando, Dayton lightweight, defeated Bud Christiano, 12 rounds. Jackie Mellman, 132, defeated Vic Ross, Cincinnati, 132, 8 rounds. Lou Bloom, Columbus bantamweight, drew at end of 8 rounds with Cooper Pence, Cincinnati. Ray Meyers outpointed Jimmie O'Hara, lightweights, 4 rounds.

Brooklyn—Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchell Field, L. I., got the decision over Georgie Levine, California, ten rounds. Eddie Anderson, Wyoming, knocked out Joey Kaufman, Brooklyn, seventh round.

New York — Maxey Rosenbloom, New York, knocked out Joe Silvani, New York, ninth round.

Highs, by Beating East Palestine Saturday Can Bring Back County Championship to Ceramic City; Brown and White Record Shows Early Season 6-6 Tie With North County Outfit.

If East Liverpool high school gridders and football mathematics run true to form next Saturday at East Palestine, it will make no difference, so far as the Ceramic City eleven's championship hopes are concerned, if there is no game played with Leetonia this year.

A victory for the Boone outfit Saturday over the Brown and White will clinch the championship.

Here's the reason: Early in the season East Palestine defeated Columbiana, which this year had little chance to figure in the title running, and only a short time later played a 6-6 tie with Leetonia. Salem walloped the East Palestine outfit two weeks ago and Saturday Boone's gridders won decisively from Salem. This "arithmetic," in itself, would practically insure the return of the championship to East Liverpool, but the Ceramic City representatives can make it more emphatic by winning from East Palestine on the coming Saturday.

Efforts were made by Coach Boone and Leetonia school athletic directors to schedule the annual meeting between the two schools, but proposed dates on one schedule conflicted with dates on the other and nothing definite has been done yet with the season now headed down the home stretch.

It is understood that a Thanksgiving day date was tentatively discussed but no action one way or another wastaken on this proposal.

Captain Paul English, of the high school squad, until Saturday held a monopoly on haberdashery hung up by the Hub and Dick Bryan as prizes for touchdowns against opposing teams.

A week ago the Hub offered a sweater and Bryan a silk shirt, both of which were copped by English. Saturday, following the Salem tilt, English split with Heddleston on a slicker given by the Hub and a scarf by Bryan.

Over at Providence, R. I., athletic officials Saturday will take the matter of football rules in their own hands for the day when Boston plays Brown. The stop watch method of time will be discarded and the game run on a basis of 40 plays per period. They contend that the 15 minute quarter system is of no benefit save to the team that scores first and can use up time by legitimate delays in order to minimize scoring chances by opponents.

Only one eastern eleven, Syracuse, retains an uncrossed goal line following Saturday's engagements. Cornell permitted 14 Columbia points, while Bucknell and New York went down before Holy Cross and Fordham, respectively. Ten eastern football elevens remain unbeaten. Penn, Army and Navy are now numbered among the has-beens.

70,000 MAY SEE STATE-ILLINOIS

Clash Will be Grange's Last in Big Ten Conference.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3. — A throng that seems certain to reach 70,000 and may even eclipse the assemblage which witnessed the dedication of the stadium three years ago, already appears assured for the Ohio State-Illinois football conflict here November 21.

While they are confident of an eventful sell-out for the game, Ohio State athletic officials today were mystified by reports reaching them from various parts of the middle west that no more tickets were available.

The ticket sale to date, H. D. Taylor, dispenser of ducats, explained, is somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000. Considering that the number of permanent seats in the stadium is 64,000, and the emergency capacity much greater than that, it is a simple matter of arithmetic to see how much room is left.

Interest in the game with Illinois is heightened since it is the annual homecoming affray, by the fact that it will mark the final appearance of "Red" Grange as a player in Western Conference football, and, naturally, as a result of Ohio State's improved showing this year.

If the Illinois game throng should reach 70,000 it would be one of the three greatest crowds in Big Ten history to date. Ohio State also entertained both the other crowds. The attendance at the dedication game in 1922 was 73,000, while that at the homecoming melee with Michigan last fall was about 69,000.

MOUNTS DISPLAY REAL OFFENSE

ALLIANCE, Nov. 3.—The two things in connection with Mount's 32 to 0 victory over Case last Saturday most pleasing to Coach Jack Thorpe were that for the first time this season his proteges showed real offensive power and that the team came out of the contest with no injuries to handicap them for this week's program. The high lights of the game were the open field running of Mills and Labor, while the punting and bucking of Fullback "Army" Armstrong were up to his usual high standard, and the quarterback, Wilcoxen, showed increased efficiency in running back punts. Captain Ball and Klippert, tackles, maintained their reputation of being two of the best defensive men in Mount's history, and Center Burkle was everywhere during the game, upsetting the plays of the opponents.

Miami comes to Mount Union Saturday as guest for the annual homecoming. Coach Thorpe realizes that the visitors are a formidable foe with a perfect record in the Ohio Conference until Denison took their measure at Dayton last week. The scouts report that they have an unusually fast set of backs and ends. With the return of McElroy to the Mount lineup, the Mount mentor will be able to send his full strength against the down staters, and a great game is assured the old grads and former students.

Most men tell their wives everything even if they don't know it.—Defiance Crescent News.

"Touchdown for Touchdown" Demands Harvard

Harvard, still smarting under the 34 to 0 defeat at the hands of Princeton last year, wants revenge—34 points of it—when the teams meet at Princeton, N. J., Nov. 7. Photo above is a glimpse of last year's massacre. Slagle of Princeton has just tossed a forward pass to Le Gendre, who is scoring a touchdown on the play. Inset are the Harvard captain and one of Princeton's stars.

MOORE'S ELECTION IN JERSEY MAY CAUSE RING CODE CHANGES

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—According to the official megaphone man of the Harry Wills menage, much that is momentous will hang upon the manner in which the political cat jumps in the New Jersey elections today. Probably consequences, it is said, of a return to power by the so-called "old guard" include a proposed change in the state boxing code and an attempt to bid in the Dempsey-Wills match by negotiation with that South Bend, Ind., syndicate, of which one hears much but sees little.

All that the boys need, it seems, is the election of A. Harry Moore as governor of the state. They can then begin firing without waiting to see the whites of anyone's eyes and, at the first volley, the present boxing law in Jersey is supposed to take one full on the chin.

While they are sweeping up the debris, an amendment to the law will be made, it is said, changing state control of boxing from a one-man proposition to the commission form of government. Then the Dempsey-Wills negotiations are supposed to follow.

Credence might be given the report for the reason that Moore is Frank Hague's candidate and Frank was the gentleman whose political connections made the Dempsey-Carpentier business possible. The only money lost by anyone that day was lost by those who paid scalpers $200 for tickets, entitling holders to peep through the armpit of the enthusiast immediately in front.

New Jersey politicians, therefore, would like to try it again.

Their idea, if any, that the South Bend parties can be bought out means that Jersey has taken certain reports very seriously. These were to the effect that middle western money to swing the deal has turned up missing and that the would-be promoters wish to "peddle" their proposition elsewhere.

This, if true, would give Jersey its chance, provided Dempsey is willing to be "sold" along with South Bend's interest in the proceedings. That is a doubtful point. The champion, in fact, probably would insist upon disposing of his own immediate future as he saw fit, with special reference to guarantees and what not.

Jack's guarantee could not be in keeping with his self-valuation, if only for the fact that the Jersey law permits the customers to be harpooned for no more than $25 for the best tickets. But perhaps the alleged amendment will carry a "rider" to take care of that embarrassing provision. They catch the buck early in Jersey, you know. Also the doe, or dough, just as you see it.

Northwich, England. — Shifting houses bodily several miles and towns some yards along the level has often been done, but raising a whole town five feet is something new.

This is claimed to have been accomplished by the surveyor of this town in just under three years.

The entire business portion of Northwich, including ten streets, three banks, the county court and 200 stores and houses, have been raised to counteract the effect of subsidence caused by the brine pumping which proceeds continually in the salt mines under the town.

There has been no stoppage of business and only eight buildings have had to be demolished because they could not be safely lifted.

In raising operations, parts of the lower brickwork were removed and small hydraulic jacks inserted. Chemists' stores were lifted so carefully that not one bottle was disturbed.

The town bridge was raised five feet at each end to bring it up to the new level of the town.

More Oranges, Fewer Grapefruit, Tangerines

Washington.—A preliminary estimate of the orange crop in Florida by the United States Department of Agriculture indicates 10,900,000 boxes, excluding tangerines, for 1925-26, or about 600,000 boxes more than the revised estimate of the crop last year.

Tangerine production is placed at 600,000 boxes, or 100,000 less than last year, and grapefruit, 7,500,000 boxes, or 700,000 less than last year.

The total preliminary estimate for citrus fruits is 19,000,000 boxes, compared with a revised estimate of 19,200,000 boxes last year. These estimates are of the commercial car lot and express movement, and exclude the usual loss from drops.

Decreased production of grapefruit is attributed to light and spotted setting of fruit, and to the fact that there will be more over-sized fruit than usual. Unless market conditions are such that the large sizes can be shipped and sold, they will either move by truck or be lost from dropping, the department says.

Colored Light System to Warn French Solons

Paris.—Members of the French chamber of deputies, when they reassemble after the vacation, will find installed a useful innovation. Twenty-two tape-machines are being placed in different parts of the building, each equipped with red, blue, green and yellow lights for conveying messages to deputies and journalists. Thus it will be possible for all to know what is taking place at any time.

In the French chamber, no means has hitherto been provided whereby a deputy or minister might know, without going to see, what was transpiring in the tribune. Consequently "surprise votes" often have been tallied.

Minorities, taking advantage of this lack, have sometimes been able to muster beforehand and carry the day. Many queer situations have developed. On one occasion a vote of confidence in the government, proposed by an unwary minister who had failed to note the absence of most of his supporters resulted in a vote of no confidence.

This sort of thing cannot occur under the new arrangement. A red light will indicate a vote, so that deputies may hurry back to their places.

Whenever a teacher expresses his gratitude for seeing "so many shining faces" in school, the girls immediately get busy with their powder puffs. —Zanesville Signal.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

What would you do if you wanted to get a passport, or stop your shoes from squeaking, or build a chicken-coop, or found a hospital, or preserve persimmons, or become a diplomat—and you didn't know how? Suppose you wanted to know why the sun looks large at sunset, or the cost of living in South America, or the total exports of the United States last year, or the income of the Rockefeller Foundation, or who wrote "Silver Threads Among the Gold?" Our Washington Information Bureau has answered every one of these questions and many other and more difficult ones. It maintains a big staff of experts and correspondents whose business it is merely to answer questions—your questions. This service is free. Send in your question together with a two cent stamp to cover the return postage. Address The East Liverpool Review & Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q. Do men or women think more quickly when driving an automobile and an emergency arises? C. S.

A. According to tests recently made by Dr. F. A. Moss of George Washington University and H. H. Allen of the United States Bureau of Standards in which 25 men and 10 women were put through a series of tests it was found that the average reaction time of the women was 0.56 seconds and that of the men 0.59 seconds, and the average variability of the women 0.17 seconds and that of the men 0.22 seconds.

Q. What American birds can be kept in cages? Y. McK.

A. The Biological Survey says that no native birds are allowed to be kept in captivity ,although imported species are allowed to be confined in aviaries.

Q. How many flights has the Los Angeles made? A. M.

A. It has made about 30 flights with its American crew.

Q. How many negroes are there in North America? T. F.

A. The Negro Year Book says that there are 17,77,000 members of the colored race on this continent.

Q. Will a tank float better filled with air or if it contains a vacuum?

A. The tank will float better with a vacuum inside it, provided it does not leak or explode. The vacuum subjects it to an added outside pressure of 14.7 pounds per square inch, and reduces its weight about 1-13 pound per cubic foot.

Q. Does concrete harden as it ages? R. M.

A. The Portland Cement association says that concrete hardens with age, particularly within the first three years.

Q. In what states are Christmas trees grown? H. E.

A. The New England states and New York are doubtless the leading states in Christmas tree production. Spruce, firs and pines are classed as Christmas trees. The Norway spruce is perhaps the favorite.

Q. How many dentists belong to the American Dental association? McK. B. R.

A. The association is made up of a group of nearly 40,000 dentists.

Q. What will keep cider sweet? J. D.

A. Apple cider may be kept from becoming hard by adding one-tenth of one precent of benzoate of soda. If the cider is to be sold, the benzote of soda content must be declared upon the label.

Q. Is it warmer to wear two rather thin undergarments in the winter or one thick one? R. T.

A. Two thin garments are warmer than one thick one because the air between them is a poor conductor of heat.

Q. When were the clipper ships Dreadnaught, Red Jacket, and Comet built? H. A. M.

A. The Dreadnaught was built in 1853, the Red Jacket in 1853-54, and the Comet in 1851.

Q. Give some information concerning Canadian foreign trade. C. R. T.

A. Canada's foreign trade now places her among the first six nations of the world, a place which she has won not only by the export of her vast annual grain crops, but also as a manufacturing nation. In the year ending August 31, 1925, the exports of the Dominion reached a value of $1,130,753,557.

Reserve Eleven Will Try to Shake Oberlin From Its Perch

Days of Tandem Bucks, The Portmans, Cripps Terrill and Others, Say Clevelanders Whipped Congregationalists Frequently, But in The Last Decade Only The Memory Has Remained.

By Stanley D. Koch.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Back in the days when Cleveland was more truly the forest than the fifth city and when college styles included wide pegged trousers, a soft hat with a match stuck in the brim and the proverbial bull dog, the football teams from Western Reserve used to mix up with the Oberlin elevens of that period in battles that rumbled the whole state.

Those were the days when "Muff" and "Doc" Portman, Cripps, Tommy Terrill and Ray Barney, wore red and white. While Glen Gray, Pyle and Metcalf sported gold "O's" on crimson sweaters. Those were the days when the tandem bucks were patterned after pile drivers and the flying wedge flew high. Those, too, were the days when touchdowns counted five points and ambulances scurried on and off the field. And in that halcyon era, Western Reserve had a fairly consistent habit of beating Oberlin more times than she was defeated by the Congregationalists.

But in the past decade, only that memory has remained—at least with any regularity. This week-end, another Reserve team bumps up against another Oberlin outfit at Oberlin. The latter is tied for first place in the Ohio conference race. It hasn't been defeated this year, although Mt. Union played it a scoreless tie. And the Crimson and Gold followers are sighting another championship in the offing.

Western Reserve, on the other hand, has had a freak reason, looking good and bad with the majority in favor of the bad. But that intangible college spirit that inspires a team to play way over its head in a crucial game, seemingly in honor of its more noteworthy predecessors, is running rampant on the Reserve campus.

Oberlin is a smooth running, hard tackling eleven, so characteristic of Crimson and Gold teams. That team has been trained to go into a game with a methodical plan and purpose of winning and then, except against Mt. Union, it has followed out its instructions. So, all in all, it looks like a whale of a battle Saturday.

At Cincinnati, the undefeated St. Xavier crew meets Akron. At present, the Saints look like the one and only bet to defeat Ohio Wesleyan, who is encountered a few weeks later, but to justify that belief, the Saints must wallop Akron this week. Coach Coleman's eleven is an in-and-outer, and its only a reasonable guess than this week will be another "outer" week. Xavier's neat football in winning the Kenyon game has stamped Coach Myer's team as dangerous and if Akron can be overcome, all will hinge on the Wesleyan contest.

Another good scrap is carded for Alliance when Miami meets Mt. Union. The Mounts overwhelmed Cast last week, showing all kinds of stuff, while Miami dropped a 6-0 game to Denison, thereby giving all the dopesters a sudden and devastating shock. However, should the same Oxford squad that annihilated Wittenberg, 30-0, function as such, the Mounts will be beaten. But, it will take all of that early season form to defeat Coach Thorpe's eleven.

Denison, elated with the outcome of the Miami scrap takes on another tough nut in Muskingum at Granville. The Muskies are a regular aggregation this year and the Big Red will be forced to play its string to the full to defeat them. Last week, saw the Denison forwards showing extremely well and this week needs a repetition in addition to more power from the Granville backs.

At Springfield, Wittenberg and Cincinnati hook up, with the Lutherans giving the shade.

Having successfully overcome the inertia of losing the first three games, Baldwin-Wallace has swung into a winning stride, apparently unstoppable. This week-end, Otterbein is met Westerville and the United at Westerville and the United Brethren will need more than a spiritual bond to hold the line intact against Lisse and his coworkers. The Berea team is a pleasant surprise this season and should be a fairly easy winner.

Kenyon, despite the loss to St. Xavier, is hoping for the best, which means that some eleven will defeat Wesleyan. Oberlin and St. Xavier, which will still give the Gambierites a chance for the title. This week, Kenyon will have the pleasure of defeating Hiram at Gambier and unless all the edifices of football prophecy come tumbling down, this will obtain.

Two .333 teams meet at Cleveland when Case and Ohio Northern play. Over-confidence is blamed for the Norsemen's defeat at the hands of Ohio university, while sheer inability is the reason for Case's 32-0 defeat by Mt. Union. Mark your own ticket on this game, but the dope points to Ohio Northern.

In the two non-conference games, the Ohio Wesleyan-Syracuse contest at Syracuse is obviously the bigger. The undefeated, unscored-on Syracuse eleven will undoubtedly win, but Wesleyan can be counted on to do itself justice. In the other battle, Ohio university meets Marietta at Athens and may take a beating.

Laughlin 1 vs Hall China.

Two Industrial Duckpin records were broken and third endangered when Taylor, Smith and Taylor bowlers cleaned up last night on the American Express in a three-game series at the Liberty alleys.

Canne, of the T. S. T. five, in the second game shot a 188 and topped Art Smith's 166 by 22 pins. Smith was high during the first week of the pin competition.

In the other two games Canne rolled 126 and 141, respectively, and, as a result, compiled a 455 total for the series which considerably shades the 424 marks rolled by Oliver and Ashbaugh last week.

The Chesterites lacked 20 pins of reaching the 1818 high series team total rolled last week by the Smith News.

As a result of their triple victory the T. S. T. outfit moves into second place in the league standing today, ousting K. T. K.

Elder's home is in Iowa, but he played at Westminster college at Fulton, Mo., in the Missouri valley conference, starring as a tackle in 1920. His great bulk—he will scale more than 200—combined with natural ability, made enemy ground gaining through his side of the line a precarious pastime.

And, too, he could almost pose as a double for Babe Ruth, both in size and facial features.

Lehigh to Play Out Schedule; is Wish Of Former Quarter

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 3.—Following the wishes of Charles Prior, former quarterback for the Lehigh university football eleven, who died last Sunday from injuries received in the game with West Virginia Wesleyan fifteen days ago, the athletic varsity council has decided to play the remaining football games on its schedule this season.

Last Night's Fights

Brooklyn—Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchell Field, L. I., got the decision over Georgie Levine, California, ten rounds. Eddie Anderson, Wyoming, knocked out Joey Kaufman, Brooklyn, seventh round.

New York — Maxey Rosenbloom, New York, knocked out Joe Silvani, New York, ninth round.

Highs, by Beating East Palestine Saturday Can Bring Back County Championship to Ceramic City; Brown and White Record Shows Early Season 6-6 Tie With North County Outfit.

If East Liverpool high school gridders and football mathematics run true to form next Saturday at East Palestine, it will make no difference, so far as the Ceramic City eleven's championship hopes are concerned, if there is no game played with Leetonia this year.

A victory for the Boone outfit Saturday over the Brown and White will clinch the championship.

Here's the reason: Early in the season East Palestine defeated Columbiana, which this year had little chance to figure in the title running, and only a short time later played a 6-6 tie with Leetonia. Salem walloped the East Palestine outfit two weeks ago and Saturday Boone's gridders won decisively from Salem. This "arithmetic," in itself, would practically insure the return of the championship to East Liverpool, but the Ceramic City representatives can make it more emphatic by winning from East Palestine on the coming Saturday.

Efforts were made by Coach Boone and Leetonia school athletic directors to schedule the annual meeting between the two schools, but proposed dates on one schedule conflicted with dates on the other and nothing definite has been done yet with the season now headed down the home stretch.

It is understood that a Thanksgiving day date was tentatively discussed but no action one way or another wastaken on this proposal.

Captain Paul English, of the high school squad, until Saturday held a monopoly on haberdashery hung up by the Hub and Dick Bryan as prizes for touchdowns against opposing teams.

A week ago the Hub offered a sweater and Bryan a silk shirt, both of which were copped by English. Saturday, following the Salem tilt, English split with Heddleston on a slicker given by the Hub and a scarf by Bryan.

Over at Providence, R. I., athletic officials Saturday will take the matter of football rules in their own hands for the day when Boston plays Brown. The stop watch method of time will be discarded and the game run on a basis of 40 plays per period. They contend that the 15 minute quarter system is of no benefit save to the team that scores first and can use up time by legitimate delays in order to minimize scoring chances by opponents.

Only one eastern eleven, Syracuse, retains an uncrossed goal line following Saturday's engagements. Cornell permitted 14 Columbia points, while Bucknell and New York went down before Holy Cross and Fordham, respectively. Ten eastern football elevens remain unbeaten. Penn, Army and Navy are now numbered among the has-beens.

70,000 MAY SEE STATE-ILLINOIS

Clash Will be Grange's Last in Big Ten Conference.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3. — A throng that seems certain to reach 70,000 and may even eclipse the assemblage which witnessed the dedication of the stadium three years ago, already appears assured for the Ohio State-Illinois football conflict here November 21.

While they are confident of an eventful sell-out for the game, Ohio State athletic officials today were mystified by reports reaching them from various parts of the middle west that no more tickets were available.

The ticket sale to date, H. D. Taylor, dispenser of ducats, explained, is somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000. Considering that the number of permanent seats in the stadium is 64,000, and the emergency capacity much greater than that, it is a simple matter of arithmetic to see how much room is left.

Interest in the game with Illinois is heightened since it is the annual homecoming affray, by the fact that it will mark the final appearance of "Red" Grange as a player in Western Conference football, and, naturally, as a result of Ohio State's improved showing this year.

If the Illinois game throng should reach 70,000 it would be one of the three greatest crowds in Big Ten history to date. Ohio State also entertained both the other crowds. The attendance at the dedication game in 1922 was 73,000, while that at the homecoming melee with Michigan last fall was about 69,000.

MOUNTS DISPLAY REAL OFFENSE

ALLIANCE, Nov. 3.—The two things in connection with Mount's 32 to 0 victory over Case last Saturday most pleasing to Coach Jack Thorpe were that for the first time this season his proteges showed real offensive power and that the team came out of the contest with no injuries to handicap them for this week's program. The high lights of the game were the open field running of Mills and Labor, while the punting and bucking of Fullback "Army" Armstrong were up to his usual high standard, and the quarterback, Wilcoxen, showed increased efficiency in running back punts. Captain Ball and Klippert, tackles, maintained their reputation of being two of the best defensive men in Mount's history, and Center Burkle was everywhere during the game, upsetting the plays of the opponents.

Miami comes to Mount Union Saturday as guest for the annual homecoming. Coach Thorpe realizes that the visitors are a formidable foe with a perfect record in the Ohio Conference until Denison took their measure at Dayton last week. The scouts report that they have an unusually fast set of backs and ends. With the return of McElroy to the Mount lineup, the Mount mentor will be able to send his full strength against the down staters, and a great game is assured the old grads and former students.

"Touchdown for Touchdown" Demands Harvard

Harvard, still smarting under the 34 to 0 defeat at the hands of Princeton last year, wants revenge—34 points of it—when the teams meet at Princeton, N. J., Nov. 7. Photo above is a glimpse of last year's massacre. Slagle of Princeton has just tossed a forward pass to Le Gendre, who is scoring a touchdown on the play. Inset are the Harvard captain and one of Princeton's stars.

MOORE'S ELECTION IN JERSEY MAY CAUSE RING CODE CHANGES

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—According to the official megaphone man of the Harry Wills menage, much that is momentous will hang upon the manner in which the political cat jumps in the New Jersey elections today. Probably consequences, it is said, of a return to power by the so-called "old guard" include a proposed change in the state boxing code and an attempt to bid in the Dempsey-Wills match by negotiation with that South Bend, Ind., syndicate, of which one hears much but sees little.

All that the boys need, it seems, is the election of A. Harry Moore as governor of the state. They can then begin firing without waiting to see the whites of anyone's eyes and, at the first volley, the present boxing law in Jersey is supposed to take one full on the chin.

While they are sweeping up the debris, an amendment to the law will be made, it is said, changing state control of boxing from a one-man proposition to the commission form of government. Then the Dempsey-Wills negotiations are supposed to follow.

Credence might be given the report for the reason that Moore is Frank Hague's candidate and Frank was the gentleman whose political connections made the Dempsey-Carpentier business possible. The only money lost by anyone that day was lost by those who paid scalpers $200 for tickets, entitling holders to peep through the armpit of the enthusiast immediately in front.

Their idea, if any, that the South Bend parties can be bought out means that Jersey has taken certain reports very seriously. These were to the effect that middle western money to swing the deal has turned up missing and that the would-be promoters wish to "peddle" their proposition elsewhere.

This, if true, would give Jersey its chance, provided Dempsey is willing to be "sold" along with South Bend's interest in the proceedings. That is a doubtful point. The champion, in fact, probably would insist upon disposing of his own immediate future as he saw fit, with special reference to guarantees and what not.

Jack's guarantee could not be in keeping with his self-valuation, if only for the fact that the Jersey law permits the customers to be harpooned for no more than $25 for the best tickets. But perhaps the alleged amendment will carry a "rider" to take care of that embarrassing provision. They catch the buck early in Jersey, you know. Also the doe, or dough, just as you see it.

Northwich, England. — Shifting houses bodily several miles and towns some yards along the level has often been done, but raising a whole town five feet is something new.

This is claimed to have been accomplished by the surveyor of this town in just under three years.

The entire business portion of Northwich, including ten streets, three banks, the county court and 200 stores and houses, have been raised to counteract the effect of subsidence caused by the brine pumping which proceeds continually in the salt mines under the town.

There has been no stoppage of business and only eight buildings have had to be demolished because they could not be safely lifted.

In raising operations, parts of the lower brickwork were removed and small hydraulic jacks inserted. Chemists' stores were lifted so carefully that not one bottle was disturbed.

The town bridge was raised five feet at each end to bring it up to the new level of the town.

More Oranges, Fewer Grapefruit, Tangerines

Washington.—A preliminary estimate of the orange crop in Florida by the United States Department of Agriculture indicates 10,900,000 boxes, excluding tangerines, for 1925-26, or about 600,000 boxes more than the revised estimate of the crop last year.

Tangerine production is placed at 600,000 boxes, or 100,000 less than last year, and grapefruit, 7,500,000 boxes, or 700,000 less than last year.

The total preliminary estimate for citrus fruits is 19,000,000 boxes, compared with a revised estimate of 19,200,000 boxes last year. These estimates are of the commercial car lot and express movement, and exclude the usual loss from drops.

Decreased production of grapefruit is attributed to light and spotted setting of fruit, and to the fact that there will be more over-sized fruit than usual. Unless market conditions are such that the large sizes can be shipped and sold, they will either move by truck or be lost from dropping, the department says.

Colored Light System to Warn French Solons

Paris.—Members of the French chamber of deputies, when they reassemble after the vacation, will find installed a useful innovation. Twenty-two tape-machines are being placed in different parts of the building, each equipped with red, blue, green and yellow lights for conveying messages to deputies and journalists. Thus it will be possible for all to know what is taking place at any time.

In the French chamber, no means has hitherto been provided whereby a deputy or minister might know, without going to see, what was transpiring in the tribune. Consequently "surprise votes" often have been tallied.

Minorities, taking advantage of this lack, have sometimes been able to muster beforehand and carry the day. Many queer situations have developed. On one occasion a vote of confidence in the government, proposed by an unwary minister who had failed to note the absence of most of his supporters resulted in a vote of no confidence.

This sort of thing cannot occur under the new arrangement. A red light will indicate a vote, so that deputies may hurry back to their places.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

What would you do if you wanted to get a passport, or stop your shoes from squeaking, or build a chicken-coop, or found a hospital, or preserve persimmons, or become a diplomat—and you didn't know how? Suppose you wanted to know why the sun looks large at sunset, or the cost of living in South America, or the total exports of the United States last year, or the income of the Rockefeller Foundation, or who wrote "Sliver Threads Among the Gold?" Our Washington Information Bureau has answered every one of these questions and many other and more difficult ones. It maintains a big staff of experts and correspondents whose business it is merely to answer questions—your questions. This service is free. Send in your question together with a two cent stamp to cover the return postage. Address The East Liverpool Review & Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q. Do men or women think more quickly when driving an automobile and an emergency arises? C. S.

A. According to tests recently made by Dr. F. A. Moss of George Washington University and H. H. Allen of the United States Bureau of Standards in which 25 men and 10 women were put through a series of tests it was found that the average reaction time of the women was 0.56 seconds and that of the men 0.59 seconds, and the average variability of the women 0.17 seconds and that of the men 0.22 seconds.

Q. What American birds can be kept in cages? Y. McK.

Q. Will a tank float better filled with air or if it contains a vacuum?

Q. Does concrete harden as it ages? R. M.

A. The Portland Cement association says that concrete hardens with age, particularly within the first three years.

Q. In what states are Christmas trees grown? H. E.

A. The association is made up of a group of nearly 40,000 dentists.

Q. What will keep cider sweet? J. D.

A. Apple cider may be kept from becoming hard by adding one-tenth of one precent of benzoate of soda. If the cider is to be sold, the benzote of soda content must be declared upon the label.

CAR COMPANY NAMED IN SUIT

Kaufmann asserts that while riding the car, the motorman brought the car to a sudden halt to prevent crashing into a tree which was lying across the tracks near Walkers. He asserts that he was thrown from his seat, rendered unconscious from a blow on the head, his spine injured and his right foot sprained. As a result of the accident Kaufmann asserts he was confined to his home for 23 days suffering from a nervous shock.

"Son of His Father," Paramount Picture At Ceramic Theatre

The Paramount picture, "A Son of His Father," produced by Victor Fleming from Harold Bell Wright's latest "best seller," is the photo play at the Ceramic theatre tonight. It is claimed to be the finest "Western" that has ever reached the screen. To back up this big claim Paramount mentions:

First—the author, Harold Bell Wright. Wright's tales of the west have gone into more homes than those of any other writer. During the last eight years his books have been read by more than $56,000,000 people in the United States alone.

Second—the director, Victor Fleming, who made "Adventure" and "The Devil's Cargo." He also made "To the Last Man," the first Zane Grey-Paramount production. "The Call of the Canyon," another Zane Grey special, and "Empty Hands," are also on his long list of successes.

Then—the cast, Bessie Love, Warner Baxter and Raymond Hatton are featured in the leading roles. Other popular players are Charles Stevens, Walter McGrail, Carl Stockdale, Billy Eugene and James Farley.

In order to have "A Son of His Father" historically and geographically correct, Fleming took his company of two hundred to a location seventy miles from Tuscon, Arizona, a beautiful stretch of wild country, within walking distance of the Mexican border.

All this was in actual keeping with the story. To make the production even more perfect, men and women were engaged right "on the spot" to play the minor roles. It is rather interesting to think that some of these men once might have engaged in the actual gorilla-warfare which, after the loss of many lives, finally ridded the state of cattle smugglers.

Following the failue of a Swedish bank recently it was found that the directors had to take $10,000,000 loss in industrial stocks held by the institution.

Entirely too many try to be a howling success by just howling. — Defiance Crescent-News.

You must say Quick Mother's Oats

2 Kinds:
The Mother's Oats you have always known and Quick Mother's Oats—cooks in 3 to 5 minutes

THE difference in breakfast oats is flavor. Oats, originally a Scotch dish, must have Scotch flavor.

Quick Mother's Oats has the toasty Scotch flavor that's so wonderful . . . famous Mother's Oats flavor.

No other oats has it. None successfully imitates it. It's due to exclusive Mother's Oats milling of the finest, plumpest oats. Milling methods which took some 50 years to perfect.

Cooks in 3 to 5 minutes.

Be sure of that flavor. Look for the picture of a Mother on the oats you get.

Due to Mother's Oats milling methods it supplies, too, the "roughage" you need to make laxatives seldom necessary.

TODAY

Wealthy and Criminal.
British Bishop Worries.
Better Than in Bible Days.
"Not Too Much, Not Too Little."

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Copyright, 1925, by The Star Co.

The bishop of Durham, thoughtful British prelate, is very much discouraged about us poor things in the United States. He says we are the wealthiest and most criminal nation, even worse than England.

It distresses him especially to discover that suicide is common "among wealthy, highly educated persons."

He is mistaken there, the wealthiest do commit suicide, occasionally, but not the highly educated.

You may have a Rothschild killing himself in Vienna, worrying about some girl. But youu don't find John D. Rockefeller or Henry Ford committing suicide. They are interested in their work.

Men "highly educated" in the wrong sense of the word, that is, merely stuffed with education that they don't use, commit suicide sometimes. Money not used and education not used may lead to suicide. A useless life, neglecting to use power possessed, is a discouraging, desperate thing.

The veneral bishop says our trouble in America is that we "neglect the moral factor in human life." There is something to that.

But, then, men have always neglected the moral factor in life. And in the past they neglected it a good deal more than they do now.

For instance, even in good old Bible days there was a lack of the moral factor here and there.

In the twenty-first chapter of Exodus, concerning slaves, various things are written that would seem strange in our day. In those ancient times it was all right to have slaves, keep them indefinitely, and do about as you chose with them, as long as they were not Hebrew slaves, and therefore members of the Lord's chosen people. It says, for instance, these interesting verses:

"If thou buy an Hebrew servant, six years he shall serve; and in the seventh he shall go out free for nothing.

"If he came in by himself, he shall go out by himself; if he were married, then his wife shall go out with him.

"If his master have given him a wife, and she have borne him sons or daughters, the wife and her children shall be her master's, and he shall go out by himself.

"And if the servant shall plainly say, I love my master, my wife, and my children; I will not go out free;

"Then his master shall bring him unto the judges; he shall also bring him to the door, or unto the door post; and his master shall bore his ear through with an aul; and he shall serve him forever."

How does that strike you?

We are not so very moral now, but suppose a man owned a slave, and the law compelled him to set the slave

WASHINGTON, N. J., Nov. 3.—Andrew Gunderman and Marshall Price were burned to death and George Gunderman, 60, father of Andrew, was badly injured when fire destroyed the Gunderman home here early today.

Firemen found Andrew Gunderman's body in a chair in the kitchen. Price's body lay on the floor of the sitting room. The elder Gunderman was stretched out unconscious not far from Price's body. He was badly burned and was taken to the Easton hospital, Easton, Pa.

Police were informed that Andrew Gunderman and his wife quarreled last night and Mrs. Gunderman took her six children to the home of an uncle before the fire started. Price was a neighbor of the Gundermans.

CHURCH RECTOR ROTARY GUEST

American citizenship is being menaced by powers from the outside as well as powers from the inside, Rev. T. G. C. McCalla, acting rector of the St. Stephen's Episcopal church, told 60 Rotarians and their friends at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Y. M. C. A. today.

Gary Wills, former member of the Wheeling Rotary club, who came here recently to become superintendent of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company, was introduced as a new member.

Charles Boyce, chairman of the boys' work committee, discussed plans for a book reading contest which the club will conduct among school children this year.

President F. L. Wells presided. The chorus singing was led by Attorney Blaine Cochran. W. H. Cordwin, of the Frank Crook company, introduced Rev. McCalla, who has assumed charge of the St. Stephen's church during the illness of Rev. Lionel C. Difford. His subject was "American Citizenship."

In part he said:

"American citizenship today is being weighed in a balance. The real citizen is the man behind.

"We are voting today on a three-mill levy for the schools. Have you men investigated the need for a three-mill levy? I don't mean to say that the levy isn't needed, but have you investigated as to its need? Some one sold it to the school children and they placarded the town and boosted it and I believe it will be approved.

"We need big business men in our public office. The poorest man that can be found or at least the second rater can generally be found in public office. The man who would ren-

NEWELL ACTS TO CHECK SCARLET FEVER; NEARLY 50 CASES ARE REPORTED

Health Commissioner, Nurse and Physicians Call Mass Meeting to be Held at 7:30 Tonight.

KEEP WATCH ON SCHOOL PUPILS

Parties and Club Meetings Attended by Quarantined Persons Blamed For Spread of Disease.

Steps to check the spread of the scarlet fever outbreak in Newell, which, it is claimed, has developed nearly 50 cases, will be taken at a mass meeting which will be held in the Newell district school at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The session has been called by the county health board. Dr. B. J. Ahouse, county health commissioner, and Miss Caroline Brown, county health nurse, both of New Cumberland; Dr. V. E. McEldowney, Newell; Dr. H. A. Turk, this city, and Dr. J. L. Pyle, of Chester. They will discuss ways and means of preventing the disease.

According to Superintendent of means of prev nting the disease. scarlet fever now exist in Newell, while the quarantine has been lifted in an almost equal number of cases. There have been no deaths since the outbreak developed about a month ago.

Oppose Closing Schools.

County health authorities, who have been assisted by Drs. McEldowney and Turk in combating the disease, believe that it has been checked. It is declared that most of the cases can be traced to parties and club meetings attended by persons who have broken quarantine.

Miss Brown will visit Newell tomorrow and make an examination of school pupils in an effort to discover new cases. Every child who is found to be suffering from the slightest rash or other symptom will be sent home.

Public sentiment is said to oppose the closing of the schools, as children would only congregate on the streets.

Review-Tribune Megaphone Service On Vote Counting

The Review-Tribune tonight will megaphone returns from the municipal and township election.

As fast as precinct judges report to the election supervisors, the figures will be announced at the Washington street office of the East Liverpool Publishing company.

Reports will be given on all contests as well as the tabulation of the vote on special issues.

Inasmuch as eight ballots are to be counted, it is not improbable that the returns will be late.

The Review-Tribune service will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

MIDLAND ROAD TO BE CLOSED AT NOON THURSDAY

Traffic Will be Barred Until Winter Weather.

ENGINEER ACTS

Rinehart Brothers Rush Work in Smiths Ferry.

The Midland-East Liverpool road, west of Midland, will be closed to traffic after the noon hour Thursday, according to an announcement from the Beaver office of the Pennsylvania state highway department, today.

J. L. Herber, Pittsburgh, district engineer for the state highway department, visited the Midland-East Liverpool road job yesterday and at the request of Rinehart Brothers, local contractors in charge of the work, agreed to close the road until winter sets in.

Because of bad weather during October, the contractors have been unable to work on the road for almost five weeks. The road bed is almost a sea of mud and, because of the traffic over the highway, contractors are unable to drain it or prepare it for the surfacing operation. If there is no further rainfall, pouring of concrete will be started probably next Monday. The road will be barricaded Thursday morning, halting all traffic.

James Rinehart, a member of the contracting firm, announced today that the company will complete that part of the road from the upper end of Smiths Ferry to that point where the highway leaves the street car line, a distance of about 3,000 feet, in 10 working days. About 500 feet of the job has already been laid, the remaining stretch being about 2,500 feet.

That part of the highway where the road branches away from the street car tracks to Midland, another 3,000

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 3.—Because his mother, Mrs. William Lulewicz, 60, refused him additional money for liquor, William Lulewicz, 22, killed her with an ax in the family home last night, police claim the Plymouth youth admitted in a confession this afternoon.

Only a few hours before, he steadfastly denied, according to police, that he had any knowledge of the circumstances in connection with the woman's death. He declared that he had been drinking moonshine.

George Dawson and Charles McNicol are Entered in Races for Ward Council Places, While it is Said J. H. Brookes Will Receive Complimentary Votes for School Board Place.

With the municipal offices, school levy and road bond issue as the paramount questions, voting in East Liverpool during the early morning hours today was heavy, according to figures from a majority of the 21 precincts.

At 11:30 o'clock an estimated total of 1,400 to 1,500 votes had been cast here. Nearly one-half of the ballots in the boxes at that hour were marked by women, reports indicated.

Fourteen of the 21 polling places showed a total poll of 881, an average of about 68 per precinct. This ratio maintained throughout the city would mean 1,428 ballots were in the boxes.

The heaviest vote was reported in the Second ward. At Precinct B, known as the Thompson Hill district, 115 votes had been cast while Precinct C, in the O. J. Herrington garage, Minerva street, reported 106 ballots.

ELECTORS OF 13 STATES GO TO POLLS TO ELECT GOVERNORS AND MAYORS

Political Railbirds of Capital Watch Klan and Wet and Dry Issues in Today's Balloting.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Some millions of American voters are marching to the polls today in thirteen states to elect governors, mayors, legislators, municipal and county officers, and pass upon a scattered assortment of important local amendments.

It is the quietest off-year election the country has witnessed in years.

Save for the governorship contests in New Jersey and Virginia, and the mayoralty fights in some of the larger cities like New York, Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis and Buffalo, there is little of the usual election day flavor in today's battle of the ballots.

Nevertheless, the leaders of all parties will view the results with analytical eyes, for today's decisions will reveal, to some extent at least, the trend of popular political opinion. Straws show which way the wind blows. And the highly important congressional elections are just around the corner. Campaigning, in many instances, already has begun for this biennial show.

Eyes On Indiana.

Indiana, for example, may furnish a revealing trend of electorial thought. Every city of size in the state, 101 to be exact, is electing a mayor today. While the municipal fights usually are independent of party, nevertheless in many cases these fights are hooked up more or less directly with district and state politics.

The political railbirds of the capital are chiefly interested in two issues that figure in today's balloting, and which, to a greater or lesser extent, may figure in the congressional elections of next year.

One of these is the Ku Klux Klan. This issue, with its accompaniment of racial and religious bitterness, has been injected prominently into the mayoralty campaigns of Detroit, Indianapolis and Buffalo. In these cities and many smaller ones, the Klan is out in the open with its endorsements and red fire. The results will be scrutinized with interest by Republican and Democratic leaders alike, for the Democrats have painful memories of this issue at Madison Square Garden, and the Republicans in some states are closely identified with the hooded order.

Interest In New Jersey Fight

Another issue, magnified by its isolation in today's balloting, is found in the Wet-and-Dry fight in New Jersey. A. Harry Moore, Democratic candidate for Governor, has openly declared for modification of the Volstead act. His Republican opponent, Arthur Whitney is endorsed by the Anti-Saloon league.

Peculiar interest attaches to the New Jersey contest because of the renewed agitation for modification, and reports, never confirmed but still persistent, that some of the biggest industrial leaders of the country will come out for modification in 1928 if the reorganized enforcement unit does not make a better stab at the enforcing the law.

Only two congressional seats are to be filled in today's election, one in New Jersey and one in Kentucky, both vacancies caused by death. The Republicans control the house by

Impression Prevails That Democrats Will Win by Large Majority in Mayoralty Fight.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The voters of New York city went to the polls today to elect a new mayor.

Early voting was light. The campaign had established a record for apathy on the part of the voting public. A light rain was falling when the polls opened at 6 o'clock this morning. They will close at 6 p. m. The result of the election is expected to be known within an hour after the polls close.

Betting greatly favored James J. Walker, the Democratic candidate, to win over Frank D. Waterman, his Republican opponent. The betting odds last night closed at 15 to 1 that Walker would win—the highest ever offered on a New York mayoralty candidate.

Both Walker and Waterman campaigned until a late hour. Each delivered a final appeal to the voters on the radio.

The general impression prevailed this morning that the Democrats will win by a large plurality. Both sides, however, claimed victory. Tammany predicted Walker would canter in by a majority of more than 300,000, while Republican leaders insisted Waterman would win by 100,000.

Despite the light voting this morning, it was expected a fairly large vote will be polled. A vote of about 1,110,000 is anticipated. The total registration was 1,240,000 in round numbers. Aside from other candidates besides mayor being voted upon in the municipal contests, there are four constitutional amendments to be decided upon.

The vote during the morning hours was extremely light. All sections of the city reported inactivity at the polling boths. Up to 10 o'clock the average vote at the various polling places was less than half of what was in the last mayoralty fight.

Voting was desultory in Senator Walker's voting place, while in the wealthy Park avenue section, home of Waterman, citizens showed an especial antipathy towards early voting.

It was expected, however, that the vote would increase as the day advanced.

Great American Comedy Will be Attraction at Ceramic Theatre, Thursday, Nov. 12.

Here is what the Chicago newspaper critics say about "The Show-Off," the great American comedy which comes to the Ceramic theater Thursday, November 12:

"George Kelly's 'Show-Off' is a trim, a shapely and a reasonable comedy. It is authentic stuff. It is good. It is a transcript of life, and I beg of you to see 'The Show-Off'."—Frederick Donaghey, Tribune.

"A real play was a real hit at Cohan's Grand — a very real play named 'The Show-Off.' I love it. It catches me in the funnybone and in the heart. You'll be surprised how many times you laugh during a play so honest and a performance so square. The whole cast is a roll of honor."—Ashton Stevens, Herald and Examiner.

"'The Show-Off' received the most enthusiastic ovation seen in a Chicago theater in many moons and it deserved it. Everyone was gladly swept along in a whirlwind of laughter. It recalled the triumphs of immortals long dead. The acting is superb."—C. J. Bulliet, Evening Post.

"Last night's audience laughed until it cried; in fact, more laughter has not been heard in a theater all season, not even in the funniest farces. The acting is all the play demands—excellent, everywhere."—Paul Martin, Journal of Commerce.

"A play of quality, 'The Show-Off' refreshed Chicago theatergoers. The night was noisy with prolonged demonstrations of approval and the demand for admission was greater than the supply of tickets."—O. L. Hall, Daily Journal.

"The promoters were right in inviting all Chicago to sign on the dotted line with 'The Show-Off.' The play's a good laugh. The audience hated to leave and the curtain bobbed up and down at the end of the play nearly a dozen times."—F. McQuigg, Evening American.

"'The Show-Off' is one play America can be proud of no matter where it goes, and we can laugh our Yankee heads off over its clear cut vitality and truth. And what's more, we can stand up and cheer and applaud after its last climax just as we did last night at Cohan's Grand."—Amy Leslie, Daily News.

DISTURBANCE IN A LOCAL THEATRE.

The patrons of a local show house were very much disturbed and annoyed by the continuous coughing of a person in the audience. Don't be a nuisance because you have a cough or cold. A few doses of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND taken promptly will bring speedy relief from coughs, colds and hoarseness. Mrs. W. T. Clary, White Plains, Va., writes: "We have used FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND for colds and bad coughs with splendid results." Sold everywhere.

DENTAL STATISTICS tell this grim story: four people out of every five are destined, through neglect, to contract pyorrhea after they pass the age of forty. Thousands younger also suffer.

Pyorrhea is the dread disease of the gums which is responsible often for loss of teeth, rheumatism, neuritis and other dangerous disorders.

It starts with tender bleeding gums. Pockets form below the teeth and poisons spread relentlessly through the body. If you have pyorrhea or any of its symptoms see your dentist at once and start brushing your teeth with Forhan's for the Gums.

To safeguard yourself against pyorrhea make Forhan's your regular dentifrice. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., and contains his pyorrhea liquid which has been used by dentists the last 15 years in the treatment of pyorrhea. If used regularly and used in time it will prevent pyorrhea or check its course. Railroad President Finds Walking to Be a Tonic

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.

NOT long ago I attended an all day function which attracted the presidents of thirty-one great railroads. I had a natural curiosity to meet these men, many of whom I had never seen but whose names had been familiar for years.

It was interesting to find that a number of them read these health articles. In little groups we talked about many things and frequently about health. From time to time I shall tell you the methods used by different ones of these famous men to maintain physical vigor.

Towards the end of the day, one railroad president gave me his daily program. It is pretty strenuous and could not be followed by another man except he possessed the same fundamentally strong body. But with equal physical equipment and leisure to do the things, there could be no more desirable way of maintaining figure and vigor.

After an early breakfast the president rides horseback. He does not go out before daylight to ride on an empty stomach. He takes the sensible view that there is more pleasure and more good in his way.

After the ride the office work is done with cheerfulness and alacrity. I can tell by looking at him that nobody loafs in his office, and surely the man himself doesn't.

At the end of office hours what do you suppose this railroad president does? He walks home every day, rain or shine—six miles!

Recently a newspaper man dropped in for an interview. Instead of staying to give it, as most of us weak mortals would do, the railroader said: "Sorry, it's too late; I'm going home." When he saw the look of disappointment on the face of the reporter he said: "If you care to walk along with me I'll give you the interview." At the end of three miles the reporter was worn out, but the president kept on with his walk and the interview for the full distance.

Of course, this man does not play golf. He doesn't need to; his daily programme makes it unnecessary.

The most valuable idea I gained from our talk was the rule followed in case of a trip of several days on the railroad. If you have had occasion, as I have had many times, to spend three or four nights on a sleeper, you know how worn out you become.

This president does not go to the office the day after his return. He stays at home, walks in the fields and woods, giving himself a whole day of fresh air and freedom from the strain and worries of business.

You may not do all this strenuous man does, but you can do a part of each of the things. If you will, you can be as vigorous and young looking as he is. I looked him up in "Who's Who." It is hard to believe the record. This successful railroad president is older by at least twelve years than his face and carriage indicate.

"Son of His Father," Paramount Picture At Ceramic Theatre

The Paramount picture, "A Son of His Father," produced by Victor Fleming from Harold Bell Wright's latest "best seller," is the photo play at the Ceramic theatre tonight. It is claimed to be the finest "Western" that has ever reached the screen. To back up this big claim Paramount mentions:

First—the author, Harold Bell Wright. Wright's tales of the west have gone into more homes than those of any other writer. During the last eight years his books have been read by more than $56,000,000 people in the United States alone.

Second—the director, Victor Fleming, who made "Adventure" and "The Devil's Cargo." He also made "To the Last Man," the first Zane Grey-Paramount production. "The Call of the Canyon," another Zane Grey special, and "Empty Hands," are also on his long list of successes.

Then—the cast, Bessie Love, Warner Baxter and Raymond Hatton are featured in the leading roles. Other popular players are Charles Stevens, Walter McGrail, Carl Stockdale, Billy Eugene and James Farley.

In order to have "A Son of His Father" historically and geographically correct, Fleming took his company of two hundred to a location seventy miles from Tuscon, Arizona, a beautiful stretch of wild country, within walking distance of the Mexican border.

All this was in actual keeping with the story. To make the production even more perfect, men and women were engaged right "on the spot" to play the minor roles. It is rather interesting to think that some of these men once might have engaged in the actual gorilla-warfare which, after the loss of many lives, finally ridded the state of cattle smugglers.

Following the failue of a Swedish bank recently it was found that the directors had to take $10,000,000 loss in industrial stocks held by the institution.

Entirely too many try to be a howling success by just howling.—Defiance Crescent-News.

Extending The National Debt

If the time allowed for retirement of the American public debt were extended to 50 years, as some urge, it would be possible to cut federal taxes $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 a year instead of about half that much.

It is a tempting thought. Taxpayers could use the saved money. It sounds fair, too, to argue that American war debtors (and that is what all of us are) should have as much time for payment as our foreign war debtors. Why should we have to pay in a few years when foreigners have 62 years for it?

Yet there are cnsiderations on the other side. We have the money to pay, and can do so far better than our foreign debtors. By paying as soon as we can, thereby following good business methods, we shall save a lot of interest. Also we shall avoid saddling up on the next generation the burden of a war for which this generation was responsible.

The Boom In Local Pride

Whether the Florida boom was the forerunner of many booms or whether it was merely the most prominent feature of a widespread movement for local boosting and development is hard to say. At any rate there is today hardly a community of any energy at all that is not taking its own possibilities and future very seriously. From one section in the south comes three striking statements.

St. Tammany, La., announces, "We have possibilities or potential opportunities even greater than Florida had. Climate, soil, water, transportation, fruit growing, trucking, fishing, hunting, inland waterways and lake frontage. Florida is a wonderful state and has done wonderful things. But we wish to call attention to the fact that Louisiana can develop just as rapidly as Florida has if her people will go in for publicity and do the big things that should be done."

From Natchez, Miss., comes this forceful statement: "We have a very substantial and meaningful message for the world. This city is the heart of a country of opportunities. No other in this whole section of the south is more happily circumstanced. We can do more different kinds of useful things in this city and section, and can prosecute these activities for a longer period during the year, than the people of any other city and section in the whole breadth of this republic."

From Shreveport, La., comes this: "This is the 'Pep City of America.' In days of sunshine and of tempest Shreveport traditionally has exhibited the 'pep' required by the occasion. It is a city of big deeds. It is a city in which the people know how to work together. And in their co-operation there always is 'pep'."

North, south, east and west, similar communities are discovering themselves and awakening to their opportunities and bestirring themselves to grasp them. The enthusiasm may not last to fulfillment in every case, but the general stirring up is likely to produce many good results. It is far better than having many communities sitting back complaining because a few others have all the luck and prosperity.

Tourng Canada

Canada, not Europe, is the Mecca of the American tourist. It seems to be the literal truth that far more Americans were attracted to Canada this year than to all Europe.

The volume of this movement is almst incredible. Figures from Ottawa show that, up to October, more than 2,000,000 automobiles crossed the border, carrying about 9,000,000 tourists. And this takes no account of the great numbers who went to Canada on trains and steamships.

Did it pay Canada? It did. Dominion authorities estimate that the visitors from the states brought not less than $150,000,000 into the country. This sum is equal to one-fourth of the value of the annual mining output of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia combined.

The money needn't be grudged to our Canadian friends, either. Trips to Canada are comparatively inexpensive, and probably pay bigger average dividends than trips to the Old World. Especially do they pay in the health benefits gained from vacationing in Canada's beautiful and illimitable outdoors, and in the friendship that the "Yank" usually learns to feel for his kindly courteous "Canuck" neighbors.

Progress In Health

In most respects health figures in the United States continue to improve and the death rate keeps on decreasing.

Improvement is found especially in the death rate from influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, diphtheria, diabetes, measles and infants' digestive diseases.

But three ailments particularly continue their ravages and grow more menacing. They are heart disease, which heads the mortality list in many states, followed pretty closely by brain diseases—ceregral hemorrhage and softening—and by cancer and other malignant growths.

In the first group it is evident that the medical profession, helped by intelligent popular interest, is on the right track. In the second there is little reason for satisfaction. Something can be done along broad lines of healthful living to forestall heart and brain ailments, though definite cures are lacking. Cancer remains the great pathological mystery and menace.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The Thalia theatre has been catering to the amusement public for one hundred years but one. It was first built at Canal and the Bowery where it now stands. In those days white-faced cows grazed in Times Square and the town journeyed in stage coaches to 72d street to picnic.

It is given over to the Oriental drama. Gom Woo Deep is the leading lady and Mon Gah Yin the leading man. The Chinese play is a deep mystery to orderly Occident minds. A musician may suddenly climb out of the pit and over the footlights to take a role.

It creaks with sympolism. A spot of black court plaster on the nose indicates the deep dyed villain and a man carrying a whip is a Paul Revere—the horse is left to imagination. Some one in the audience may recognize an old friend and mount the stage to greet him.

The play courteously stops for this ceremony. If it grows too hot an actor will remove his wig or coat. Between acts the players join the audience in friendly chat and they may have to send a gunner out front to herd the orchestra back in the pit for the next act.

If there is a commotion in the audience during a tense scene, the play again stops and the players chat amiably and without offense until the interruption is over. If the Chinese see a stranger hasn't a good seat, they will offer theirs.

It was in the Mad Hatter Hendrick Van Loon wrote his "Story of Mankind." In much of the Village gaudy cheapness this tea room seems to preserve a certain detachment. Harry Kemp is now grinding out his second version of "Tramping on Life" at one of the tables. Peddling fakers are barred. Patrons often sit about an open fireplace and read.

A New York woman gave a dinner party in a public cafe and wore pearls and diamonds valued at more than $500,000. At a nearby table sat three men in evening clothes—private detectives employed to guard her. What a life!

Noel Coward, whose London successes have been duplicated on Broadway, lived in an East Ninth street boarding house three years ago. Unable to sell a play, his small savings dwindled and he returned home broke. He was here a year ago in the first flush of success. He was then 25 and every night he was in his hotel room working. He did not attend one party to which he was invited. There is one of those success articles there somewhere.

Cows may be seen grazing in a Central Park pasture from the bus tops on Upper Fifth avenue. No city is so big as to prevent the rural touch from peeping through.

St. Marks-in-the-Bouwerie is still a spiritual retreat for married souls. It is flanked on all sides by alien touches—Kosher shops, Greek cafes and Turkish coffee houses. There is a small and pleasant church yard and an air of peace. The ancient edifice conceals one of the greatest New York mysteries. From one of its vaults ghouls stole of the body of A. T. Stewart, the great merchant prince of his day. The mystery has never been solved. Another vault contains the body of Petrus Stuyvesant.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

An Art Centennial

WASHINGTON, D. C. Nov. 3.—At the Corcoran Gallery of Art in this city there is now being held the Centennial Exhibition of the National Academy of Design. Here may be seen the representative works of the leading American artists and sculptors during the past hundred years. For the private view two special cars carried artists from New York City and Philadelphia, among them being Edwin H. Blashfield, President of the National Academy, Harry W. Watrous, Douglas Volk, Gardner Symons and Charles Dana Gibson. There were many other shining lights of the world of art, as well as lesser ones with ambitions of one day having their work accepted by the Academy.

The exhibition shows many signtures which impress even those who lay no claim to knowledge of art. Without knowing whether the flesh tints are good, or whether the color is exceptional, they stand and gaze with awe at such paintings as the portrait by John Singer Sargent, entitled "A Veie Gonfie."

Also the recent death of George Bellows and the many expressions of regret which have appeared in the public press and current magazines make the layman doubly interested in the contribution by this artist. It is entitled "Club Night" and depicts a prize ring wehrein presumably a championship fight is taking place. In the background are shown the interested and enthusiastic spectators. Like all of Bellows' work, it is said to be remarkable for its virility.

The death of George Bellows was a great shock to the world of art, as it was felt that it was particularly unfortunate that one just at the height of success and with such a brilliant future should have been taken. He was admired for his work and loved for himself.

The contribution of Mr. Blashfield is "Academia," while that of the first president of the National Academy, Samuel F. B. Morse, is a portrait of the Marquis de Lafayette. It is said that Morse by means of his painting was able to finance his great invention the electric telegraph, through which he is known the world over.

In a short article it is impossible to mention all the various contributions, or even those of outstanding importance. There are examples of each line such as architectural drawings, etchings, wood engravings, lithographs and sculpiure. Among the illustrators exhibiting are Maxfield and Jules Guerin. There are etchings by Joseph Pennell and Otto Bacher. Among the prominent sculptors represented are Paul Wayland Bartlett, Solon Borglum, Augustus Saint Gaudens, Frederick W. MacMonnies and Daniel Chester French. The French contribution is the Lincoln statue used in the Lincoln Memorial at Washington, except that it is done on a smaller scale.

Morse One Of The First Fifteen

In November, 1825, a number of young artists and students of New York organized the New York Drawing Association, which in January of the next year resolved itself into a new organization known as the National Academy of the Arts of Design. Fifteen members were chosen who in turn were to select fifteen others and these were to constitute the new society. Samuel F. B. Morse was among the first fifteen named, and he became the first president of the society, serving in that capacity for many years.

The society prospered and grew despite the frequent necessity of finding new quarters. In 1863 a permanent home was established and a unique and beautiful building was erected at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-third street. Here there was provision for exhibition galleries and classrooms for the students. One of the most valued possessions of the Academy was a collection of casts and some of these are still used in the classrooms. This was the original collection of the Academy of Fine Arts which begun with gifts from Napoleon and foreign governments and augmented by the purchases of Robert R. Livingston while Ambassador to France.

In 1825 this property was sold and later the present site was purchased at 109th and Amsterdam Avenue. The present building contains the executive offices of the society, library, art collections and classrooms. With the awakening of the public to a new consciousness of its national art there is a growing demand for art instruction, and the Academy feels that its facilities are inadequate. It hopes to enlist the cooperation of the public so that a new building may be constructed which will have accommodations for larger schools and allow more room for the housing and exhibition of the magnificent rat collection of the Academy.

It also hopes to establish an endowment fund, the proceeds of which will be used to enable talented students to continue their studies both here and abroad. A further ambition of the Academy is that with the erection of a suitable building a College of Art May be founded. This would offer to its students an academic course ranking with that of regular colleges, combined with comprehensive training in the graphic arts.

Irving A Lecturer

Since the earliest days of the Academy its schools have been managed by a committee elected from the Council of the Academy, and the instructors have for the most part been drawn from its membership. Under a policy laid down nearly a hundred years ago, well known artists, architects and scientists deliver lectures which are free to the student body. It is an interesting fact that Washington Irving was the first of these lecturer-professors.

There is no charge made by the schools of the Academy for the instruction they offer. Thus many talented men and women have been enabled to obtain necessary instruction which they could not have had if a tuition fee had been demanded. In addition to this free instruction there are traveling scholarships, and for those desiring a general college course as well as instruction in drawing and painting, the Academy has formed an affiliation with New York University.

Many real artists and sculptors have been developed in the schools of the Academy, as is attested by the fact that such men as George Inness, Augustus Saint Gaudens, William M. Chase, Winslow Homer, Francis D. Millet and Frank Duveneck received their first training there.

In 1916 H. W. Ranger, well known in the world of artists, died and left his entire estate to the National Academy of Design. This money is known as the "H. W. Ranger Bequest." The Ranger Bequest yields the Ranger Fund and provides for the purchase of pictures by living American artists, the larger percentage of which shall be by artists of forty-five years of age or over. These pictures are presented to various museums and art associations throughout the United States. They are assigned on the understanding that the National Gallery at Washington may claim them for the permanent collection after a period of time has elapsed under certain conditions. To date about fifty pictures have already been purchased and donated.

In the early days the United States was too busy struggling with the prosaic task of building a nation to have much time for the cultural arts. The past hundred years, as evidenced by this Centennial Exhibition, however, has shown tremendous strides made toward putting this country on an equal footing with the other nations in artistic development.

Pavlowa, the dancer, has recently been in Germany and says that she always gets a great deal of money from Germans for her housefull of Russian Orphans in Paris.

FORMER WIFE SUED AS "POISON PEN"

Ask $250,000 of Woman of Four Romances.

New York.—Indicted for sending a poison pen letter through the mails to Arthur H. Marks, millionaire tire and organ manufacturer, Mrs. Lydia Locke Dornblaser, singer, is being sued for $250,000 for defamation of character by Mrs. Marks, formerly Mrs. Margaret Hoover of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Dornblaser has been married four times. Marks was her third husband. Her second was Orville Harold, Metropolitan opera tenor. Her present husband has been described as a bond broker and her private secretary from whom she is estranged. He is a good looking youth.

Her first husband was A. W. ("Prince") Talbot, race track gambler, whom she killed at Reno in 1909. She was acquitted because of his deathbed statement that the shooting was accidental.

Federal authorities revealed that the singer's sister, Mrs. Frances Adams, wife of a Joplin (Mo.) merchant, had been arrested and released on bail there as the actual sender of the note. It was mailed from Bellefontaine, Ohio, July 30, by a public stenographer to whom it is charged, Mrs. Adams had given it on a train. The text of the letter is withheld.

Marks settled $400,000 on Mrs. Dornblaser when they were divorced last fall, $100,000 of which was put in trust on condition that she would not annoy him for five years. The good behavior pact was first broken shortly after the divorce, counsel for Marks avers, when she attempted to palm off a bogus child on him. Court proceedings in New York resulted in the child being returned to a sanitarium in Kansas City.

The good behavior fund was cut in half as a result of the paternity charge, Marks' lawyers say, and has now been cancelled entirely.

Counsel for Mrs. Dornblaser said the poison pen charges were an attempt by Marks to get out of fulfilling the trust fund agreement.

Chicago Newspaper Critics Say 'Show-Ott' Is Big Hit

Great American Comedy Will be Attraction at Ceramic Theatre, Thursday, Nov. 12.

Here is what the Chicago newspaper critics say about "The Show-Off," the great American comedy which comes to the Ceramic theater Thursday, November 12:

"George Kelly's 'Show-Off' is a trim, a shapely and a reasonable comedy. It is authentic stuff. It is good. It is a transcript of life, and I beg of you to see 'The Show-Off'."—Frederick Donaghey, Tribune.

"A real play was a real hit at Cohan's Grand — a very real play named 'The Show-Off.' I love it. It catches me in the funnybone and in the heart. You'll be surprised how many times you laugh during a play so honest and a performance so square. The whole cast is a roll of honor."—Ashton Stevens, Herald and Examiner.

"'The Show-Off' received the most enthusiastic ovation seen in a Chicago theater in many moons and it deserved it. Everyone was gladly swept along in a whirlwind of laughter. It recalled the triumphs of immortals long dead. The acting is superb."—C. J. Bulliet, Evening Post.

"Last night's audience laughed until it cried; in fact, more laughter has not been heard in a theater all season, not even in the funniest farces. The acting is all the play demands—excellent, everywhere."—Paul Martin, Journal of Commerce.

"A play of quality, 'The Show-Off' refreshed Chicago theatergoers. The night was noisy with prolonged demonstrations of approval and the demand for admission was greater than the supply of tickets."—O. L. Hall, Daily Journal.

"The promoters were right in inviting all Chicago to sign on the dotted line with 'The Show-Off.' The play's a good laugh. The audience hated to leave and the curtain bobbed up and down at the end of the play nearly a dozen times."—F. McQuigg, Evening American.

"'The Show-Off' is one play America can be proud of no matter where it goes, and we can laugh our Yankee heads off over its clear cut vitality and truth. And what's more, we can stand up and cheer and applaud after its last climax just as we did last night at Cohan's Grand."—Amy Leslie, Daily News.

DENTAL STATISTICS tell this grim story: four people out of every five are destined, through neglect, to contract pyorrhea after they pass the age of forty. Thousands younger also suffer.

Pyorrhea is the dread disease of the gums which is responsible often for loss of teeth, rheumatism, neuritis and other dangerous disorders.

It starts with tender bleeding gums. Pockets form below the teeth and poisons spread relentlessly through the body. If you have pyorrhea or any of its symptoms see your dentist at once and start brushing your teeth with Forhan's for the Gums.

To safeguard yourself against pyorrhea make Forhan's your regular dentifrice. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. Railroad President Finds Walking to Be a Tonic

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.

NOT long ago I attended an all day function which attracted the presidents of thirty-one great railroads. I had a natural curiosity to meet these men, many of whom I had never seen but whose names had been familiar for years.

It was interesting to find that a number of them read these health articles. In little groups we talked about many things and frequently about health. From time to time I shall tell you the methods used by different ones of these famous men to maintain physical vigor.

Towards the end of the day, one railroad president gave me his daily program. It is pretty strenuous and could not be followed by another man except he possessed the same fundamentally strong body. But with equal physical equipment and leisure to do the things, there could be no more desirable way of maintaining figure and vigor.

After an early breakfast the president rides horseback. He does not go out before daylight to ride on an empty stomach. He takes the sensible view that there is more pleasure and more good in his way.

After the ride the office work is done with cheerfulness and alacrity. I can tell by looking at him that nobody loafs in his office, and surely the man himself doesn't.

At the end of office hours what do you suppose this railroad president does? He walks home every day, rain or shine—six miles!

Recently a newspaper man dropped in for an interview. Instead of staying to give it, as most of us weak mortals would do, the railroader said: "Sorry, it's too late; I'm going home." When he saw the look of disappointment on the face of the reporter he said: "If you care to walk along with me I'll give you the interview." At the end of three miles the reporter was worn out, but the president kept on with his walk and the interview for the full distance.

Of course, this man does not play golf. He doesn't need to; his daily programme makes it unnecessary.

The most valuable idea I gained from our talk was the rule followed in case of a trip of several days on the railroad. If you have had occasion, as I have had many times, to spend three or four nights on a sleeper, you know how worn out you become.

This president does not go to the office the day after his return. He stays at home, walks in the fields and woods, giving himself a whole day of fresh air and freedom from the strain and worries of business.

You may not do all this strenuous man does, but you can do a part of each of the things. If you will, you can be as vigorous and young looking as he is. I looked him up in "Who's Who." It is hard to believe the record. This successful railroad president is older by at least twelve years than his face and carriage indicate.

SCHOOL TEACHERS TO HOLD MEETING

Annual fall meeting of the Hancock county school teachers will be held in Weirton next month. This was decided on at a meeting of the executive committee of the county association held recently in Weirton.

Those attending the conference were: R. L. Hoke, superintendent of the Grant district schools; County Superintendent H. C. Miller; Superintendent Albert Rabenstein, Chester; Superintendent C. D. Henderson, New Cumberland; Superintendent W. D. Johnson, Weirton, and G. A. Beck, president of the county association.

Many Defects Found.

Examination of the teeth of 101,372 school children in 24 counties last year resulted in the discovery of 15,913 defects, states a report to the state department of health from the school and county nurses who examined the children. Only 3,627 of these defects were corrected, the report shows, leaving many children with bad teeth, a condition which is a handicap to them in doing their school work.

WHITE PLAGUE EXACTS HEAVY TOLL IN PARIS

HYGIENE TAUGHT

Old Houses Torn Down to Check Disease.

PARIS.—There is more tuberculosis in Paris than in any other city in the world. This was the startling statement made before the Conseil General de la Seine in December, 1920. More recent statistics show that some progress has been made, but there is still great room for improvement.

The last perod which preceded the war showed a general decrease in mortality from plumonary diseases among all nations, France excepted. Death increased in Germany at the rate of 15.6 for every 1,000 inhabitants; 14.8 in Belgium, 13.3 in England and 17.7 in France. For every 10,000 inhabitants 32 died in France from pulmonary tuberculosis. As far back as the period from 1909-1913 Paris was at the head of the mortality list of all the great cities of Europe, tuberculosis then causing 3.53 deaths for every 1,000 inhabitants.

Such a situation called for immediate clearing up. The sanitary service got busy and within ten years discovered six groups of streets, in all about five thousand houses, wheer the malady caused three times as many deaths as in all the rest of the capital. The causes were simple, principally lack of air and light and too many dark bedrooms on damp courts. These houses were suppressed and wi[illegible] three years tubercular mortality diminished from 9,714 to 9,371.

This was only a beginning. During the war Leon Bourgeois founded a noteworthy dispensary which bears his name and forced the Parliament to vote for the law of April 15, 1916, by which France seriously began her fight against the disease which was ravaging the country. The City hall commission began work with the idea that there can be no real aid without education. Its first task was to look for the child, not suffering from the disease, but the one menaced.

Every child upon entering school must now present a health certificate. Once the danger is signalled, the work is infinitely easier. If there are any signs of the disease the child is sent to a preventorium or to a sanatorium, or merely to a fresh air school, which is usually effective.

Fresh air all day long and all night as well is being urged for the many French who are afraid of night air and sleep in crowded quarters with the window sealed. Old houses in unsanitary districts are being torn down. Schools are teaching more and more hygience and it is expected that within a few years the white plague will not be able to boast of so many victims in the gay French capital.

Extending The National Debt

If the time allowed for retirement of the American public debt were extended to 50 years, as some urge, it would be possible to cut federal taxes $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 a year instead of about half that much.

It is a tempting thought. Taxpayers could use the saved money. It sounds fair, too, to argue that American war debtors (and that is what all of us are) should have as much time for payment as our foreign war debtors. Why should we have to pay in a few years when foreigners have 62 years for it?

Yet there are cnsiderations on the other side. We have the money to pay, and can do so far better than our foreign debtors. By paying as soon as we can, thereby following good business methods, we shall save a lot of interest. Also we shall avoid saddling up on the next generation the burden of a war for which this generation was responsible.

The Boom In Local Pride

Whether the Florida boom was the forerunner of many booms or whether it was merely the most prominent feature of a widespread movement for local boosting and development is hard to say. At any rate there is today hardly a community of any energy at all that is not taking its own possibilities and future very seriously. From one section in the south comes three striking statements.

St. Tammany, La., announces, "We have possibilities or potential opportunities even greater than Florida had. Climate, soil, water, transportation, fruit growing, trucking, fishing, hunting, inland waterways and lake frontage. Florida is a wonderful state and has done wonderful things. But we wish to call attention to the fact that Louisiana can develop just as rapidly as Florida has if her people will go in for publicity and do the big things that should be done."

From Natchez, Miss., comes this forceful statement: "We have a very substantial and meaningful message for the world. This city is the heart of a country of opportunities. No other in this whole section of the south is more happily circumstanced. We can do more different kinds of useful things in this city and section, and can prosecute these activities for a longer period during the year, than the people of any other city and section in the whole breadth of this republic."

From Shreveport, La., comes this: "This is the 'Pep City of America.' In days of sunshine and of tempest Shreveport traditionally has exhibited the 'pep' required by the occasion. It is a city of big deeds. It is a city in which the people know how to work together. And in their co-operation there always is 'pep'."

North, south, east and west, similar communities are discovering themselves and awakening to their opportunities and bestirring themselves to grasp them. The enthusiasm may not last to fulfillment in every case, but the general stirring up is likely to produce many good results. It is far better than having many communities sitting back complaining because a few others have all the luck and prosperity.

Tourng Canada

Canada, not Europe, is the Mecca of the American tourist. It seems to be the literal truth that far more Americans were attracted to Canada this year than to all Europe.

The volume of this movement is almst incredible. Figures from Ottawa show that, up to October, more than 2,000,000 automobiles crossed the border, carrying about 9,000,000 tourists. And this takes no account of the great numbers who went to Canada on trains and steamships.

Did it pay Canada? It did. Dominion authorities estimate that the visitors from the states brought not less than $150,000,000 into the country. This sum is equal to one-fourth of the value of the annual mining output of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia combined.

The money needn't be grudged to our Canadian friends, either. Trips to Canada are comparatively inexpensive, and probably pay bigger average dividends than trips to the Old World. Especially do they pay in the health benefits gained from vacationing in Canada's beautiful and illimitable outdoors, and in the friendship that the "Yank" usually learns to feel for his kindly courteous "Canuck" neighbors.

Progress In Health

In most respects health figures in the United States continue to improve and the death rate keeps on decreasing.

Improvement is found especially in the death rate from influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, diphtheria, diabetes, measles and infants' digestive diseases.

But three ailments particularly continue their ravages and grow more menacing. They are heart disease, which heads the mortality list in many states, followed pretty closely by brain diseases—ceregral hemorrhage and softening—and by cancer and other malignant growths.

In the first group it is evident that the medical profession, helped by intelligent popular interest, is on the right track. In the second there is little reason for satisfaction. Something can be done along broad lines of healthful living to forestall heart and brain ailments, though definite cures are lacking. Cancer remains the great pathological mystery and menace.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The Thalia theatre has been catering to the amusement public for one hundred years but one. It was first built at Canal and the Bowery where it now stands. In those days white-faced cows grazed in Times Square and the town journeyed in stage coaches to 72d street to picnic.

It is given over to the Oriental drama. Gom Woo Deep is the leading lady and Mon Gah Yin the leading man. The Chinese play is a deep mystery to orderly Occident minds. A musician may suddenly climb out of the pit and over the footlights to take a role.

It creaks with sympolism. A spot of black court plaster on the nose indicates the deep dyed villain and a man carrying a whip is a Paul Revere—the horse is left to imagination. Some one in the audience may recognize an old friend and mount the stage to greet him.

The play courteously stops for this ceremony. If it grows too hot an actor will remove his wig or coat. Between acts the players join the audience in friendly chat and they may have to send a gunner out front to herd the orchestra back in the pit for the next act.

If there is a commotion in the audience during a tense scene, the play again stops and the players chat amiably and without offense until the interruption is over. If the Chinese see a stranger hasn't a good seat, they will offer theirs.

It was in the Mad Hatter Hendrick Van Loon wrote his "Story of Mankind." In much of the Village gaudy cheapness this tea room seems to preserve a certain detachment. Harry Kemp is now grinding out his second version of "Tramping on Life" at one of the tables. Peddling fakers are barred. Patrons often sit about an open fireplace and read.

A New York woman gave a dinner party in a public cafe and wore pearls and diamonds valued at more than $500,000. At a nearby tabie sat three men in evening clothes—private detectives employed to guard her. What a life!

Noel Coward, whose London successes have been duplicated on Broadway, lived in an East Ninth street boarding house three years ago. Unable to sell a play, his small savings dwindled and he returned home broke. He was here a year ago in the first flush of success. He was then 25 and every night he was in his hotel room working. He did not attend one party to which he was invited. There is one of those success articles there somewhere.

Cows may be seen grazing in a Central Park pasture from the bus tops on Upper Fifth avenue. No city is so big as to prevent the rural touch from peeping through.

St. Marks-in-the-Bouwerie is still a spiritual retreat for married souls. It is flanked on all sides by alien touches—Kosher shops, Greek cafes and Turkish coffee houses. There is a small and pleasant church yard and an air of peace. The ancient edifice conceals one of the greatest New York mysteries. From one of its vaults ghouls stole of the body of A. T. Stewart, the great merchant prince of his day. The mystery has never been solved. Another vault contains the body of Petrus Stuyvesant.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

An Art Centennial

WASHINGTON, D. C. Nov. 3.—At the Corcoran Gallery of Art in this city there is now being held the Centennial Exhibition of the National Academy of Design. Here may be seen the representative works of the leading American artists and sculptors during the past hundred years. For the private view two special cars carried artists from New York City and Philadelphia, among them being Edwin H. Blashfield, President of the National Academy, Harry W. Watrous, Douglas Volk, Gardner Symons and Charles Dana Gibson. There were many other shining lights of the world of art, as well as lesser ones with ambitions of one day having their work accepted by the Academy.

The exhibition shows many signtures which impress even those who lay no claim to knowledge of art. Without knowing whether the flesh tints are good, or whether the color is exceptional, they stand and gaze with awe at such paintings as the portrait by John Singer Sargent, entitled "A Vele Gonfie."

Also the recent death of George Bellows and the many expressions of regret which have appeared in the public press and current magazines make the layman doubly interested in the contribution by this artist. It is entitled "Club Night" and depicts a prize ring wehrein presumably a championship fight is taking place. In the background are shown the interested and enthusiastic spectators. Like all of Bellows' work, it is said to be remarkable for its virility.

The death of George Bellows was a great shock to the world of art, as it was felt that it was particularly unfortunate that one just at the height of success and with such a brilliant future should have been taken. He was admired for his work and loved for himself.

The contribution of Mr. Blashfield is "Academia," while that of the first president of the National Academy, Samuel F. B. Morse, is a portrait of the Marquis de Lafayette. It is said that Morse by means of his painting was able to finance his great invention the electric telegraph, through which he is known the world over.

In a short article it is impossible to mention all the various contributions, or even those of outstanding importance. There are examples of each line such as architectural drawings, etchings, wood engravings, lithographs and sculpture. Among the illustrators exhibiting are Maxfield and Jules Guerin. There are etchings by Joseph Pennell and Otto Bacher. Among the prominent sculptors represented are Paul Wayland Bartlett, Solon Borglum, Augustus Saint Gaudenc, Frederick W. MacMonnies and Daniel Chester French. The French contribution is the Lincoln statue used in the Lincoln Memorial at Washington, except that it is done on a smaller scale.

Morse One Of The First Fifteen

In November, 1825, a number of young artists and students of New York organized the New York Drawing Association, which in January of the next year resolved itself into a new organization known as the National Academy of the Arts of Design. Fifteen members were chosen who in turn were to select fifteen others and these were to constitute the new society. Samuel F. B. Morse was among the first fifteen named, and he became the first president of the society, serving in that capacity for many years.

The society prospered and grew despite the frequent necessity of finding new quarters. In 1863 a permanent home was established and a unique and beautiful building was erected at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-third street. Here there was provision for exhibition galleries and classrooms for the students. One of the most valued possessions of the Academy was a collection of casts and some of these are still used in the classrooms. This was the original collection of the Academy of Fine Arts which begun with gifts from Napoleon and foreign governments and augmented by the purchases of Robert R. Livingston while Ambassador to France.

In 1895 this property was sold and later the present site was purchased at 109th and Amsterdam Avenue. The present building contains the executive offices of the society, library, art collections and classrooms. With the awakening of the public to a new consciousness of its national art there is a growing demand for art instruction, and the Academy feels that its facilities are inadequate. It hopes to enlist the cooperation of the public so that a new building may be constructed which will have accommodations for larger schools and allow more room for the housing and exhibition of the magnificent rat collection of the Academy.

It also hopes to establish an endowment fund, the proceeds of which will be used to enable talented students to continue their studies both here and abroad. A further ambition of the Academy is that with the erection of a suitable building a College of Art May be founded. This would offer to its students an academic course ranking with that of regular colleges, combined with comprehensive training in the graphic arts.

Irving A Lecturer

Since the earliest days of the Academy its schools have been managed by a committee elected from the Council of the Academy, and the instructors have for the most part been drawn from its membership. Under a policy laid down nearly a hundred years ago, well known artists, architects and scientists deliver lectures which are free to the student body. It is an interesting fact that Washington Irving was the first of these lecturer-professors.

There is no charge made by the schools of the Academy for the instruction they offer. Thus many talented men and women have been enabled to obtain necessary instruction which they could not have had if a tuition fee had been demanded. In addition to this free instruction there are traveling scholarships, and for those desiring a general college course as well as instruction in drawing and painting, the Academy has formed an affiliation with New York University.

Many real artists and sculptors have been developed in the schools of the Academy, as is attested by the fact that such men as George Inness, Augustus Saint Gaudens, William M. Chase, Winslow Homer, Francis D. Millet and Frank Duveneck received their first training there.

In 1916 H. W. Ranger, well known in the world of artists, died and left his entire estate to the National Academy of Design. This money is known as the "H. W. Ranger Bequest." The Ranger Bequest yields the Ranger Fund and provides for the purchase of pictures by living American artists, the larger percentage of which shall be by artists of forty-five years of age or over. These pictures are presented to various museums and art associations throughout the United States. They are assigned on the understanding that the National Gallery at Washington may claim them for the permanent collection after a period of time has elapsed under certain conditions. To date about fifty pictures have already been purchased and donated.

In the early days the United States was too busy struggling with the prosaic task of building a nation to have much time for the cultural arts. The past hundred years, as evidenced By this Centennial Exhibition, however, has shown tremendous strides made toward putting this country on an equal footing with the other nations in artistic development.

Pavlowa, the dancer, has recently been in Germany and says that she always gets a great deal of money from Germans for her housefull of Russian Orphans in Paris.

FORMER WIFE SUED AS "POISON PEN"

Asks $250,000 of Woman of Four Romances.

New York.—Indicted for sending a poison pen letter through the mails to Arthur H. Marks, millionaire tire and organ manufacturer, Mrs. Lydia Locke Dornblaser, singer, is being sued for $250,000 for defamation of character by Mrs. Marks, formerly Mrs. Margaret Hoover of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Dornblaser has been married four times. Marks was her third husband. Her second was Orville Harold, Metropolitan opera tenor. Her present husband has been described as a bond broker and her private secretary from whom she is estranged. He is a good looking youth.

Her first husband was A. W. ("Prince") Talbot, race track gambler, whom she killed at Reno in 1909. She was acquitted because of his deathbed statement that the shooting was accidental.

Federal authorities revealed that the singer's sister, Mrs. Frances Adams, wife of a Joplin (Mo.) merchant, had been arrested and released on bail there as the actual sender of the note. It was mailed from Bellefontaine, Ohio, July 30, by a public stenographer to whom it is charged, Mrs. Adams had given it on a train. The text of the letter is withheld.

Marks settled $400,000 on Mrs. Dornblaser when they were divorced last fall, $100,000 of which was put in trust on condition that she would not annoy him for five years. The good behavior pact was first broken shortly after the divorce, counsel for Marks avers, when she attempted to palm off a bogus child on him. Court proceedings in New York resulted in the child being returned to a sanitarium in Kansas City.

The good behavior fund was cut in half as a result of the paternity charge, Marks' lawyers say, and has now been cancelled entirely.

Counsel for Mrs. Dornblaser said the poison pen charges were an attempt by Marks to get out of fulfilling the trust fund agreement.

SCHOOL TEACHERS TO HOLD MEETING

Annual fall meeting of the Hancock county school teachers will be held in Weirton next month. This was decided on at a meeting of the executive committee of the county association held recently in Weirton.

Those attending the conference were: R. L. Hoke, superintendent of the Grant district schools; County Superintendent H. C. Miller; Superintendent Albert Rabenstein, Chester; Superintendent C. D. Henderson, New Cumberland; Superintendent W. D. Johnson, Weirton, and G. A. Beck, president of the county association.

Many Defects Found.

Examination of the teeth of 101,372 school children in 24 counties last year resulted in the discovery of 15,913 defects, states a report to the state department of health from the school and county nurses who examined the children. Only 3,627 of these defects were corrected, the report shows, leaving many children with bad teeth, a condition which is a handicap to them in doing their school work.

WHITE PLAGUE EXACTS HEAVY TOLL IN PARIS

HYGIENE TAUGHT

Old Houses Torn Down to Check Disease.

PARIS.—There is more tuberculosis in Paris than in any other city in the world. This was the startling statement made before the Conseil General de la Seine in December, 1920. More recent statistics show that some progress has been made, but there is still great room for improvement.

The last perod which preceded the war showed a general decrease in mortality from piumonary diseases among all nations, France excepted. Death increased in Germany at the rate of 15.6 for every 1,000 inhabitants; 14.8 in Belgium, 13.3 in England and 17.7 in France. For every 10,000 inhabitants 32 died in France from pulmonary tuberculosis. As far back as the period from 1909-1913 Paris was at the head of the mortality list of all the great cities of Europe, tuberculosis then causing 3.53 deaths for every 1,000 inhabitants.

Such a situation called for immediate clearing up. The sanitary service got busy and within ten years discovered six groups of streets, in all about five thousand houses, wheer the malady caused three times as many deaths as in all the rest of the capital. The causes were simple, principally lack of air and light and too many dark bedrooms on damp courts. Those houses were suppressed and within three years tubercular mortality diminished from 9,714 to 9,371.

This was only a beginning. During the war Leon Bourgeois founded a noteworthy dispensary which bears his name and forced the Parliament to vote for the law of April 15, 1916, by which France seriously began her fight against the disease which was ravaging the country. The City hall commission began work with the idea that there can be no real aid without education. Its first task was to look for the child, not suffering from the disease, but the one menaced.

Every child upon entering school must now present a health certificate. Once the danger is signalled, the work is infinitely easier. If there are any signs of the disease the child is sent to a preventorium or to a sanatorium, or merely to a fresh air school, which is usually effective.

Fresh air all day long and all night as well is being urged for the many French who are afraid of night air and sleep in crowded quarters with the window sealed. Old houses in unsanitary districts are being torn down. Schools are teaching more and more hygience and it is expected that within a few years the white plague will not be able to boast of so many victims in the gay French capital.

PAIN, NEURITIS, RHEUMATISM

"Heet" Relieves Instantly

With applicator attached to cork, just brush "Heet" over the pain area, whether in elbows, arms, shoulders, feet, knees, legs, back, neck or body. Instantly, you feel this harmless, glorious, penetrating heat draw the pain, soreness and stiffness right out of the aching or swollen joint, muscle or nerve. Besides, "Heet" scatters the congestion and establishes a cure.

"Heet" contains two soothing, penetrating ingredients, too expensive to use in ordinary liniments or analgesics. "Heet" is a clean, pleasant liquid; doesn't stain, blister or irritate the skin and costs only 60 cents at any drug store.

The constant curling and waving demanded by modern style in hair dress, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

Mrs. Wooliscraft Hostess.

Keeping Pace With Community Progress

Nearly every financial institution reflects the progress of the community it serves. The growth and development of such institutions as a result of increased patronage is, therefore, as much a cause for public congratulations as for private gratification.

For the fourth time in the history of the Potters National Bank, increased business and demands for more adequate facilities have made larger and better quarters necessary.

And now, on the eve of another and greater period of progress in the life of this old bank, the Officers and Directors extend their hearty congratulations to East Liverpool's citizens whose progressiveness has made necessary the construction of this new and complete banking home.

NOW YOU MAY TRY THIS VEGETABLE SYRUP FREE

This Is Your Chance to Prove That Toning Up Your Liver Will End That Tired, Run-Down Feeling. Build Yourself Up! Win Back Sound Digestion, Strength and Energy — Feel Your Very Best Again!

In his private practice Dr. H. S. Thacher demonstrated that such symptoms as Indigestion, Gas on a Sour Stomach, Belching, Dizziness, Colds that Hang On, Sick Headaches, Constipation, that Tired Feeling and a general Run-Down condition of the System are often the result of a Sluggish Liver—and that relief in such cases comes quickly when the Liver is properly Cleansed and Toned and the System is working normally again.

Why This Gives Relief.

When working as Nature intended your Liver does three things necessary to keep you feeling your best. First, it purifies your BLOOD, every drop of which passes through the Liver every fifteen minutes. Second, your Liver furnishes the essences that are essential to perfect DIGESTION. Third, your Liver supplies the secretions Nature uses to lubricate your intestines so that your Bowels can move naturally, gently and regularly every day. When your liver becomes sluggish it cannot do these three things; consequently, you suffer from one or more of the symptoms above described.

Share It With Family!

Just to prove to you that you CAN get quick RELIEF, druggists are giving away FREE liberal trial size bottles of Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup. It is a syrup of PURELY VEGETABLE ingredients known to Physicians for their CORRECTIVE and HEALTH-BUILDING properties. EIGHT DIE AS SCHOOL BUS IS HIT BY TRAIN

CROSSING CRASH

Village Grief-stricken as Result of Tragedy.

NAHUNTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—A pall of sorrow hung over this village today, as preparations were made to bury the eight children killed when the Everglades limited, New York to Florida flyer on the Atlantic Coast line, crashed into a school bus near here, at a grade crossing.

Twenty children are in the Atlantic Coast line hospital at Waycross, where they were rushed after the crash, recovering from injuries. Seven were killed outright or died within a few minutes, and the eighth child died last night.

The dead and injured children all live in the country surrounding Nahunta, and it was hours before parents of some of the killed and injured children learned of the tragedy.

Heart-rending scenes were enacted when committees of Nahunta citizens traveled in motor cars into the surrounding country to notify the parents of the children that their babies were not safe in the new consolidated school building at Nahunta, but were lying dead or maimed in the morgue and hospital at Waycross.

Ebert Denies Candidacy Report.

According to precinct rumors, considerable scratching marked the voting during the forenoon. Among the reports was one to the effect that the name of Dr. J. P. Ebert, East Fifth street optometrist, was being written on the ballot for the mayoralty place. Dr. Ebert, at noon, denied he was a candidate for the office.

"I am not in politics and if my name is being written on the ballot by my friends it is without my knowledge and consent," Dr. Ebert said. "A year ago a committee visited me, requesting that I enter the race for mayor, but my answer was 'no' then and I have not changed my mind since then."

L. M. Poole, Republican nominee for Third ward council, and who is unopposed by the Democrats, will face opposition from Charles McNicol, pottery manufacturer, whose friends announced they will write his name on the independent ballot.

George Dawson, special police officer, has been entered as a candidate for Fourth ward councilman, it is reported, opposing George Hughes, Republican, and James Godwin, Democrat. Dawson's name will be written in the independent column.

Another report indicated that Attorney J. H. Brookes, who resigned from the school board early in the fall, will receive complimentary votes for the place today, although he declined to be a candidate. His name, it is said, is being written on the ballot.

C. A. Ferguson, who was appointed to succeed Brookes, and Robert Stevenson, are unopposed for the two board of education memberships.

State amendments will be the first ballot to be counted after the polls close. The county road bond issue will be the second, after which will come the city ticket and municipal court judgeship.

Michigan—Municipal elections in many cities, including Detroit.

New York—Municipal elections in New York, Buffalo, and other cities, election of entire new assembly and voting upon four constitutional amendments.

Kentucky—Election of new assembly, one congersman, many county and municipal officers.

Ohio—Municipal election in many cities, statewide vote on constitutional amendments; local bond issue elections.

Utah—Municipal elections in many cities.

Missouri—Municipal election in Kansas City.

California—Special election in San Francisco to determine municipal purchase of a street railway.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3.—Despite favorable weather conditions a light vote is being cast throughout Ohio today, according to indications early this afternoon at the offices of Secretary of State Brown.

While voters, apparently, were turning out in good numbers in cities, where warm contests had developed over proposed bond issues, special tax levies and municipal offices, lack of interest prevailed generally in rural districts.

Pittsburgh Goes To Polls.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 3.—Voting for a mayor and five councilmen, Pittsburgh went to the polls today at the conclusion of one of the quietest campaigns in years. Voters were hesitant in the early hours, causing election officials to anticipate a light vote.

Besides the municipal election, a slate of county officers was to be chosen and the state was to elect a superior court judge.

In Pittsburgh the Republicans counted on a plurality of 50,000 for Judge Charles H. Kline, nominee for mayor. Opposing the jurist were W. L. Smith, Prohibitionist, and C. C. Johnson, Democrat.

Hans Wagner, star shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates in former years, stood for election as sheriff on the Labor-Non-Partisan ticket. He was opposed by both Republican and Democrat candidates, however.

Klan Issue in Two Cities.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 3.—Detroit voters, stirred by the Klan issue, went to the polls today to decide one of the hardest fought campaigns in the city's history. A mayor and nine councilmen are to be elected by what is believed will be a record vote.

Mayor John W. Smith and Charles Bowles, an attorney, are opposing each other for the mayoralty office. Mayor Smith charges the Klan with attempting to get control of the city government, while Bowles denies membership in the order.

Fair weather and bitterness between the two factions will bring out a record vote, it is believed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—Voters in a number of Indiana cities trekked to the polls today to elect municipal officials.

Indianapolis was expected to vote John L. Duvall, Republican backed by the Klan, into the mayoral chair, but the fight admittedly will be decidedly close. The personal popularity of Walter Myers spurred Republican leaders to strenuous efforts to defeat him.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—Kansas City was voting today to elect a mayor under a new charter embracing the city manager plan of the government and a bond issue of $26,500,000 for public improvements.

Although, under the new form, politics were supposed to be cast aside, each party had endorsed a candidate. A. I. Beach, incumbent, was backed by the Republican organization and Ben Jaudon, city treasurer, by the Democrats.

Boston's Spectacular Campaign

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—Fair weather and a heavy early vote marked the opening today of the mayoralty election, which came in the wake of an eleventh hour frenzied drive for votes by the 10 candidates in the windup of of one of the most spectacular campaigns in the city's history. Polls opened at 6 a. m. and were scheduled to close at 8 p. m.

Political control of Boston, expenditure of four hundred million dollars in the appropriations and public improvements during the next mayor's four-year term of office and the bearing of the contest next fall between United States Senator William M. Butler and former United States Senator David I. Walsh were the sweepstakes of this year's mayoralty election.

Vote Upon Amendments.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Ohio voters today were voting upon three amendments to the state constitution, most Ohio cities were choosing city officers and townships were electing township officials in the biennial "off-year" election.

Main interest in thes tate results centered in the proposal to amend the constitution by providing for the classification of property for taxation. Reformers have long pointed to the Ohio constitutional rule which provides for taxation of "all property real and personal, at its true value in money," as archaic. It was adopted in 1851, and repeated attempts to change it since that time have been unavailable. A second amendment would impose a constitutional limit upon the debt making power of municipalities, and a third would extend the terms of state and county officials to four years from the present limit of two in most instances.

Interest in municipal results was "spotted." Cleveland with more than a quarter million voters was not expected to poll more than 100,000. Here a city council of 25 was to be chosen on a proportional representation ballot—the second test of this ballot in a metropolitan community.

Cincinnati was to choose a council of nine members under a new charter effective next January. A reform ticket was opposed by the regular Republican nominees, who had the support of Rud K. Hynicka, Republican leader since the death of George B. Cox.

Toledo was voting upon bond issues totalling $32,500,000, providing for an ambitious plan of civic improvement.

In other cities the municipal elections were expected to bring out a large vote. The Ku Klux Klan had in many instances entered the fight with slates of endorsed candidates and its influences was expected to sway the result in many municipalities.

Hot Fight in New Jersey.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 3.—Faced with last-minute claims of a large majority victory by both Republicans and Democrats, the voting populace of New Jersey went to the polls today to choose between State Senator Arthur Whitney, backed by the Republican party and the Anti-Saloon league, and Commissioner A. Harry Moore, the Democratic candidate for governor.

Harry Heher, chairman of the Democratic state committee, asserted that Moore would carry New Jersey by at least 150,000. He based his figures on the admitted plurality of at least 100,000 that Moore will poll in Jersey City, the Democratic stronghold. Whitney's supporters, on the other hand, contend that they will carry practically all other counties, with a vote heavy enough to win by 60,000 over Moore.

Squads of detectives were on hand as crowds began to gather at the polls, prompted by charges that thousands of "floaters" from New York city would be imported to "steal" the election.

Toledo's Ambitious Program.

TOLEDO, Nov. 3.—Voters of Toledo today, in addition to electing a mayor and other city officials, were voting on the most ambitious improvement plan, to be financed by bond issues, ever submitted to the voters of an Ohio city.

Bond issues totalling $32,500,000, providing for such things as harbor improvement, street paving and widening, parks and playgrounds, a modern traffic control system and a score of lesser matters, have taken the attention of the voters from the personality of the candidates.

Walter F. Brown, long the leader of the Republican party here, is directing the fight for the bond issues and predicts success for most if not all the issues.

Opponents declare that the seuccess of the plan means an average annual increase in taxation of $7 or more. Friends of the proposals say the cost will be from $1.50 to $2.00 annually to the average taxpayer.

Proponents of the bonds point to the example of St. Louis, where $80,000,000 was voted by the people at one time for improvements, and contend that taxes on the increased duplicate bound to follow a modern city will pay the entire cost within the life of the bonds.

feet, is ashed and can be traveled in winter weather if necessary. With a month of good weather, the contractors may complete the job, but this is regarded as improbable.

The contractors have been forced to pay railroad demurrage on several carloads of sand, gravel, cement and other materials for several weeks, because of the inclement weather. These materials have been standing on sidings in Smiths Ferry.

The Beaver county commissioners have awarded the Rinehart firm the contract for filling the approaches to the new highway span across Beaver creek. Material for the fills will be hauled from the upper end of the improvement in traction dump cars.

While the Midland-East Liverpool road is being improved, traffic to Midland, Vanport, Industry, Beaver and other Beaver valley towns will be detoured over what is known as the Tuscarawas road, which goes through Smiths Ferry, up the hill through Ohioville, Esther and follows the ridge into Beaver. This road is unimproved.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The army court-martial that is trying Col. William Mitchell for "conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline" decided today to give the flying general ample opportunity to defend himself before finding him guilty.

After promptly over-ruling a motion to dismiss the whole case, which indicated an eventful verdict of guilt, the jury of generals granted him an adjournment until Monday next in order to obtain numerous witnesses through whom Mitchell will endeavor to prove that his charges of "criminal negligence" and "almost treasonable" administration of the army and navy air services were fully justified.

free—after seven years—merely because that slave happened to be of the same religion as the owner. Suppose the slave had the decency to want to stay with his family born in slavery, what would the modern man do?

You wouldn't find many men that would nail his ear to the door, and keep him a slave forever simply because the poor fellow wouldn't leave his wife and children.

We are better than they were in old Bible days, good bishop of Durham. If a modern patriarch turned a slave girl, with his own child, adrift in the desert, to please a jealous old wife, he would not brag about it.

The bishop says the people are committing suicide and generally going wrong because they lack religion.

On the other hand the bishop must remember that some of the most terrible recent suicides have been based on religious frenzy, pushing religion too far.

Aristotle wasn't a Christian, never had a chance to be, for Christianity had not started in his day. Yet there is a great deal of Christian wisdom in his saying: "Not too much, not too little."

We have just now too much of the jazz band, perhaps, too little of the book of Job. A man of real intellect would find in the magnificent writing of Job ten times the inspiration he would find in all the jazz bands of the world combined.

But the bishop must be patient. We have come out of a great war, young people have had a bad example put before them. They have seen the very rich swindling their own government, on a "dollar a year" patriot basis.

They have seen Liberty bonds that they bought at par knocked down to $85 for $100 worth. Then they saw them go above par after the big gentlemen had gathered them in.

They have seen little people conscripted, to be sent out to be gassed and shot, while the more prosperous sat in their swivel chairs, wearing magnificent uniforms, play heroic parts.

Men have been taken from their villages and farms, marched around, bossed and bullied by officers manufactured over night.

Girls have been taken from their homes and put into ammunition factories and in other queer, unfit places. There has been some breaking down of moral fiber.

But the human race hasn't gone to the dogs. Incidentally, if the British bishop were well informed, he would know that there is much more general morality in the United States than there is in Great Britain.

Statistics will prove to him that diseases born of immorality are far more frequent and harmful in Great Britain than in this country.

However, both Great Britain and the United States are all right, fundamentally.

We have within ourselves, as every man can testify, an intense desire to do what is right.

There is not one of us outside of the insane asylum that has any intense desire to do what is wrong. We are driven to wrong, sometimes by our weaknesses, lack of education, poor environment.

But our spirits turn to the light, toward what is good.

We can truly say that we needn't worry about our civilization, our race, or the worries that torment the good bishop of Durham.

"In New York a few years ago, I made a study of these conditions. In one place, I found a school of 6,000 students who were studying Bolshevism just the same as our children are studying the three r's in schools. As each student entered the hall, he laid down one dollar, two dollars, five and ten dollars to be used, I was told, in a campaign of propaganda."

LOSE SAVINGS IN HOME FIRE

R. R. Garrett, Wife and Son Dependent Upon Friends.

Savings of a lifetime were lost last Thursday morning when fire totally destroyed the home of R. R. Garrett, about a mile from Stop 55, on the Y. & O. railroad and the Lincoln highway, it developed today.

Garrett, his wife and son, Raymond, 18, are dependent upon relatives and friends.

Garrett, who is employed on the John Chaney farm in Madison township, had just left his home, a five-room frame dwelling, last Thursday morning when his attention was attracted by a cloud of smoke. He hurried back and found the house in a mass of flames.

Several pieces of furniture which had been purchased two days before the fire and other furnishings, together with a small sum of money, were lost in the blaze.

Hair Beauty

The constant curling and waving demanded by modern style in hair dress, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

Keeping Pace With Community Progress

Nearly every financial institution reflects the progress of the community it serves. The growth and development of such institutions as a result of increased patronage is, therefore, as much a cause for public congratulations as for private gratification.

For the fourth time in the history of the Potters National Bank, increased business and demands for more adequate facilities have made larger and better quarters necessary.

And now, on the eve of another and greater period of progress in the life of this old bank, the Officers and Directors extend their hearty congratulations to East Liverpool's citizens whose progressiveness has made necessary the construction of this new and complete banking home.

You are cordially invited to attend our opening

NOW YOU MAY TRY THIS VEGETABLE SYRUP FREE

This Is Your Chance to Prove That Toning Up Your Liver Will End That Tired, Run-Down Feeling. Build Yourself Up! Win Back Sound Digestion, Strength and Energy — Feel Your Very Best Again!

In his private practice Dr. H. S. Thacher demonstrated that such symptoms as Indigestion, Gas on a Sour Stomach, Belching, Dizziness, Colds that Hang On, Sick Headaches, Constipation, that Tired Feeling and a general Run-Down condition of the System are often the result of a Sluggish Liver—and that relief in such cases comes quickly when the Liver is properly Cleansed and Toned and the System is working normally again.

Why This Gives Relief.

When working as Nature intended your Liver does three things necessary to keep you feeling your best. First, it purifies your BLOOD, every drop of which passes through the Liver every fifteen minutes. Second, your Liver furnishes the essences that are essential to perfect DIGESTION. Third, your Liver supplies the secretions Nature uses to lubricate your intestines so that your Bowels can move naturally, gently and regularly every day. When your liver becomes sluggish it cannot do these three things; consequently, you suffer from one or more of the symptoms above described.

Share It With Family!

Poultry Thieves Active in Various Sections of County.

Columbiana county farmers have lost between $5,000 and $10,000 worth of poultry during the first 10 months of this year through theft, according to reports made known to Sheriff George Wright. Knox township heads the list with a loss of $1,000, farmers of that township assert.

Hardly a week passes but what the office of Sheriff Wright is advised of the theft of from 50 to 100 head of poultry by several different farmers. Clues are hard to obtain, for the reason that trucks are used, and although treads may be traced along dirt roads, as soon as the truck is driven onto a hard surfaced road, all traces of the truck is lost.

That an organized band of chicken thieves is operating in this county is not only the opinion of farmers but also of Sheriff Wright. Poultry thieves have been operating in the night season, and after poultry houses have been robbed, the heads of the poultry are wrung off and the stock cast into the truck.

At times stolen live poultry from this county is sold through a "fence" at Youngstown, but the majority of the stolen poultry is sold as "full dressed" or "hog dressed."

Farmers in Butler township have suffered severe losses, also those in Knox, West, Salem and Center townships. A second poultry robbery has just been reported to Sheriff Wright from the McPherson farm on the Salem-Lisbon road north of Lisbon. At this farm, after the poultry was "lifted" from the poultry houses heads of stock were wrung off and the heads left lying on the road.

A movement has been launched among farmers to form a rural police patrol, under the provisions of an old law operative during the "horse stealing days" and for the same purpose, to shoot thieves. All night watches are now being maintained in some localities of the county.

Over 1,500 head of poultry has been lost to farmers of this county during the last month, and all through theft.

"Lock poultry houses securely," is the warning that has been broadcasted by Sheriff Wright to all farmers. "Attach alarms to all windows and entrances of poultry houses. Where it is possible, wire poultry houses for electricity, with such an alarm system attached so that when any door or window or entrance is opened an alarm will be sounded and the lights switched on. This is a sure cure for the band of poultry thieves," Sheriff Wright warned.

Receivers Discharged.

Receivers who were appointed recently by Judge James G. Moore in the case of the Dollar Savings & Trust company of Youngstown against the Coll-Cochrane company of East Palestine have been discharged by the court. The report of the receivers has been approved and confirmed by the court and the costs in the action have been paid.

Two Men Paroled.

Upon the written recommendation of Justice of the Peace J. O. McCord of West Point, Madison township, the county commissioners have granted a parole to Frank Galla, who was fined $1,000 and costs in the court of Mr. McCord for violating the liquor laws.

Mayor George E. Shaffer of Salem recommended the release of Wilber Shultz, who was sent to the county jail for violating his first parole. Both paroled men have announced their intention to discount remaining fines on a monthly basis.

Marriage Licenses.

A marriage license has been issued to Fred H. Hadley, formerly of Cleveland, but now residing in East Liverpool and engaged as a telephone engineer, and Miss Mary Hawkins, formerly of Chicago, Ill., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Hawkins, and now employed as a bookkeeper in East Liverpool.

Howard Rankin of Niles and Miss Olive Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Ward of Salem, but a former resident of Missouri, has been granted a marriage license.

Case Appealed.

After judgment by default in favor of the plaintiff, Charles E. Wymer took an appeal to common pleas court in this action, his appeal bond for $50 being signed by T. W. Walton. The case was filed in the justice of the peace court of Charles W. Powell by Barbara Fowler for $11.59 claimed due for groceries sold.

Home Statistics.

There are 76 males and 36 females now being cared for at the county home, according to the October report just furnished the county commissioners by Supt. John P. Neil. The records show that more people are cared for at this institution during the winter than during the summer season. During October two deaths occurred at the home.

Wilson Funeral.

Rev. D. E. Scott, pastor of the Lakeside Methodist Episcopal church, Cleveland, and former pastor of the Lisbon Methodist Episcopal church, officiated with Rev. W. E. Tilton, pastor of this church; Rev. P. W. Macauley of the Lisbon Presbyterian church, and Rev. J. E. Scott of the Elkton M. E. church at the funeral of the late H. F. Wilson, North Market street, Monday afternoon.

Leave for Florida.

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated women and girls had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, biliousness, sallow skin, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross feverish, sick child gladly takes it.

CROSSING CRASH

Village Grief-stricken as Result of Tragedy.

NAHUNTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—A pall of sorrow hung over this village today, as preparations were made to bury the eight children killed when the Everglades limited, New York to Florida flyer on the Atlantic Coast line, crashed into a school bus near here, at a grade crossing.

Twenty children are in the Atlantic Coast line hospital at Waycross, where they were rushed after the crash, recovering from injuries. Seven were killed outright or died within a few minutes, and the eighth child died last night.

The dead and injured children all live in the country surrounding Nahunta, and it was hours before parents of some of the killed and injured children learned of the tragedy.

Heart-rending scenes were enacted when committees of Nahunta citizens traveled in motor cars into the surrounding country to notify the parents of the children that their babies were not safe in the new consolidated school building at Nahunta, but were lying dead or maimed in the morgue and hospital at Waycross.

Ebert Denies Candidacy Report.

According to precinct rumors, considerable scratching marked the voting during the forenoon. Among the reports was one to the effect that the name of Dr. J. P. Ebert, East Fifth street optometrist, was being written on the ballot for the mayoralty place. Dr. Ebert, at noon, denied he was a candidate for the office.

"I am not in politics and if my name is being written on the ballot by my friends it is without my knowledge and consent," Dr. Ebert said. "A year ago a committee visited me, requesting that I enter the race for mayor, but my answer was 'no' then and I have not changed my mind since then."

L. M. Poole, Republican nominee for Third ward council, and who is unopposed by the Democrats, will face opposition from Charles McNicol, pottery manufacturer, whose friends announced they will write his name on the independent ballot.

George Dawson, special police officer, has been entered as a candidate for Fourth ward councilman, it is reported, opposing George Hughes, Republican, and James Godwin, Democrat. Dawson's name will be written in the independent column.

Another report indicated that Attorney J. H. Brookes, who resigned from the school board early in the fall, will receive complimentary votes for the place today, although he declined to be a candidate. His name, it is said, is being written on the ballot.

C. A. Ferguson, who was appointed to succeed Brookes, and Robert Stevenson, are unopposed for the two board of education memberships.

State amendments will be the first ballot to be counted after the polls close. The county road bond issue will be the second, after which will come the city ticket and municipal court judgeship.

Nevins Purchases Clothing Store in New Kensington, Pa.

P. H. Nevins, former owner of the P. H. Nevins, and company store, which occupied quarters in the Milligan building, East Fifth street, destroyed by fire February 22, last, has purchased Fisher Brother's clothing store in New Kensington, Pa. Mrs. Nevins and children will leave Thursday for New Kensington, where they will make their future home.

Today's Calendar

Briefly summarized, today's election calendar follows:

Virginia—General election of governor, all state officers and new assembly.

Indiana—Municipal elections in 101 cities.

Michigan—Municipal elections in many cities, including Detroit.

New York—Municipal elections in New York, Buffalo, and other cities, election of entire new assembly, and voting upon four constitutional amendments.

Kentucky—Election of new assembly, one congerssman, many county and municipal officers.

Ohio—Municipal election in many cities, statewide vote on constitutional amendments; local bond issue elections.

Utah—Municipal elections in many cities.

Missouri—Municipal election in Kansas City.

California—Special election in San Francisco to determine municipal purchase of a street railway.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3.—Despite favorable weather conditions a light vote is being cast throughout Ohio today, according to indications early this afternoon at the offices of Secretary of State Brown.

While voters, apparently, were turning out in good numbers in cities, where warm contests had developed over proposed bond issues, special tax levies and municipal offices, lack of interest prevailed generally in rural districts.

Pittsburgh Goes To Polls.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 3.—Voting for a mayor and five councilmen, Pittsburgh went to the polls today at the conclusion of one of the quietest campaigns in years. Voters were hesitant in the early hours, causing election officials to anticipate a light vote.

Besides the municipal election, a slate of county officers was to be chosen and the state was to elect a superior court judge.

In Pittsburgh the Republicans counted on a plurality of 50,000 for Judge Charles H. Kline, nominee for mayor. Opposing the jurist were W. L. Smith, Prohibitionist, and C. C. Johnson, Democrat.

Hans Wagner, star shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates in former years, stood for election as sheriff on the Labor-Non-Partisan ticket. He was opposed by both Republican and Democrat candidates, however.

Klan Issue in Two Cities.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 3.—Detroit voters, stirred by the Klan issue, went to the polls today to decide one of the hardest fought campaigns in the city's history. A mayor and nine councilmen are to be elected by what is believed will be a record vote.

Mayor John W. Smith and Charles Bowles, an attorney, are opposing each other for the mayoralty office. Mayor Smith charges the Klan with attempting to get control of the city government, while Bowles denies membership in the order.

Fair weather and bitterness between the two factions will bring out a record vote, it is believed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—Voters in a number of Indiana cities trekked to the polls today to elect municipal officials.

Indianapolis was expected to vote John L. Duvall, Republican backed by the Klan, into the mayoral chair, but the fight admittedly will be decidedly close. The personal popularity of Walter Myers spurred Republican leaders to strenuous efforts to defeat him.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—Kansas City was voting today to elect a mayor under a new charter embracing the city manager plan of the government and a bond issue of $26,500,000 for public improvements.

Although, under the new form, politics were supposed to be cast aside, each party had endorsed a candidate. A. I. Beach, incumbent, was backed by the Republican organization and Ben Jaudon, city treasurer, by the Democrats.

Boston's Spectacular Campaign

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—Fair weather and a heavy early vote marked the opening today of the mayoralty election, which came in the wake of an eleventh hour frenzied drive for votes by the 10 candidates in the windup of of one of the most spectacular campaigns in the city's history. Polls opened at 6 a. m. and were scheduled to close at 8 p. m.

Political control of Boston, expenditure of four hundred million dollars in the appropriations and public improvements during the next mayor's four-year term of office and the bearing of the contest next fall between United States Senator William M. Butler and former United States Senator David I. Walsh were the sweepstakes of this year's mayoralty election.

Vote Upon Amendments.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Ohio voters today were voting upon three amendments to the state constitution, most Ohio cities were choosing city officers and townships were electing township officials in the biennial "off-year" election.

Main interest in thes tate results centered in the proposal to amend the constitution by providing for the classification of property for taxation. Reformers have long pointed to the Ohio constitutional rule which provides for taxation of "all property real and personal, at its true value in money," as archaic. It was adopted in 1851, and repeated attempts to change it since that time have been unavailable. A second amendment would impose a constitutional limit upon the debt making power of municipalities, and a third would extend the terms of state and county officials to four years from the present limit of two in most instances.

Interest in municipal results was "spotted." Cleveland with more than a quarter million voters was not expected to poll more than 100,000. Here a city council of 25 was to be chosen on a proportional representation ballot—the second test of this ballot in a metropolitan community.

Cincinnati was to choose a council of nine members under a new charter effective next January. A reform ticket was opposed by the regular Republican nominees, who had the support of Rud K. Hynicka, Republican leader since the death of George B. Cox.

Toledo was voting upon bond issues totalling $32,500,000, providing for an ambitious plan of civic improvement.

In other cities the municipal elections were expected to bring out a large vote. The Ku Klux Klan had in many instances entered the fight with slates of endorsed candidates and its influences was expected to sway the result in many municipalities.

Hot Fight in New Jersey.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 3.—Faced with last-minute claims of a large majority victory by both Republicans and Democrats, the voting populace of New Jersey went to the polls today to choose between State Senator Arthur Whitney, backed by the Republican party and the Anti-Saloon league, and Commissioner A. Harry Moore, the Democratic candidate for governor.

Harry Heher, chairman of the Democratic state committee, asserted that Moore would carry New Jersey by at least 150,000. He based his figures on the admitted plurality of at least 100,000 that Moore will poll in Jersey City, the Democratic stronghold. Whitney's supporters, on the other hand, contend that they will carry practically all other counties, with a vote heavy enough to win by 60,000 over Moore.

Squads of detectives were on hand as crowds began to gather at the polls, prompted by charges that thousands of "floaters" from New York city would be imported to "steal" the election.

Toledo's Ambitious Program.

TOLEDO, Nov. 3.—Voters of Toledo today, in addition to electing a mayor and other city officials, were voting on the most ambitious improvement plan, to be financed by bond issues, ever submitted to the voters of an Ohio city.

Bond issues totalling $32,500,000, providing for such things as harbor improvement, street paving and widening, parks and playgrounds, a modern traffic control system and a score of lesser matters, have taken the attention of the voters from the personality of the candidates.

Walter F. Brown, long the leader of the Republican party here, is directing the fight for the bond issues and predicts success for most if not all the issues.

Opponents declare that the seuccess of the plan means an average annual increase in taxation of $7 or more. Friends of the proposals say the cost will be from $1.50 to $2.00 annually to the average taxpayer.

Proponents of the bonds point to the example of St. Louis, where $80,000,000 was voted by the people at one time for improvements, and contend that taxes on the increased duplicate bound to follow a modern city will pay the entire cost within the life of the bonds.

feet, is ashed and can be traveled in winter weather if necessary. With a month of good weather, the contractors may complete the job, but this is regarded as improbable.

The contractors have been forced to pay railroad demurrage on several carloads of sand, gravel, cement and other materials for several weeks, because of the inclement weather. These materials have been standing on sidings in Smiths Ferry.

The Beaver county commissioners have awarded the Rinehart firm the contract for filling the approaches to the new highway span across Beaver creek. Material for the fills will be hauled from the upper end of the improvement in traction dump cars.

While the Midland-East Liverpool road is being improved, traffic to Midland, Vanport, Industry, Beaver and other Beaver valley towns will be detoured over what is known as the Tuscarawas road, which goes through Smiths Ferry, up the hill through Ohioville, Esther and follows the ridge into Beaver. This road is unimproved.

A motor truck, owned by the Enterprise Coal company, loaded with coal, caught fire near the corner of Green lane and Briar alley at 10 o'clock this morning. Firemen from the Central station who were summoned extinguished the blaze with chemicals. Back fire was blamed for the blaze.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The army court-martial that is trying Col. William Mitchell for "conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline" decided today to give the flying general ample opportunity to defend himself before finding him guilty.

After promptly over-ruling a motion to dismiss the whole case, which indicated an eventful verdict of guilt, the jury of generals granted him an adjournment until Monday next in order to obtain numerous witnesses through whom Mitchell will endeavor to prove that his charges of "criminal negligence" and "almost treasonable" administration of the army and navy air services were fully justified.

free—after seven years—merely because that slave happened to be of the same religion as the owner. Suppose the slave had the decency to want to stay with his family born in slavery, what would the modern man do?

You wouldn't find many men that would nail his ear to the door, and keep him a slave forever simply because the poor fellow wouldn't leave his wife and children.

We are better than they were in old Bible days, good bishop of Durham. If a modern patriarch turned a slave girl, with his own child, adrift in the desert, to please a jealous old wife, he would not brag about it.

The bishop says the people are committing suicide and generally going wrong because they lack religion.

On the other hand the bishop must remember that some of the most terrible recent suicides have been based on religious frenzy, pushing religion too far.

Aristotle wasn't a Christian, never had a chance to be, for Christianity had not started in his day. Yet there is a great deal of Christian wisdom in his saying: "Not too much, not too little."

We have just now too much of the jazz band, perhaps, too little of the book of Job. A man of real intellect would find in the magnificent writing of Job ten times the inspiration he would find in all the jazz bands of the world combined.

But the bishop must be patient. We have come out of a great war, young people have had a bad example put before them. They have seen the very rich swindling their own government, on a "dollar a year" patriot basis.

They have seen Liberty bonds that they bought at par knocked down to $85 for $100 worth. Then they saw them go above par after the big gentlemen had gathered them in.

They have seen little people conscripted, to be sent out to be gassed and shot, while the more prosperous sat in their swivel chairs, wearing magnificent uniforms, play heroic parts.

Men have been taken from their villages and farms, marched around, bossed and bullied by officers manufactured over night.

Girls have been taken from their homes and put into ammunition factories and in other queer, unfit places. There has been some breaking down of moral fiber.

But the human race hasn't gone to the dogs. Incidentally, if the British bishop were well informed, he would know that there is much more general morality in the United States than there is in Great Britain.

Statistics will prove to him that diseases born of immorality are far more frequent and harmful in Great Britain than in this country.

However, both Great Britain and the United States are all right, fundamentally.

We have within ourselves, as every man can testify, an intense desire to do what is right.

There is not one of us outside of the insane asylum that has any intense desire to do what is wrong. We are driven to wrong, sometimes by our weakennesses, lack of education, poor environment.

But our spirits turn to the light, toward what is good.

We can truly say that we needn't worry about our civilization, our race, or the worries that torment the good bishop of Durham.

ENGLAND GOES SOCIALISTIC

Party Candidates Win 50 Seats in Borough Elections.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Socialist victories in the borough elections throughout England were indicated in early returns today. With half of the London vote completely tabulated, the Socialists were credited with gaining 50 seats there and the anti-Socialists 12.

The elections was featured by scenes of violence in the Battersea district where Socialists clashed with municipal reformers marching under the Union Jack. The Socialists seized and tore up copies of conservative newspapers.

Police charged the crowds and arrested eight persons.

LOSE SAVINGS IN HOME FIRE

R. R. Garrett, Wife and Son Dependent Upon Friends.

Savings of a lifetime were lost last Thursday morning when fire totally destroyed the home of R. R. Garrett, about a mile from Stop 55, on the Y. & O. railroad and the Lincoln highway, it developed today.

Garrett, his wife and son, Raymond, 18, are dependent upon relatives and friends.

Garrett, who is employed on the John Chaney farm in Madison township, had just left his home, a five-room frame dwelling, last Thursday morning when his attention was attracted by a cloud of smoke. He hurried back and found the house in a mass of flames.

Several pieces of furniture which had been purchased two days before the fire and other furnishings, together with a small sum of money, were lost in the blaze.

An appeal for clothing has been made by members of the family to the Salvation Army. Men's overcoats, trousers, underwear, shoes and socks are needed.

TRAIN SINKS IN GUMBO, FIND OIL

Drilling Crew, Forced to Unload, Makes Strike.

Dallas, Texas.—The opening up of Reagan county, Texas, as a great oil-producing area has furnished one of the most interesting chapters in the history of oil-field developments in this country.

A year or so ago a party of Texas business men obtained from the state authorities leases on many square miles of prairie lands in that county for the purpose of exploiting the acreage for oil. The leases in question were located about 150 miles from the nearest oil production.

After the company had sold stock for about 20 cents a share and raised more money by the formation of an allied organization to which a considerable acreage was assigned the work of drilling a test well in this wildcat territory was undertaken.

A railroad that has been in the hands of receivers for a long time passed through a large section of this property. Believing the railroad was in a hopeless condition, the receivers had petitioned the state authorities for consent to abandon the property, which was in reality a streak of rust, and to sell the rails and other assets as junk. The state railroad commission declined to grant the request.

After loading up several flat cars with derrick timber, casings and other material necessary to drill an oil well, the Pioneer Oil company of Reagan county directed the railroad officials to convey the material to a point along the broken down railroad, from which point the drilling material was to be hauled some miles by horses to a place where it was considered most desirable to start the test well.

After the drilling material had been transported about fifty miles from the loading point the rails began to settle and finally the weight of the locomotive and freight cars caused the road way to sink in Texas gumbo to the depth of several feet.

Being unable to proceed any farther, the drilling material was unloaded and it was then and there decided to drill on the spot. The well came in a large high-gravity producer. It opened up what is now considered the most promising light oil field in Texas.

Enlarge Welland Canal for Ocean Steamships

New York.—When Canada completes the job of expanding the Welland ship canal, it will offer a channel for vessels of 15,000 tons capacity with lock chambers 820 feet long.

This artificial waterway provides the way for vessels passing between Lake Erie to Lake Ontario "to climb up and down Niagara falls." Canada has already spent $50,000,000 on improvement and plans to spend another $50,000,000 before the work is finished in 1929.

Within five years big ocean steamers can come directly up the lakes to Cleveland, Chicago, Duluth and other important shipping points. The Welland lock chambers, 820 feet long, will admit the passage of almost every type of ocean vessel. The lock chambers of the Panama canal, capable of handling any boat afloat, are only 1,000 feet long.

The near approach of this notable improvement in the Welland canal, the total cost of which is borne by Canada, may prove an incentive to a speedy decision on international plans for the continuation of the seaward route improvement through the canalization of the St. Lawrence river by the United States and Canada.

HEAVY LOSSES DUE TO THEFTS

Poultry Thieves Active in Various Sections of County.

Columbiana county farmers have lost between $5,000 and $10,000 worth of poultry during the first 10 months of this year through theft, according to reports made known to Sheriff George Wright. Knox township heads the list with a loss of $1,000, farmers of that township assert.

Hardly a week passes but what the office of Sheriff Wright is advised of the theft of from 50 to 100 head of poultry by several different farmers. Clues are hard to obtain, for the reason that trucks are used, and although treads may be traced along dirt roads, as soon as the truck is driven onto a hard surfaced road, all traces of the truck is lost.

That an organized band of chicken thieves is operating in this county is not only the opinion of farmers but also of Sheriff Wright. Poultry thieves have been operating in the night season, and after poultry houses have been robbed, the heads of the poultry are wrung off and the stock cast into the truck.

At times stolen live poultry from this county is sold through a "fence" at Youngstown, but the majority of the stolen poultry is sold as "full dressed" or "hog dressed."

Farmers in Butler township have suffered severe losses, also those in Knox, West, Salem and Center townships. A second poultry robbery has just been reported to Sheriff Wright from the McPherson farm on the Salem-Lisbon road north of Lisbon. At this farm, after the poultry was "lifted" from the poultry houses heads of stock were wrung off and the heads left lying on the road.

A movement has been launched among farmers to form a rural police patrol, under the provisions of an old law operative during the "horse stealing days" and for the same purpose, to shoot thieves. All night watches are now being maintained in some localities of the county.

Over 1,500 head of poultry has been lost to farmers of this county during the last month, and all through theft.

"Lock poultry houses securely," is the warning that has been broadcasted by Sheriff Wright to all farmers. "Attach alarms to all windows and entrances of poultry houses. Where it is possible, wire poultry houses for electricity, with such an alarm system attached so that when any door or window or entrance is opened an alarm will be sounded and the lights switched on. This is a sure cure for the band of poultry thieves," Sheriff Wright warned.

Receivers Discharged.

Receivers who were appointed recently by Judge James G. Moore in the case of the Dollar Savings & Trust company of Youngstown against the Coll-Cochrane company of East Palestine have been discharged by the court. The report of the receivers has been approved and confirmed by the court and the costs in the action have been paid.

Two Men Paroled.

Upon the written recommendation of Justice of the Peace J. O. McCord of West Point, Madison township, the county commissioners have granted a parole to Frank Galla, who was fined $1,000 and costs in the court of Mr. McCord for violating the liquor laws.

Mayor George E. Shaffer of Salem recommended the release of Wilber Shultz, who was sent to the county jail for violating his first parole. Both paroled men have announced their intention to discount remaining fines on a monthly basis.

A marriage license has been issued to Fred H. Hadley, formerly of Cleveland, but now residing in East Liverpool and engaged as a telephone engineer, and Miss Mary Hawkins, formerly of Chicago, Ill., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Hawkins, and now employed as a bookkeeper in East Liverpool.

Howard Rankin of Niles and Miss Olive Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Ward of Salem, but a former resident of Missouri, has been granted a marriage license.

Case Appealed.

After judgment by default in favor of the plaintiff, Charles E. Wymer took an appeal to common pleas court in this action, his appeal bond for $50 being signed by T. W. Walton. The case was filed in the justice of the peace court of Charles W. Powell by Barbara Fowler for $11.59 claimed due for groceries sold.

Home Statistics.

There are 76 males and 36 females now being cared for at the county home, according to the October report just furnished the county commissioners by Supt. John P. Neil. The records show that more people are cared for at this institution during the winter than during the summer season. During October two deaths occurred at the home.

Tilton, pastor of this church; Rev. P. W. Macauley of the Lisbon Presbyterian church, and Rev. J. E. Scott of the Elkton M. E. church at the funeral of the late H. F. Wilson, North Market street, Monday afternoon.

Tells Women to Avoid "Physics"

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated women and girls had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, biliousness, sallow skin, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross feverish, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just ... self.

PLAN TO FIGHT STATE TAX LAW

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—Counsel for the Manufacturers Light & Gas company of Pittsburgh prepared today to fight the West Virginia gross sales tax law "to the last ditch."

The company has on file in federal court at Charleston a bill of complaint against the gross sales tax law, questioning it constitutionality.

At the office of E. O. Weil, counsel for the firm, it was learned that the chief allegation of the company in attacking the law's constitutionality would be on the grounds that "a tax on the producing and purchasing of gas as measured by gross proceeds derived from the sale of the gas, irrespective of where the gas is delivered, is a tax on the transportation in interstate commerce and a direct burden on commodity transportation."

Weil's office expects the case to come up in federal court at the West Virginia capital in about three or four weeks, the date to be set later by Judge George W. McClintic.

In anticipation of a bitter contest from forces of the state tax commission, the Pittsburgh concern already has begun planning its attack. Should the Charleston court hand down an adverse decision, an appeal will be taken to the United States supreme court.

How to stop BOILS!

There's only one way to stop boils. Stop the cause of boils! That's common sense—isn't it? All right. Boils thrive because the blood gets so weak in healthy, red cells that it can't throw off the impurities that get into the body. There's not enough rich, red blood to purify the system.

Now—S. S. S. builds back the blood to fighting strength. S. S. S. builds red-blood-cells — builds them by the millions! Boils dry up!

S. S. S. is the thing. Impurities that cause boils and other skin eruptions can't stand up against the rich, healthy, red blood that S. S. S. builds. That's all there is to it.

Stop boils with S. S. S. It's the way. Get it at any druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Doe Norris

CHAPTER 85.

The star reporter of the Daily News, Sam Sherwood, approached the city editor briskly. "Got a great story, Jack. Charities Union is sore because this Ainsley girl isn't going to have anything to do with the union. A committee of directors called on her today and a break developed. The women almost got to pulling hair, despite Sam Hill Gagley could do to keep them apart. Mrs. Ovid Slaughter razzed the Ainsley girl." "Whew! But wait a minute! It's loaded with dynamite. These Charity Union directors or their husbands are all advertisers, and you know we can't shoot off any fireworks around any of the Ainsleys: Put on the soft petal, and I'll get the boss' O. K. on the story."

"Oh, hell," Sam Sherwood grumbled.

"Yeah, I hate to spoil the story, too. Now run along like a nice boy and maybe papa will buy you an all day sucker," the city editor said, resuming his reading of the latest issue of Crime Mysteries Magazine.

Sherwood, pecking with two fingers, typed his story as he smoked a cigarette, the smoke curling around his eyes so that he blinked as he worked.

"Hope that the new Westland Community House, founded by Miss Amoura Ainsley, would soon become a member of the Charities Union was expressed by directors of the organization today.

"A committee of directors, Mrs. Ovid Slaughter, Mrs. J. G. Stone and Sam Hill Bagley, called on Miss Ainsley today, and after an inspection of the house, expressed to her the desire of the union to have her as a member, co-operating with the union in its work. Miss Ainsley promised co-operation but declined to enter the union at this time, explaining that the Community House was, in her opinion, not strictly a charity.

"At the same time Miss Ainsley announced that the Community House would not solicit funds for maintenance purposes, as do other local organizations."

There was more to Sherwood's story, but these paragraphs are sufficient to indicate its tone.

The members of the committee read the story in the afternoon's News with mixed feelings. Amoura Ainsley did not see the item. She did not go home to dinner that evening, but worked into the night with the dietician and nurses, hot, tired, fretful, preparing for the opening of the house on the morrow.

The plan was for the nurses to visit all the houses in the slum district in turn, informing the women of the purposes of the Community House, and inviting them to attend opening exercises on Mondty of the following week. Each house was to be listed, with the name of occupant and owner, number of rooms, number of occupants, sanitary conveniences, state of condition, and any general information that might be useful. It was intended to keep a card index file history of the residents of the district.

"All of this information we must obtain without giving them the idea we are snooping," Amoura cautioned the staff. "We're not going to uplift anybody against their will. We want to help them, but they must want us to."

It rained the following morning, a chilling, depressing rain that seemed like an ominous warning of what was to follow. Amoura paced from room to room of the house, distrait with a curious restlessness that made her want to leave and do something nerve-racking, like driving an automobile furiously through the rain.

The members of the staff were not excited, but appeared to be bored. The nurses, dismissing any idea of beginning their rounds in the downpour, sat and talked of school days; they had been trained in different hospitals and had much to compare and comment upon. The janitor smoked his pipe beside the furnace and read a newspaper, slow and "hard of hearing," who had been chosen by Amoura from a number of applicants because he was the cleanest in appearance. The dietician alone was busy. She was hammering up new hooks and rearranging untensils in the model kitchen. Her assistant was idly watching her; a glum woman of the district, chosen by Amoura for the role because she believed that this woman, when properly trained, would be better able to tell her Green street sisters how to do things than the collegiate dietician.

"We just thought we'd come an' look aroun'," said one of the callers, speaking for herself and neighbor.

'Come right in and welcome. I'm Miss Ainsley," Her smile faded before their penetrating glances.

"Oh, you was th' lady that was kidnaped, wasn't you?" one of them said, cackling.

Not knowing what to say, Amoura smiled again. "I know you'd like to see the house. Come with me." They followed her silently, regarding her with curious eyes as she explained volubly the purpose of the rooms and the various equipment. With relief, Amoura turned them over to the dietician.

In the afternoon there was a string of callers from the district. For the most part they stared at Amoura, listened silently to what she and the dietician had to say, and departed whispering. A few asked helpful questions.

At 5 o'clock the nurses returned. "We were'nt very welcome anywhere, and some wanted us to prescribe for their ills," both reported, though the two had worked singly.

Amoura smiled blankly. "I'm going home now. I don't think I'll come down this evening. If no one come in after dinner—their supper—let the janitor close up early. Good night." She left shivering. It was in her mind to walk home, but at a corner a group of men stared at her so that she quickened he pace and turned to Main street to get a taxicab. Without saying whether she was going to have dinner, she went directly to her room and crumpled upon the bed, a weeping, disillusioned figure.

TRAIN SINKS IN GUMBO, FIND OIL

Drilling Crew, Forced to Unload, Makes Strike.

Dallas, Texas.—The opening up of Reagan county, Texas, as a great oil-producing area has furnished one of the most interesting chapters in the history of oil-field developments in this country.

A year or so ago a party of Texas business men obtained from the state authorities leases on many square miles of prairie lands in that county for the purpose of exploiting the acreage for oil. The leases in question were located about 150 miles from the nearest oil production.

After the company had sold stock for about 20 cents a share and raised more money by the formation of an allied organization to which a considerable acreage was assigned the work of drilling a test well in this wildcat territory was undertaken.

A railroad that has been in the hands of receivers for a long time passed through a large section of this property. Believing the railroad was in a hopeless condition, the receivers had petitioned the state authorities for consent to abandon the property, which was in reality a streak of rust, and to sell the rails and other assets as junk. The state railroad commission declined to grant the request.

After loading up several flat cars with derrick timber, casings and other material necessary to drill an oil well, the Pioneer Oil company of Reagan county directed the railroad officials to convey the material to a point along the broken down railroad, from which point the drilling material was to be hauled some miles by horses to a place where it was considered most desirable to start the test well.

After the drilling material had been transported about fifty miles from the loading point the rails began to settle and finally the weight of the locomotive and freight cars caused the roadway to sink in Texas gumbo to the depth of several feet.

Being unable to proceed any farther, the drilling material was unloaded and it was then and there decided to drill on the spot. The well came in a large high-gravity producer. It opened up what is now considered the most promising light oil field in Texas.

Enlarge Welland Canal for Ocean Steamships

New York.—When Canada completes the job of expanding the Welland ship canal, it will offer a channel for vessels of 15,000 tons capacity with lock chambers 820 feet long.

This artificial waterway provides the way for vessels passing between Lake Erie to Lake Ontario "to climb up and down Niagara falls." Canada has already spent $50,000,000 on improvement and plans to spend another $50,000,000 before the work is finished in 1929.

Within five years big ocean steamers can come directly up the lakes to Cleveland, Chicago, Duluth and other important shipping points. The Welland lock chambers, 820 feet long, will admit the passage of almost every type of ocean vessel. The lock chambers of the Panama canal, capable of handling any boat afloat, are only 1,000 feet long.

The near approach of this notable improvement in the Welland canal, the total cost of which is borne by Canada, may prove an incentive to a speedy decision on international plans for the continuation of the seaward route improvement through the canalization of the St. Lawrence river by the United States and Canada.

Reserve Eleven Will Try to Shake Oberlin From Its Perch

Days of Tandem Bucks, The Portmans, Cripps Terrill and Others, Say Clevelanders Whipped Congregationalists Frequently, But in The Last Decade Only The Memory Has Remained.

By Stanley D. Koch.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Back in the days when Cleveland was more truly the forest than the fifth city and when college styles included wide pegged trousers, a soft hat with a match stuck in the brim and the proverbial bull dog, the football teams from Western Reserve used to mix up with the Oberlin elevens of that period in battles that rumbled the whole state.

Those were the days when "Muff" and "Doc" Portman, Cripps, Tommy Terrill and Ray Barney, wore red and white. While Glen Gray, Pyle and Metcalf sported gold "O's" on crimson sweaters. Those were the days when the tandem bucks were patterned after pile drivers and the flying wedge flew high. Those, too, were the days when touchdowns counted five points and ambulances scurried on and off the field. And in that halcyon era, Western Reserve had a fairly consistent habit of beating Oberlin more times than she was defeated by the Congregationalists.

But in the past decade, only that memory has remained—at least with any regularity. This week-end, another Reserve team bumps up against another Oberlin outfit at Oberlin. The latter is tied for first place in the Ohio conference race. It hasn't been defeated this year, although Mt. Union played it a scoreless tie. And the Crimson and Gold followers are sighting another championship in the offing.

Western Reserve, on the other hand, has had a freak reason, looking good and bad with the majority in favor of the bad. But that intangible college spirit that inspires a team to play way over its head in a crucial game, seemingly in honor of its more noteworthy predecessors, is running rampant on the Reserve campus.

Oberlin is a smooth running, hard tackling eleven, so characteristic of Crimson and Gold teams. That team has been trained to go into a game with a methodical plan and purpose of winning and then, except against Mt. Union, it has followed out its instructions. So, all in all, it looks like a whale of a battle Saturday.

At Cincinnati, the undefeated St. Xavier crew meets Akron. At present, the Saints look like the one and only bet to defeat Ohio Wesleyan, who is encountered a few weeks later, but to justify that belief, the Saints must wallop Akron this week. Coach Coleman's eleven is an in-and-outer, and its only a reasonable guess than this week will be another "outer" week. Xavier's neat football in winning the Kenyon game has stamped Coach Myer's team as dangerous and if Akron can be overcome, all will hinge on the Wesleyan contest.

Another good scrap is carded for Alliance when Miami meets Mt. Union. The Mounts overwhelmed Cast last week, showing all kinds of stuff, while Miami dropped a 6-0 game to Denison, thereby giving all the dopesters a sudden and devastating shock. However, should the same Oxford squad that annihilated Wittenberg, 30-0, function as such, the Mounts will be beaten. But, it will take all of that early season form to defeat Coach Thorpe's eleven.

Denison, elated with the outcome of the Miami scrap takes on another tough nut in Muskingum at Granville. The Muskies are a regular aggregation this year and the Big Red will be forced to play its string to the full to defeat them. Last week, saw the Denison forwards showing extremely well and this week needs a repetition in addition to more power from the Granville backs.

At Springfield, Wittenberg and Cincinnati hook up, with the Lutherans giving the shade.

Having successfully overcome the inertia of losing the first three games, Baldwin-Wallace has swung into a winning stride, apparently unstoppable. This week-end, Otterbein is met Westerville and the United at Westerville and the United Brethren will need more than a spiritual bond to hold the line intact against Lisse and his coworkers. The Berea team is a pleasant surprise this season and should be a fairly easy winner.

Kenyon, despite the loss to St. Xavier, is hoping for the best, which means that some eleven will defeat Wesleyan. Oberlin and St. Xavier, which will still give the Gamblerites a chance for the title. This week, Kenyon will have the pleasure of defeating Hiram at Gambier and unless all the edifices of football prophecy come tumbling down, this will obtain.

Two .333 teams meet at Cleveland when Case and Ohio Northern play. Over-confidence is blamed for the Norsemen's defeat at the hands of Ohio university, while sheer inability is the reason for Case's 32-0 defeat by Mt. Union. Mark your own ticket on this game, but the dope points to Ohio Northern.

In the two non-conference games, the Ohio Wesleyan-Syracuse contest at Syracuse is obviously the bigger. The undefeated, unscored-on Syracuse eleven will undoubtedly win, but Wesleyan can be counted on to do itself justice. In the other battle, Ohio university meets Marietta at Athens and may take a beating.

Laughlin 1 vs Hall China.

Two Industrial Duckpin records were broken and third endangered when Taylor, Smith and Taylor bowlers cleaned up last night on the American Express in a three-game series at the Liberty alleys.

Canne, of the T. S. T. five, in the second game shot a 188 and topped Art Smith's 166 by 22 pins. Smith was high during the first week of the pin competition.

In the other two games Canne rolled 126 and 141, respectively, and, as a result, compiled a 455 total for the series which considerably shades the 424 marks rolled by Oliver and Ashbaugh last week.

The Chesterites lacked 20 pins of reaching the 1818 high series team total rolled last week by the Smith News.

As a result of their triple victory the T. S. T. outfit moves into second place in the league standing today, ousting K. T. K.

MUSICIAN ALSO FOOTBALL STAR

Elder's home is in Iowa, but he played at Westminster college at Fulton, Mo., in the Missouri valley conference, starring as a tackle in 1920. His great bulk—he will scale more than 200—combined with natural ability, made enemy ground gaining through his side of the line a precarious pastime.

Lehigh to Play Out Schedule; is Wish Of Former Quarter

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 3.—Following the wishes of Charles Prior, former quarterback for the Lehigh university football eleven, who died last Sunday from injuries received in the game with West Virginia Wesleyan fifteen days ago, the athletic varsity council has decided to play the remaining football games on its schedule this season.

Last Night's Fights

Brooklyn—Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchell Field, L. I., got the decision over Georgie Levine, California, ten rounds. Eddie Anderson, Wyoming, knocked out Joey Kaufman, Brooklyn, seventh round.

New York — Maxey Rosenbloom, New York, knocked out Joe Silvani, New York, ninth round.

Highs, by Beating East Palestine Saturday Can Bring Back County Championship to Ceramic City; Brown and White Record Shows Early Season 6-6 Tie With North County Outfit.

If East Liverpool high school gridders and football mathematics run true to form next Saturday at East Palestine, it will make no difference, so far as the Ceramic City eleven's championship hopes are concerned, if there is no game played with Leetonia this year.

A victory for the Boone outfit Saturday over the Brown and White will clinch the championship.

Here's the reason: Early in the season East Palestine defeated Columbiana, which this year had little chance to figure in the title running, and only a short time later played a 6-6 tie with Leetonia. Salem walloped the East Palestine outfit two weeks ago and Saturday Boone's gridders won decisively from Salem. This "arithmetic," in itself, would practically insure the return of the championship to East Liverpool, but the Ceramic City representatives can make it more emphatic by winning from East Palestine on the coming Saturday.

Efforts were made by Coach Boone and Leetonia school athletic directors to schedule the annual meeting between the two schools, but proposed dates on one schedule conflicted with dates on the other and nothing definite has been done yet with the season now headed down the home stretch.

It is understood that a Thanksgiving day date was tentatively discussed but no action one way or another wastaken on this proposal.

Captain Paul English, of the high school squad, until Saturday held a monopoly on haberdashery hung up by the Hub and Dick Bryan as prizes for touchdowns against opposing teams.

A week ago the Hub offered a sweater and Bryan a silk shirt, both of which were copped by English. Saturday, following the Salem tilt, English split with Heddleston on a slicker given by the Hub and a scarf by Bryan.

Over at Providence, R. I., athletic officials Saturday will take the matter of football rules in their own hands for the day when Boston plays Brown. The stop watch method of time will be discarded and the game run on a basis of 40 plays per period. They contend that the 15 minute quarter system is of no benefit save to the team that scores first and can use up time by legitimate delays in order to minimize scoring chances by opponents.

Only one eastern eleven, Syracuse, retains an uncrossed goal line following Saturday's engagements. Cornell permitted 14 Columbia points, while Bucknell and New York went down before Holy Cross and Fordham, respectively. Ten eastern football elevens remain unbeaten. Penn, Army and Navy are now numbered amongthe has-beens.

PLAN TO FIGHT STATE TAX LAW

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—Counsel for the Manufacturers Light & Gas company of Pittsburgh prepared today to fight the West Virginia gross sales tax law "to the last ditch."

The company has on file in federal court at Charleston a bill of complaint against the gross sales tax law, questioning it constitutionality.

At the office of E. O. Weil, counsel for the firm, it was learned that the chief allegation of the company in attacking the law's constitutionality would be on the grounds that "a tax on the producing and purchasing of gas as measured by gross proceeds derived from the sale of the gas, irrespective of where the gas is delivered, is a tax on the transportation in interstate commerce and a direct burden on commodity transportation."

Weil's office expects the case to come up in federal court at the West Virginia capital in about three or four weeks, the date to be set later by Judge George W. McClintic.

In anticipation of a bitter contest from forces of the state tax commission, the Pittsburgh concern already has begun planning its attack. Should the Charleston court hand down an adverse decision, an appeal will be taken to the United States supreme court.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Doe Norris

CHAPTER 85.

The star reporter of the Daily News, Sam Sherwood, approached the city editor briskly. "Got a great story, Jack. Charities Union is sore because this Ainsley girl isn't going to have anything to do with the union. A committee of directors called on her today and a break developed. The women almost got to pulling hair, despite Sam Hill Gagley could do to keep them apart. Mrs. Ovid Slaughter razzed the Ainsley girl." "Whew! But wait a minute! It's loaded with dynamite. These Charity Union directors or their husbands are all advertisers, and you know we can't shoot off any fireworks around any of the Ainsleys: Put on the soft petal, and I'll get the boss' O. K. on the story."

"Oh, hell," Sam Sherwood grumbled.

"Yeah, I hate to spoil the story, too. Now run along like a nice boy and maybe papa will buy you an all day sucker," the city editor said, resuming his reading of the latest issue of Crime Mysteries Magazine.

Sherwood, pecking with two fingers, typed his story as he smoked a cigarette, the smoke curling around his eyes so that he blinked as he worked.

"Hope that the new Westland Community House, founded by Miss Amoura Ainsley, would soon become a member of the Charities Union was expressed by directors of the organization today.

"A committee of directors, Mrs. Ovid Slaughter, Mrs. J. G. Stone and Sam Hill Bagley, called on Miss Ainsley today, and after an inspection of the house, expressed to her the desire of the union to have her as a member, co-operating with the union in its work. Miss Ainsley promised co-operation but declined to enter the union at this time, explaining that the Community House was, in her opinion, not strictly a charity.

"At the same time Miss Ainsley announced that the Community House would not solicit funds for maintenance purposes, as do other local organizations."

There was more to Sherwood's story, but these paragraphs are sufficient to indicate its tone.

The members of the committee read the story in the afternoon's News with mixed feelings. Amoura Ainsley did not see the item. She did not go home to dinner that evening, but worked into the night with the dietician and nurses, hot, tired, fretful, preparing for the opening of the house on the morrow.

The plan was for the nurses to visit all the houses in the slum district in turn, informing the women of the purposes of the Community House, and inviting them to attend opening exercises on Mondty of the following week. Each house was to be listed, with the name of occupant and owner, number of rooms, number of occupants, sanitary conveniences, state of condition, and any general information that might be useful. It was intended to keep a card index file history of the residents of the district.

"All of this information we must obtain without giving them the idea we are snooping," Amoura cautioned the staff. "We're not going to uplift anybody against their will. We want to help them, but they must want us to."

It rained the following morning, a chilling, depressing rain that seemed like an ominous warning of what was to follow. Amoura paced from room to room of the house, distralt with a curious restlessness that made her want to leave and do something nerve-racking, like driving an automobile furiously through the rain.

The members of the staff were not excited, but appeared to be bored. The nurses, dismissing any idea of beginning their rounds in the downpour, sat and talked of school days; they had been trained in different hospitals and had much to compare and comment upon. The janitor smoked his pipe beside the furnace and read a newspaper, slow and "hard of hearing," who had been chosen by Amoura from a number of applicants because he was the cleanest in appearance. The dietician alone was busy. She was hammering up new hooks and rearranging untensils in the model kitchen. Her assistant was idly watching her; a glum woman of the district, chosen by Amoura for the role because she believed that this woman, when properly trained, would be better able to tell her Green street sisters how to do things than the collegiate dietician.

"We just thought we'd come an' look aroun'," said one of the callers, speaking for herself and neighbor.

'Come right in and welcome. I'm Miss Ainsley," Her smile faded before their penetrating glances.

"Oh, you was th' lady that was kidnaped, wasn't you?" one of them said, cackling.

Not knowing what to say, Amoura smiled again. "I know you'd like to see the house. Come with me." They followed her silently, regarding her with curious eyes as she explained volubly the purpose of the rooms and the various equipment. With relief, Amoura turned them over to the dietician.

In the afternoon there was a string of callers from the district. For the most part they stared at Amoura, listened silently to what she and the dietician had to say, and departed whispering. A few asked helpful questions.

At 5 o'clock the nurses returned. "We were'nt very welcome anywhere, and some wanted us to prescribe for their ills," both reported, though the two had worked singly.

Amoura smiled blankly. "I'm going home now. I don't think I'll come down this evening. If no one come in after dinner—their supper—let the janitor close up early. Good night." She left shivering. It was in her mind to walk home, but at a corner a group of men stared at her so that she quickened he pace and turned to Main street to get a taxicab. Without saying whether she was going to have dinner, she went directly to her room and crumpled upon the bed, a weeping, disillusioned figure.

How to stop BOILS!

There's only one way to stop boils. Stop the cause of boils! That's common sense—isn't it? All right. Boils thrive because the blood gets so weak in healthy, red cells that it can't throw off the impurities that get into the body. There's not enough rich, red blood to purify the system.

Now—S. S. S. builds back the blood to fighting strength. S. S. S. builds red-blood-cells—builds them by the millions! Boils dry up!

S. S. S. is the thing. Impurities that cause boils and other skin eruptions can't stand up against the rich, healthy, red blood that S. S. S. builds. That's all there is to it.

Stop boils with S. S. S. It's the way. Get it at any druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

70,000 MAY SEE STATE-ILLINOIS

Clash Will be Grange's Last in Big Ten Conference.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3. — A throng that seems certain to reach 70,000 and may even eclipse the assemblage which witnessed the dedication of the stadium three years ago, already appears assured for the Ohio State-Illinois football conflict here November 21.

While they are confident of an eventful sell-out for the game, Ohio State athletic officials today were mystified by reports reaching them from various parts of the middle west that no more tickets were available.

The ticket sale to date, H. D. Taylor, dispenser of ducats, explained, is somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000. Considering that the number of permanent seats in the stadium is 64,000, and the emergency capacity much greater than that, it is a simple matter of arithmetic to see how much room is left.

Interest in the game with Illinois is heightened since it is the annual homecoming affray, by the fact that it will mark the final appearance of "Red" Grange as a player in Western Conference football, and, naturally, as a result of Ohio State's improved showing this year.

If the Illinois game throng should reach 70,000 it would be one of the three greatest crowds in Big Ten history to date. Ohio State also entertained both the other crowds. The attendance at the dedication game in 1922 was 73,000, while that at the homecoming melee with Michigan last fall was about 69,000.

"Touchdown for Touchdown" Demands Harvard

MOUNTS DISPLAY REAL OFFENSE

ALLIANCE, Nov. 3.—The two things in connection with Mount's 32 to 0 victory over Case last Saturday most pleasing to Coach Jack Thorpe were that for the first time this season his proteges showed real offensive power and that the team came out of the contest with no injuries to handicap them for this week's program. The high lights of the game were the open field running of Mills and Labor, while the punting and bucking of Fullback "Army" Armstrong were up to his usual high standard, and the quarterback, Wilcoxen, showed increased efficiency in running back punts. Captain Ball and Klippert, tackles, maintained their reputation of being two of the best defensive men in Mount's history, and Center Burkle was everywhere during the game, upsetting the plays of the opponents.

Miami comes to Mount Union Saturday as guest for the annual homecoming. Coach Thorpe realizes that the visitors are a formidable foe with a perfect record in the Ohio Conference until Denison took their measure at Dayton last week. The scouts report that they have an unusually fast set of backs and ends. With the return of McElroy to the Mount lineup, the Mount mentor will be able to send his full strength against the down staters, and a great game is assured the old grads and former students.

Most men tell their wives everything even if they don't know it.—Defiance Crescent News.

MOORE'S ELECTION IN JERSEY MAY CAUSE RING CODE CHANGES

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—According to the official megaphone man of the Harry Wills menage, much that is momentous will hang upon the manner in which the political cat jumps in the New Jersey elections today. Probably consequences, it is said, of a return to power by the so-called "old guard" include a proposed change in the state boxing code and an attempt to bid in the Dempsey-Wills match by negotiation with that South Bend, Ind., syndicate, of which one hears much but sees little.

All that the boys need, it seems, is the election of A. Harry Moore as governor of the state. They can then begin firing without waiting to see the whites of anyone's eyes and, at the first volley, the present boxing law in Jersey is supposed to take one full on the chin.

While they are sweeping up the debris, an amendment to the law will be made, it is said, changing state control of boxing from a one-man proposition to the commission form of government. Then the Dempsey-Wills negotiations are supposed to follow.

Credence might be given the report for the reason that Moore is Frank Hague's candidate and Frank was the gentleman whose political connections made the Dempsey-Carpentier business possible. The only money lost by anyone that day was lost by those who paid scalpers $200 for tickets, entitling holders to peep through the armpit of the enthusiast immediately in front.

Their idea, if any, that the South Bend parties can be bought out means that Jersey has taken certain reports very seriously. These were to the effect that middle western money to swing the deal has turned up missing and that the would-be promoters wish to "peddle" their proposition elsewhere.

This, if true, would give Jersey its chance, provided Dempsey is willing to be "sold" along with South Bend's interest in the proceedings. That is a doubtful point. The champion, in fact, probably would insist upon disposing of his own immediate future as he saw fit, with special reference to guarantees and what not.

Jack's guarantee could not be in keeping with his self-valuation, if only for the fact that the Jersey law permits the customers to be harpooned for no more than $25 for the best tickets. But perhaps the alleged amendment will carry a "rider" to take care of that embarrassing provision. They catch the buck early in Jersey, you know. Also the doe, or dough, just as you see it.

Northwich, England. — Shifting houses bodily several miles and towns some yards along the level has often been done, but raising a whole town five feet is something new.

This is claimed to have been accomplished by the surveyor of this town in just under three years.

The entire business portion of Northwich, including ten streets, three banks, the county court and 200 stores and houses, have been raised to counteract the effect of subsidence caused by the brine pumping which proceeds continually in the salt mines under the town.

There has been no stoppage of business and only eight buildings have had to be demolished because they could not be safely lifted.

In raising operations, parts of the lower brickwork were removed and small hydraulic jacks inserted. Chemists' stores were lifted so carefully that not one bottle was disturbed.

The town bridge was raised five feet at each end to bring it up to the new level of the town.

More Oranges, Fewer Grapefruit, Tangerines

Washington.—A preliminary estimate of the orange crop in Florida by the United States Department of Agriculture indicates 10,900,000 boxes, excluding tangerines, for 1925-26, or about 600,000 boxes more than the revised estimate of the crop last year.

Tangerine production is placed at 600,000 boxes, or 100,000 less than last year, and grapefruit, 7,500,000 boxes, or 700,000 less than last year.

The total preliminary estimate for citrus fruits is 19,000,000 boxes, compared with a revised estimate of 19,200,000 boxes last year. These estimates are of the commercial car lot and express movement, and exclude the usual loss from drops.

Decreased production of grapefruit is attributed to light and spotted setting of fruit, and to the fact that there will be more over-sized fruit than usual. Unless market conditions are such that the large sizes can be shipped and sold, they will either move by truck or be lost from dropping, the department says.

Colored Light System to Warn French Solons

Paris.—Members of the French chamber of deputies, when they reassemble after the vacation, will find installed a useful innovation. Twenty-two tape-machines are being placed in different parts of the building, each equipped with red, blue, green and yellow lights for conveying messages to deputies and journalists. Thus it will be possible for all to know what is taking place at any time.

In the French chamber, no means has hitherto been provided whereby a deputy or minister might know, without going to see, what was transpiring in the tribune. Consequently "surprise votes" often have been tallied.

Minorities, taking advantage of this lack, have sometimes been able to muster beforehand and carry the day. Many queer situations have developed. On one occasion a vote of confidence in the government, proposed by an unwary minister who had failed to note the absence of most of his supporters, resulted in a vote of no confidence.

This sort of thing cannot occur under the new arrangement. A red light will indicate a vote, so that deputies may hurry back to their places.

Days of Tandem Bucks, The Portmans, Cripps Terrill and Others, Say Clevelanders Whipped Congregationalists Frequently, But in The Last Decade Only The Memory Has Remained.

By Stanley D. Koch.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Back in the days when Cleveland was more truly the forest than the fifth city and when college styles included wide pegged trousers, a soft hat with a match stuck in the brim and the proverbial bull dog, the football teams from Western Reserve used to mix up with the Oberlin elevens of that period in battles that rumbled the whole state.

Those were the days when "Muff" and "Doc" Portman, Cripps, Tommy Terrill and Ray Barney, wore red and white. While Glen Gray, Pyle and Metcalf sported gold "O's" on crimson sweaters. Those were the days when the tandem bucks were patterned after pile drivers and the flying wedge flew high. Those, too, were the days when touchdowns counted five points and ambulances scurried on and off the field. And in that halcyon era, Western Reserve had a fairly consistent habit of beating Oberlin more times than she was defeated by the Congregationalists.

But in the past decade, only that memory has remained—at least with any regularity. This week-end, another Reserve team bumps up against another Oberlin outfit at Oberlin. The latter is tied for first place in the Ohio conference race. It hasn't been defeated this year, although Mt. Union played it a scoreless tie. And the Crimson and Gold followers are sighting another championship in the offing.

Western Reserve, on the other hand, has had a freak reason, looking good and bad with the majority in favor of the bad. But that intangible college spirit that inspires a team to play way over its head in a crucial game, seemingly in honor of its more noteworthy predecessors, is running rampant on the Reserve campus.

Oberlin is a smooth running, hard tackling eleven, so characteristic of Crimson and Gold teams. That team has been trained to go into a game with a methodical plan and purpose of winning and then, except against Mt. Union, it has followed out its instructions. So, all in all, it looks like a whale of a battle Saturday.

At Cincinnati, the undefeated St. Xavier crew meets Akron. At present, the Saints look like the one and only bet to defeat Ohio Wesleyan, who is encountered a few weeks later, but to justify that belief, the Saints must wallop Akron this week. Coach Coleman's eleven is an in-and-outer, and its only a reasonable guess than this week will be another "outer" week. Xavier's neat football in winning the Kenyon game has stamped Coach Myer's team as dangerous and if Akron can be overcome, all will hinge on the Wesleyan contest.

Another good scrap is carded for Alliance when Miami meets Mt. Union. The Mounts overwhelmed Cast last week, showing all kinds of stuff, while Miami dropped a 6-0 game to Denison, thereby giving all the dopesters a sudden and devastating shock. However, should the same Oxford squad that annihilated Wittenberg, 30-0, function as such, the Mounts will be beaten. But, it will take all of that early season form to defeat Coach Thorpe's eleven.

Denison, elated with the outcome of the Miami scrap takes on another tough nut in Muskingum at Granville. The Muskies are a regular aggregation this year and the Big Red will be forced to play its string to the full to defeat them. Last week, saw the Denison forwards showing extremely well and this week needs a repetition in addition to more power from the Granville backs.

At Springfield, Wittenberg and Cincinnati hook up, with the Lutherans giving the shade.

Having successfully overcome the inertia of losing the first three games, Baldwin-Wallace has swung into a winning stride, apparently unstoppable. This week-end, Otterbein is met Westerville and the United at Westerville and the United Brethren will need more than a spiritual bond to hold the line intact against Lisse and his coworkers. The Berea team is a pleasant surprise this season and should be a fairly easy winner.

Kenyon, despite the loss to St. Xavier, is hoping for the best, which means that some eleven will defeat Wesleyan. Oberlin and St. Xavier, which will still give the Gambierites a chance for the title. This week, Kenyon will have the pleasure of defeating Hiram at Gambier and unless all the edifices of football prophecy come tumbling down, this will obtain.

Two .333 teams meet at Cleveland when Case and Ohio Northern play. Over-confidence is blamed for the Norsemen's defeat at the hands of Ohio university, while sheer inability is the reason for Case's 32-0 defeat by Mt. Union. Mark your own ticket on this game, but the dope points to Ohio Northern.

In the two non-conference games, the Ohio Wesleyan-Syracuse contest at Syracuse is obviously the bigger. The undefeated, unscored-on Syracuse eleven will undoubtedly win, but Wesleyan can be counted on to do itself justice. In the other battle, Ohio university meets Marietta at Athens and may take a beating.

Call Out Floor Squad.

ATHENS, O., Nov. 3.—A call for baseball candidates for the Ohio University team has been issued by Coach B. T. Grover. Suits will be given out and a short practice session will be held. Practice will be held daily this week. Varsity men from last year include Captain Wright, Sayres, Muir, Longley, King, Beckwith, Kennard, Wise and Eisenbrey. Several promising players from the freshman squad of last year will report.

Laughlin 1 vs Hall China.

Two Industrial Duckpin records were broken and third endangered when Taylor, Smith and Taylor bowlers cleaned up last night on the American Express in a three-game series at the Liberty alleys.

Canne, of the T. S. T. five, in the second game shot a 188 and topped Art Smith's 166 by 22 pins. Smith was high during the first week of the pin competition.

In the other two games Canne rolled 126 and 141, respectively, and, as a result, compiled a 455 total for the series which considerably shades the 424 marks rolled by Oliver and Ashbaugh last week.

The Chesterites lacked 20 pins of reaching the 1818 high series team total rolled last week by the Smith News.

As a result of their triple victory the T. S. T. outfit moves into second place in the league standing today, ousting K. T. K.

MUSICIAN ALSO FOOTBALL STAR

Elder's home is in Iowa, but he played at Westminster college at Fulton, Mo., in the Missouri valley conference, starring as a tackle in 1920. His great bulk—he will scale more than 200—combined with natural ability, made enemy ground gaining through his side of the line a precarious pastime.

And, too, he could almost pose as a double for Babe Ruth, both in size and facial features.

Lehigh to Play Out Schedule; is Wish Of Former Quarter

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 3.—Following the wishes of Charles Prior, former quarterback for the Lehigh university football eleven, who died last Sunday from injuries received in the game with West Virginia Wesleyan fifteen days ago, the athletic varsity council has decided to play the remaining football games on its schedule this season.

Last Night's Fights

Brooklyn—Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchell Field, L. I., got the decision over Georgie Levine, California, ten rounds. Eddie Anderson, Wyoming, knocked out Joey Kaufman, Brooklyn, seventh round.

New York — Maxey Rosenbloom, New York, knocked out Joe Silvani, New York, ninth round.

Highs, by Beating East Palestine Saturday Can Bring Back County Championship to Ceramic City; Brown and White Record Shows Early Season 6-6 Tie With North County Outfit.

If East Liverpool high school gridders and football mathematics run true to form next Saturday at East Palestine, it will make no difference, so far as the Ceramic City eleven's championship hopes are concerned, if there is no game played with Leetonia this year.

A victory for the Boone outfit Saturday over the Brown and White will clinch the championship.

Here's the reason: Early in the season East Palestine defeated Columbiana, which this year had little chance to figure in the title running, and only a short time later played a 6-6 tie with Leetonia. Salem walloped the East Palestine outfit two weeks ago and Saturday Boone's gridders won decisively from Salem. This "arithmetic," in itself, would practically insure the return of the championship to East Liverpool, but the Ceramic City representatives can make it more emphatic by winning from East Palestine on the coming Saturday.

Efforts were made by Coach Boone and Leetonia school athletic directors to schedule the annual meeting between the two schools, but proposed dates on one schedule conflicted with dates on the other and nothing definite has been done yet with the season now headed down the home stretch.

It is understood that a Thanksgiving day date was tentatively discussed but no action one way or another wastaken on this proposal.

Captain Paul English, of the high school squad, until Saturday held a monopoly on haberdashery hung up by the Hub and Dick Bryan as prizes for touchdowns against opposing teams.

A week ago the Hub offered a sweater and Bryan a silk shirt, both of which were copped by English. Saturday, following the Salem tilt, English split with Heddleston on a slicker given by the Hub and a scarf by Bryan.

Over at Providence, R. I., athletic officials Saturday will take the matter of football rules in their own hands for the day when Boston plays Brown. The stop watch method of time will be discarded and the game run on a basis of 40 plays per period. They contend that the 15 minute quarter system is of no benefit save to the team that scores first and can use up time by legitimate delays in order to minimize scoring chances by opponents.

Only one eastern eleven, Syracuse, retains an uncrossed goal line following Saturday's engagements. Cornell permitted 14 Columbia points, while Bucknell and New York went down before Holy Cross and Fordham, respectively. Ten eastern football elevens remain unbeaten. Penn, Army and Navy are now numbered among the has-beens.

American Express	0	6	.000

Laughlin 1 vs Hall China.

Two Industrial Duckpin records were broken and third endangered when Taylor, Smith and Taylor bowlers cleaned up last night on the American Express in a three-game series at the Liberty alleys.

Canne, of the T. S. T. five, in the second game shot a 188 and topped Art Smith's 166 by 22 pins. Smith was high during the first week of the pin competition.

In the other two games Canne rolled 126 and 141, respectively, and, as a result, compiled a 455 total for the series which considerably shades the 424 marks rolled by Oliver and Ashbaugh last week.

The Chesterites lacked 20 pins of reaching the 1818 high series team total rolled last week by the Smith News.

As a result of their triple victory the T. S. T. outfit moves into second place in the league standing today, ousting K. T. K.

Aerial Bombardment Sinks Navy on Grid

MUSICIAN ALSO FOOTBALL STAR

Clarence Elder, leader of the Steamer Washington orchestra, which will play at the Eagles' home during the winter, is an ex college grid player of some repute.

Elder's home is in Iowa, but he played at Westminster college at Fulton, Mo., in the Missouri valley conference, starring as a tackle in 1920. His great bulk—he will scale more than 200—combined with natural ability, made enemy ground gaining through his side of the line a precarious pastime.

Lehigh to Play Out Schedule; is Wish Of Former Quarter

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 3.—Following the wishes of Charles Prior, former quarterback for the Lehigh university football eleven, who died last Sunday from injuries received in the game with West Virginia Wesleyan fifteen days ago, the athletic varsity council has decided to play the remaining football games on its schedule this season.

And, too, he could almost pose as a double for Babe Ruth, both in size and facial features.

Last Night's Fights

Brooklyn—Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchell Field, L. I., got the decision over Georgie Levine, California, ten rounds. Eddie Anderson, Wyoming, knocked out Joey Kaufman, Brooklyn, seventh round.

New York — Maxey Rosenbloom, New York, knocked out Joe Silvani, New York, ninth round.

Highs, by Beating East Palestine Saturday Can Bring Back County Championship to Ceramic City; Brown and White Record Shows Early Season 6-6 Tie With North County Outfit.

If East Liverpool high school gridders and football mathematics run true to form next Saturday at East Palestine, it will make no difference, so far as the Ceramic City eleven's championship hopes are concerned, if there is no game played with Leetonia this year.

A victory for the Boone outfit Saturday over the Brown and White will clinch the championship.

Here's the reason: Early in the season East Palestine defeated Columbiana, which this year had little chance to figure in the title running, and only a short time later played a 6-6 tie with Leetonia. Salem walloped the East Palestine outfit two weeks ago and Saturday Boone's gridders won decisively from Salem. This "arithmetic," in itself, would practically insure the return of the championship to East Liverpool, but the Ceramic City representatives can make it more emphatic by winning from East Palestine on the coming Saturday.

Efforts were made by Coach Boone and Leetonia school athletic directors to schedule the annual meeting between the two schools, but proposed dates on one schedule conflicted with dates on the other and nothing definite has been done yet with the season now headed down the home stretch.

It is understood that a Thanksgiving day date was tentatively discussed but no action one way or another wastaken on this proposal.

Captain Paul English, of the high school squad, until Saturday held a monopoly on haberdashery hung up by the Hub and Dick Bryan as prizes for touchdowns against opposing teams.

A week ago the Hub offered a sweater and Bryan a silk shirt, both of which were copped by English. Saturday, following the Salem tilt, English split with Heddleston on a slicker given by the Hub and a scarf by Bryan.

Over at Providence, R. I., athletic officials Saturday will take the matter of football rules in their own hands for the day when Boston plays Brown. The stop watch method of time will be discarded and the game run on a basis of 40 plays per period. They contend that the 15 minute quarter system is of no benefit save to the team that scores first and can use up time by legitimate delays in order to minimize scoring chances by opponents.

Only one eastern eleven, Syracuse, retains an uncrossed goal line following Saturday's engagements. Cornell permitted 14 Columbia points, while Bucknell and New York went down before Holy Cross and Fordham, respectively. Ten eastern football elevens remain unbeaten. Penn, Army and Navy are now numbered among the has-beens.

PRINCE ALBERT is the greatest little trouble-shooter you could pal around with. It smooths out your smoke-wrinkles toot-sweet. It's got everything you ever wished for in a real, honest-to-Pete smoke . . . and nothing else except! Clamp on the ear-phones and get this message of jimmy-pipe joy.

No matter what your previous experience has been in trying to smoke a pipe, forget it. Write it on the ice! You can smoke a pipe if it's packed with P. A. Yes, sir! For a fact, they'd have to sue you to get that jimmy-pipe away from you, once you give P. A. a work-out.

Cool and sweet and fragrant, P. A. puts a padlock on pipe-worries and throws away the key. Can't bite your tongue or parch your throat. The Prince Albert process fixes that. Just downright, deep-rooted contentment—morning till midnight.

Quality without a doubt. And quantity too. You get more for your money both ways when you smoke P. A. There are TWO full ounces in every tin. (Look at the U. S. revenue stamp.) Get going! Steer straight for the store where they hand out such happiness in tidy red tins. It'll be P. A. for yours after that.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Look at the U. S. revenue stamp—there are TWO full ounces in every tin.

70,000 MAY SEE STATE-ILLINOIS

Clash Will be Grange's Last in Big Ten Conference.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3. — A throng that seems certain to reach 70,000 and may even eclipse the assemblage which witnessed the dedication of the stadium three years ago, already appears assured for the Ohio State-Illinois football conflict here November 21.

While they are confident of an eventful sell-out for the game, Ohio State athletic officials today were mystified by reports reaching them from various parts of the middle west that no more tickets were available.

The ticket sale to date, H. D. Taylor, dispenser of ducats, explained, is somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000. Considering that the number of permanent seats in the stadium is 64,000, and the emergency capacity much greater than that, it is a simple matter of arithmetic to see how much room is left.

Interest in the game with Illinois is heightened since it is the annual homecoming affray, by the fact that it will mark the final appearance of "Red" Grange as a player in Western Conference football, and, naturally, as a result of Ohio State's improved showing this year.

If the Illinois game throng should reach 70,000 it would be one of the three greatest crowds in Big Ten history to date. Ohio State also entertained both the other crowds. The attendance at the dedication game in 1922 was 73,000, while that at the homecoming melee with Michigan last fall was about 69,000.

"Touchdown for Touchdown" Demands Harvard

MOUNTS DISPLAY REAL OFFENSE

ALLIANCE, Nov. 3.—The two things in connection with Mount's 32 to 0 victory over Case last Saturday most pleasing to Coach Jack Thorpe were that for the first time this season his proteges showed real offensive power and that the team came out of the contest with no injuries to handicap them for this week's program. The high lights of the game were the open field running of Mills and Labor, while the punting and bucking of Fullback "Army" Armstrong were up to his usual high standard, and the quarterback, Wilcoxen, showed increased efficiency in running back punts. Captain Ball and Klippert, tackles, maintained their reputation of being two of the best defensive men in Mount's history, and Center Burkle was everywhere during the game, upsetting the plays of the opponents.

Miami comes to Mount Union Saturday as guest for the annual homecoming. Coach Thorpe realizes that the visitors are a formidable foe with a perfect record in the Ohio Conference until Denison took their measure at Dayton last week. The scouts report that they have an unusually fast set of backs and ends. With the return of McElroy to the Mount lineup, the Mount mentor will be able to send his full strength against the down staters, and a great game is assured the old grads and former students.

Most men tell their wives everything even if they don't know it.—Defiance Crescent News.

MOORE'S ELECTION IN JERSEY MAY CAUSE RING CODE CHANGES

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—According to the official megaphone man of the Harry Wills menage, much that is momentous will hang upon the manner in which the political cat jumps in the New Jersey elections today. Probably consequences, it is said, of a return to power by the so-called "old guard" include a proposed change in the state boxing code and an attempt to bid in the Dempsey-Wills match by negotiation with that South Bend, Ind., syndicate, of which one hears much but sees little.

All that the boys need, it seems, is the election of A. Harry Moore as governor of the state. They can then begin firing without waiting to see the whites of anyone's eyes and, at the first volley, the present boxing law in Jersey is supposed to take one full on the chin.

While they are sweeping up the debris, an amendment to the law will be made, it is said, changing state control of boxing from a one-man proposition to the commission form of government. Then the Dempsey-Wills negotiations are supposed to follow.

Credence might be given the report for the reason that Moore is Frank Hague's candidate and Frank was the gentleman whose political connections made the Dempsey-Carpentier business possible. The only money lost by anyone that day was lost by those who paid scalpers $200 for tickets, entitling holders to peep through the armpit of the enthusiast immediately in front.

Their idea, if any, that the South Bend parties can be bought out means that Jersey has taken certain reports very seriously. These were to the effect that middle western money to swing the deal has turned up missing and that the would-be promoters wish to "peddle" their proposition elsewhere.

This, if true, would give Jersey its chance, provided Dempsey is willing to be "sold" along with South Bend's interest in the proceedings. That is a doubtful point. The champion, in fact, probably would insist upon disposing of his own immediate future as he saw fit, with special reference to guarantees and what not.

Jack's guarantee could not be in keeping with his self-valuation, if only for the fact that the Jersey law permits the customers to be harpooned for no more than $25 for the best tickets. But perhaps the alleged amendment will carry a "rider" to take care of that embarrassing provision. They catch the buck early in Jersey, you know. Also the doe, or dough, just as you see it.

Northwich, England. — Shifting houses bodily several miles and towns some yards along the level has often been done, but raising a whole town five feet is something new.

This is claimed to have been accomplished by the surveyor of this town in just under three years.

The entire business portion of Northwich, including ten streets, three banks, the county court and 200 stores and houses, have been raised to counteract the effect of subsidence caused by the brine pumping which proceeds continually in the salt mines under the town.

There has been no stoppage of business and only eight buildings have had to be demolished because they could not be safely lifted.

In raising operations, parts of the lower brickwork were removed and small hydraulic jacks inserted. Chemists' stores were lifted so carefully that not one bottle was disturbed.

The town bridge was raised five feet at each end to bring it up to the new level of the town.

More Oranges, Fewer Grapefruit, Tangerines

Washington.—A preliminary estimate of the orange crop in Florida by the United States Department of Agriculture indicates 10,900,000 boxes, excluding tangerines, for 1925-26, or about 600,000 boxes more than the revised estimate of the crop last year.

Tangerine production is placed at 600,000 boxes, or 100,000 less than last year, and grapefruit, 7,500,000 boxes, or 700,000 less than last year.

The total preliminary estimate for citrus fruits is 19,000,000 boxes, compared with a revised estimate of 19,200,000 boxes last year. These estimates are of the commercial car lot and express movement, and exclude the usual loss from drops.

Decreased production of grapefruit is attributed to light and spotted setting of fruit, and to the fact that there will be more over-sized fruit than usual. Unless market conditions are such that the large sizes can be shipped and sold, they will either move by truck or be lost from dropping, the department says.

Colored Light System to Warn French Solons

Paris.—Members of the French chamber of deputies, when they reassemble after the vacation, will find installed a useful innovation. Twenty-two tape-machines are being placed in different parts of the building, each equipped with red, blue, green and yellow lights for conveying messages to deputies and journalists. Thus it will be possible for all to know what is taking place at any time.

In the French chamber, no means has hitherto been provided whereby a deputy or minister might know, without going to see, what was transpiring in the tribune. Consequently "surprise votes" often have been tallied.

Minorities, taking advantage of this lack, have sometimes been able to muster beforehand and carry the day. Many queer situations have developed. On one occasion a vote of confidence in the government, proposed by an unwary minister who had failed to note the absence of most of his supporters resulted in a vote of no confidence.

This sort of thing cannot occur under the new arrangement. A red light will indicate a vote, so that deputies may hurry back to their places.

70,000 MAY SEE STATE-ILLINOIS

Clash Will be Grange's Last in Big Ten Conference.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3. — A throng that seems certain to reach 70,000 and may even eclipse the assemblage which witnessed the dedication of the stadium three years ago, already appears assured for the Ohio State-Illinois football conflict here November 21.

While they are confident of an eventful sell-out for the game, Ohio State athletic officials today were mystified by reports reaching them from various parts of the middle west that no more tickets were available.

The ticket sale to date, H. D. Taylor, dispenser of ducats, explained, is somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000. Considering that the number of permanent seats in the stadium is 64,000, and the emergency capacity much greater than that, it is a simple matter of arithmetic to see how much room is left.

Interest in the game with Illinois is heightened since it is the annual homecoming affray, by the fact that it will mark the final appearance of "Red" Grange as a player in Western Conference football, and, naturally, as a result of Ohio State's improved showing this year.

If the Illinois game throng should reach 70,000 it would be one of the three greatest crowds in Big Ten history to date. Ohio State also entertained both the other crowds. The attendance at the dedication game in 1922 was 73,000, while that at the homecoming melee with Michigan last fall was about 69,000.

MOUNTS DISPLAY REAL OFFENSE

ALLIANCE, Nov. 3.—The two things in connection with Mount's 32 to 0 victory over Case last Saturday most pleasing to Coach Jack Thorpe were that for the first time this season his proteges showed real offensive power and that the team came out of the contest with no injuries to handicap them for this week's program. The high lights of the game were the open field running of Mills and Labor, while the punting and bucking of Fullback "Army" Armstrong were up to his usual high standard, and the quarterback, Wilcoxen, showed increased efficiency in running back punts. Captain Ball and Klippert, tackles, maintained their reputation of being two of the best defensive men in Mount's history, and Center Burkle was everywhere during the game, upsetting the plays of the opponents.

Miami comes to Mount Union Saturday as guest for the annual homecoming. Coach Thorpe realizes that the visitors are a formidable foe with a perfect record in the Ohio Conference until Denison took their measure at Dayton last week. The scouts report that they have an unusually fast set of backs and ends. With the return of McElroy to the Mount lineup, the Mount mentor will be able to send his full strength against the down staters, and a great game is assured the old grads and former students.

Most men tell their wives everything even if they don't know it.—Defiance Crescent News.

"Touchdown for Touchdown" Demands Harvard

Harvard, still smarting under the 34 to 0 defeat at the hands of Princeton last year, wants revenge—34 points of it—when the teams meet at Princeton, N. J., Nov. 7. Photo above is a glimpse of last year's massacre. Slagle of Princeton has just tossed a forward pass to Le Gendre, who is scoring a touchdown on the play. Inset are the Harvard captain and one of Princeton's stars.

MOORE'S ELECTION IN JERSEY MAY CAUSE RING CODE CHANGES

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—According to the official megaphone man of the Harry Wills menage, much that is momentous will hang upon the manner in which the political cat jumps in the New Jersey elections today. Probably consequences, it is said, of a return to power by the so-called "old guard" include a proposed change in the state boxing code and an attempt to bid in the Dempsey-Wills match by negotiation with that South Bend, Ind., syndicate, of which one hears much but sees little.

All that the boys need, it seems, is the election of A. Harry Moore as governor of the state. They can then begin firing without waiting to see the whites of anyone's eyes and, at the first volley, the present boxing law in Jersey is supposed to take one full on the chin.

While they are sweeping up the debris, an amendment to the law will be made, it is said, changing state control of boxing from a one-man proposition to the commission form of government. Then the Dempsey-Wills negotiations are supposed to follow.

Credence might be given the report for the reason that Moore is Frank Hague's candidate and Frank was the gentleman whose political connections made the Dempsey-Carpentier business possible. The only money lost by anyone that day was lost by those who paid scalpers $200 for tickets, entitling holders to peep through the armpit of the enthusiast immediately in front.

Their idea, if any, that the South Bend parties can be bought out means that Jersey has taken certain reports very seriously. These were to the effect that middle western money to swing the deal has turned up missing and that the would-be promoters wish to "peddle" their proposition elsewhere.

This, if true, would give Jersey its chance, provided Dempsey is willing to be "sold" along with South Bend's interest in the proceedings. That is a doubtful point. The champion, in fact, probably would insist upon disposing of his own immediate future as he saw fit, with special reference to guarantees and what not.

Jack's guarantee could not be in keeping with his self-valuation, if only for the fact that the Jersey law permits the customers to be harpooned for no more than $25 for the best tickets. But perhaps the alleged amendment will carry a "rider" to take care of that embarrassing provision. They catch the buck early in Jersey, you know. Also the doe, or dough, just as you see it.

Northwich, England. — Shifting houses bodily several miles and towns some yards along the level has often been done, but raising a whole town five feet is something new.

This is claimed to have been accomplished by the surveyor of this town in just under three years.

The entire business portion of Northwich, including ten streets, three banks, the county court and 200 stores and houses, have been raised to counteract the effect of subsidence caused by the brine pumping which proceeds continually in the salt mines under the town.

There has been no stoppage of business and only eight buildings have had to be demolished because they could not be safely lifted.

In raising operations, parts of the lower brickwork were removed and small hydraulic jacks inserted. Chemists' stores were lifted so carefully that not one bottle was disturbed.

The town bridge was raised five feet at each end to bring it up to the new level of the town.

More Oranges, Fewer Grapefruit, Tangerines

Washington.—A preliminary estimate of the orange crop in Florida by the United States Department of Agriculture indicates 10,900,000 boxes, excluding tangerines, for 1925-26, or about 600,000 boxes more than the revised estimate of the crop last year.

Tangerine production is placed at 600,000 boxes, or 100,000 less than last year, and grapefruit, 7,500,000 boxes, or 700,000 less than last year.

The total preliminary estimate for citrus fruits is 19,000,000 boxes, compared with a revised estimate of 19,200,000 boxes last year. These estimates are of the commercial car lot and express movement, and exclude the usual loss from drops.

Decreased production of grapefruit is attributed to light and spotted setting of fruit, and to the fact that there will be more over-sized fruit than usual. Unless market conditions are such that the large sizes can be shipped and sold, they will either move by truck or be lost from dropping, the department says.

Colored Light System to Warn French Solons

Paris.—Members of the French chamber of deputies, when they reassemble after the vacation, will find installed a useful innovation. Twenty-two tape-machines are being placed in different parts of the building, each equipped with red, blue, green and yellow lights for conveying messages to deputies and journalists. Thus it will be possible for all to know what is taking place at any time.

In the French chamber, no means has hitherto been provided whereby a deputy or minister might know, without going to see, what was transpiring in the tribune. Consequently "surprise votes" often have been tallied.

Minorities, taking advantage of this lack, have sometimes been able to muster beforehand and carry the day. Many queer situations have developed. On one occasion a vote of confidence in the government, proposed by an unwary minister who had failed to note the absence of most of his supporters resulted in a vote of no confidence.

This sort of thing cannot occur under the new arrangement. A red light will indicate a vote, so that deputies may hurry back to their places.

Reserve Eleven Will Try to Shake Oberlin From Its Perch

Days of Tandem Bucks, The Portmans, Cripps Terrill and Others, Say Clevelanders Whipped Congregationalists Frequently, But in The Last Decade Only The Memory Has Remained.

By Stanley D. Koch.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 3.—Back in the days when Cleveland was more truly the forest than the fifth city and when college styles included wide pegged trousers, a soft hat with a match stuck in the brim and the proverbial bull dog, the football teams from Western Reserve used to mix up with the Oberlin elevens of that period in battles that rumbled the whole state.

Those were the days when "Muff" and "Doc" Portman, Cripps, Tommy Terrill and Ray Barney, wore red and white. While Glen Gray, Pyle and Metcalf sported gold "O's" on crimson sweaters. Those were the days when the tandem bucks were patterned after pile drivers and the flying wedge flew high. Those, too, were the days when touchdowns counted five points and ambulances scurried on and off the field. And in that halcyon era, Western Reserve had a fairly consistent habit of beating Oberlin more times than she was defeated by the Congregationalists.

But in the past decade, only that memory has remained—at least with any regularity. This week-end, another Reserve team bumps up against another Oberlin outfit at Oberlin. The latter is tied for first place in the Ohio conference race. It hasn't been defeated this year, although Mt. Union played it a scoreless tie. And the Crimson and Gold followers are sighting another championship in the offing.

Western Reserve, on the other hand, has had a freak reason, looking good and bad with the majority in favor of the bad. But that intangible college spirit that inspires a team to play way over its head in a crucial game, seemingly in honor of its more noteworthy predecessors, is running rampant on the Reserve campus.

Oberlin is a smooth running, hard tackling eleven, so characteristic of Crimson and Gold teams. That team has been trained to go into a game with a methodical plan and purpose of winning and then, except against Mt. Union, it has followed out its instructions. So, all in all, it looks like a whale of a battle Saturday.

At Cincinnati, the undefeated St. Xavier crew meets Akron. At present, the Saints look like the one and only bet to defeat Ohio Wesleyan, who is encountered a few weeks later, but to justify that belief, the Saints must wallop Akron this week. Coach Coleman's eleven is an in-and-outer, and its only a reasonable guess than this week will be another "outer" week. Xavier's neat football in winning the Kenyon game has stamped Coach Myer's team as dangerous and if Akron can be overcome, all will hinge on the Wesleyan contest.

Another good scrap is carded for Alliance when Miami meets Mt. Union. The Mounts overwhelmed Cast last week, showing all kinds of stuff, while Miami dropped a 6-0 game to Denison, thereby giving all the dopesters a sudden and devastating shock. However, should the same Oxford squad that annihilated Wittenberg, 30-0, function as such, the Mounts will be beaten. But, it will take all of that early season form to defeat Coach Thorpe's eleven.

Denison, elated with the outcome of the Miami scrap takes on another tough nut in Muskingum at Granville. The Muskies are a regular aggregation this year and the Big Red will be forced to play its string to the full to defeat them. Last week, saw the Denison forwards showing extremely well and this week needs a repetition in addition to more power from the Granville backs.

At Springfield, Wittenberg and Cincinnati hook up, with the Lutherans giving the shade.

Having successfully overcome the inertia of losing the first three games, Baldwin-Wallace has swung into a winning stride, apparently unstoppable. This week-end, Otterbein is met Westerville and the United at Westerville and the United Brethren will need more than a spiritual bond to hold the line intact against Lisse and his coworkers. The Berea team is a pleasant surprise this season and should be a fairly easy winner.

Kenyon, despite the loss to St. Xavier, is hoping for the best, which means that some eleven will defeat Wesleyan, Oberlin and St. Xavier, which will still give the Gambierites a chance for the title. This week, Kenyon will have the pleasure of defeating Hiram at Gambier and unless all the edifices of football prophecy come tumbling down, this will obtain.

Two .333 teams meet at Cleveland when Case and Ohio Northern play. Over-confidence is blamed for the Norsemen's defeat at the hands of Ohio university, while sheer inability is the reason for Case's 32-0 defeat by Mt. Union. Mark your own ticket on this game, but the dope points to Ohio Northern.

In the two non-conference games, the Ohio Wesleyan-Syracuse contest at Syracuse is obviously the bigger. The undefeated, unscored-on Syracuse eleven will undoubtedly win, but Wesleyan can be counted on to do itself justice. In the other battle, Ohio university meets Marietta at Athens and may take a beating.

Call Out Floor Squad.

ATHENS, O., Nov. 3.—A call for baseball candidates for the Ohio University team has been issued by Coach B. T. Grover. Suits will be given out and a short practice session will be held. Practice will be held daily this week. Varsity men from last year include Captain Wright, Sayres, Muir, Longley, King, Beckwith, Kennard, Wise and Eisenbrey. Several promising players from the freshman squad of last year will report.

Laughlin 1 vs Hall China.

Two Industrial Duckpin records were broken and third endangered when Taylor, Smith and Taylor bowlers cleaned up last night on the American Express in a three-game series at the Liberty alleys.

Canne, of the T. S. T. five, in the second game shot a 188 and topped Art Smith's 166 by 22 pins. Smith was high during the first week of the pin competition.

In the other two games Canne rolled 126 and 141, respectively, and, as a result, compiled a 455 total for the series which considerably shades the 424 marks rolled by Oliver and Ashbaugh last week.

The Chesterites lacked 20 pins of reaching the 1818 high series team total rolled last week by the Smith News.

As a result of their triple victory the T. S. T. outfit moves into second place in the league standing today, ousting K. T. K.

Aerial Bombardment Sinks Navy on Grid

MUSICIAN ALSO FOOTBALL STAR

Elder's home is in Iowa, but he played at Westminster college at Fulton, Mo., in the Missouri valley conference, starring as a tackle in 1920. His great bulk—he will scale more than 200—combined with natural ability, made enemy ground gaining through his side of the line a precarious pastime.

And, too, he could almost pose as a double for Babe Ruth, both in size and facial features.

Lehigh to Play Out Schedule; is Wish Of Former Quarter

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 3.—Following the wishes of Charles Prior, former quarterback for the Lehigh university football eleven, who died last Sunday from injuries received in the game with West Virginia Wesleyan fifteen days ago, the athletic varsity council has decided to play the remaining football games on its schedule this season.

Last Night's Fights

At Cuolmbus—Shifty Dando, Dayton lightweight, defeated Bud Christiano, 12 rounds. Jackie Meliman, 132, defeated Vic Ross, Cincinnati, 132, 8 rounds. Lou Bloom, Columbus bantamweight, drew at end of 8 rounds with Cooper Pence, Cincinnati. Ray Meyers outpointed Jimmie O'Hara, lightweights, 4 rounds.

New York — Maxey Rosenbloom, New York, knocked out Joe Silvani, New York, ninth round.

Highs, by Beating East Palestine Saturday Can Bring Back County Championship to Ceramic City; Brown and White Record Shows Early Season 6-6 Tie With North County Outfit.

If East Liverpool high school gridders and football mathematics run true to form next Saturday at East Palestine, it will make no difference, so far as the Ceramic City eleven's championship hopes are concerned, if there is no game played with Leetonia this year.

A victory for the Boone outfit Saturday over the Brown and White will clinch the championship.

Here's the reason: Early in the season East Palestine defeated Columbiana, which this year had little chance to figure in the title running, and only a short time later played a 6-6 tie with Leetonia. Salem walloped the East Palestine outfit two weeks ago and Saturday Boone's gridders won decisively from Salem. This "arithmetic," in itself, would practically insure the return of the championship to East Liverpool, but the Ceramic City representatives can make it more emphatic by winning from East Palestine on the coming Saturday.

Efforts were made by Coach Boone and Leetonia school athletic directors to schedule the annual meeting between the two schools, but proposed dates on one schedule conflicted with dates on the other and nothing definite has been done yet with the season now headed down the home stretch.

It is understood that a Thanksgiving day date was tentatively discussed but no action one way or another wastaken on this proposal.

Captain Paul English, of the high school squad, until Saturday held a monopoly on haberdashery hung up by the Hub and Dick Bryan as prizes for touchdowns against opposing teams.

A week ago the Hub offered a sweater and Bryan a silk shirt, both of which were copped by English. Saturday, following the Salem tilt, English split with Heddleston on a slicker given by the Hub and a scarf by Bryan.

Over at Providence, R. I., athletic officials Saturday will take the matter of football rules in their own hands for the day when Boston plays Brown. The stop watch method of time will be discarded and the game run on a basis of 40 plays per period. They contend that the 15 minute quarter system is of no benefit save to the team that scores first and can use up time by legitimate delays in order to minimize scoring chances by opponents.

Only one eastern eleven, Syracuse, retains an uncrossed goal line following Saturday's engagements. Cornell permitted 14 Columbia points, while Bucknell and New York went down before Holy Cross and Fordham, respectively. Ten eastern football elevens remain unbeaten. Penn, Army and Navy are now numbered among the has-beens.

Q. Do men or women think more quickly when driving an automobile and an emergency arises? C. S.

A. According to tests recently made by Dr. F. A. Moss of George Washington University and H. H. Allen of the United States Bureau of Standards in which 25 men and 10 women were put through a series of tests it was found that the average reaction time of the women was 0.56 seconds and that of the men 0.59 seconds, and the average variability of the women 0.17 seconds and that of the men 0.22 seconds.

Q. What American birds can be kept in cages? Y. McK.

A. The Biological Survey says that no native birds are allowed to be kept in captivity ,although imported species are allowed to be confined in aviaries.

Q. How many flights has the Los Angeles made? A. M.

A. It has made about 30 flights with its American crew.

Q. Does concrete harden as it ages? R. M.

A. The Portland Cement association says that concrete hardens with age, particularly within the first three years.

Q. In what states are Christmas trees grown? H. E.

Q. How many dentists belong to the American Dental association? McK. B. R.

A. The association is made up of a group of nearly 40,000 dentists.

Q. What will keep cider sweet? J. D.

A. Apple cider may be kept from becoming hard by adding one-tenth of one precent of benzoate of soda. If the cider is to be sold, the benzote of soda content must be declared upon the label.

70,000 MAY SEE STATE-ILLINOIS

Clash Will be Grange's Last in Big Ten Conference.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 3. — A throng that seems certain to reach 70,000 and may even eclipse the assemblage which witnessed the dedication of the stadium three years ago, already appears assured for the Ohio State-Illinois football conflict here November 21.

While they are confident of an eventful sell-out for the game, Ohio State athletic officials today were mystified by reports reaching them from various parts of the middle west that no more tickets were available.

The ticket sale to date, H. D. Taylor, dispenser of ducats, explained, is somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000. Considering that the number of permanent seats in the stadium is 64,000, and the emergency capacity much greater than that, it is a simple matter of arithmetic to see how much room is left.

Interest in the game with Illinois is heightened since it is the annual homecoming affray, by the fact that it will mark the final appearance of "Red" Grange as a player in Western Conference football, and, naturally, as a result of Ohio State's improved showing this year.

If the Illinois game throng should reach 70,000 it would be one of the three greatest crowds in Big Ten history to date. Ohio State also entertained both the other crowds. The attendance at the dedication game in 1922 was 73,000, while that at the homecoming melee with Michigan last fall was about 69,000.

MOUNTS DISPLAY REAL OFFENSE

ALLIANCE, Nov. 3.—The two things in connection with Mount's 32 to 0 victory over Case last Saturday most pleasing to Coach Jack Thorpe were that for the first time this season his proteges showed real offensive power and that the team came out of the contest with no injuries to handicap them for this week's program. The high lights of the game were the open field running of Mills and Labor, while the punting and bucking of Fullback "Army" Armstrong were up to his usual high standard, and the quarterback, Wilcoxen, showed increased efficiency in running back punts. Captain Ball and Klippert, tackles, maintained their reputation of being two of the best defensive men in Mount's history, and Center Burkle was everywhere during the game, upsetting the plays of the opponents.

Miami comes to Mount Union Saturday as guest for the annual homecoming. Coach Thorpe realizes that the visitors are a formidable foe with a perfect record in the Ohio Conference until Denison took their measure at Dayton last week. The scouts report that they have an unusually fast set of backs and ends. With the return of McElroy to the Mount lineup, the Mount mentor will be able to send his full strength against the down staters, and a great game is assured the old grads and former students.

Most men tell their wives everything even if they don't know it.—Defiance Crescent News.

MOORE'S ELECTION IN JERSEY MAY CAUSE RING CODE CHANGES

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—According to the official megaphone man of the Harry Wills menage, much that is momentous will hang upon the manner in which the political cat jumps in the New Jersey elections today. Probably consequences, it is said, of a return to power by the so-called "old guard" include a proposed change in the state boxing code and an attempt to bid in the Dempsey-Wills match by negotiation with that South Bend, Ind., syndicate, of which one hears much but sees little.

All that the boys need, it seems, is the election of A. Harry Moore as governor of the state. They can then begin firing without waiting to see the whites of anyone's eyes and, at the first volley, the present boxing law in Jersey is supposed to take one full on the chin.

While they are sweeping up the debris, an amendment to the law will be made, it is said, changing state control of boxing from a one-man proposition to the commission form of government. Then the Dempsey-Wills negotiations are supposed to follow.

Credence might be given the report for the reason that Moore is Frank Hague's candidate and Frank was the gentleman whose political connections made the Dempsey-Carpentier business possible. The only money lost by anyone that day was lost by those who paid scalpers $200 for tickets, entitling holders to peep through the armpit of the enthusiast immediately in front.

Their idea, if any, that the South Bend parties can be bought out means that Jersey has taken certain reports very seriously. These were to the effect that middle western money to swing the deal has turned up missing and that the would-be promoters wish to "peddle" their proposition elsewhere.

This, if true, would give Jersey its chance, provided Dempsey is willing to be "sold" along with South Bend's interest in the proceedings. That is a doubtful point. The champion, in fact, probably would insist upon disposing of his own immediate future as he saw fit, with special reference to guarantees and what not.

Jack's guarantee could not be in keeping with his self-valuation, if only for the fact that the Jersey law permits the customers to be harpooned for no more than $25 for the best tickets. But perhaps the alleged amendment will carry a "rider" to take care of that embarrassing provision. They catch the buck early in Jersey, you know. Also the doe, or dough, just as you see it.

Northwich, England. — Shifting houses bodily several miles and towns some yards along the level has often been done, but raising a whole town five feet is something new.

This is claimed to have been accomplished by the surveyor of this town in just under three years.

The entire business portion of Northwich, including ten streets, three banks, the county court and 200 stores and houses, have been raised to counteract the effect of subsidence caused by the brine pumping which proceeds continually in the salt mines under the town.

There has been no stoppage of business and only eight buildings have had to be demolished because they could not be safely lifted.

In raising operations, parts of the lower brickwork were removed and small hydraulic jacks inserted. Chemists' stores were lifted so carefully that not one bottle was disturbed.

The town bridge was raised five feet at each end to bring it up to the new level of the town.

More Oranges, Fewer Grapefruit, Tangerines

Washington.—A preliminary estimate of the orange crop in Florida by the United States Department of Agriculture indicates 10,900,000 boxes, excluding tangerines, for 1925-26, or about 600,000 boxes more than the revised estimate of the crop last year.

Tangerine production is placed at 600,000 boxes, or 100,000 less than last year, and grapefruit, 7,500,000 boxes, or 700,000 less than last year.

The total preliminary estimate for citrus fruits is 19,000,000 boxes, compared with a revised estimate of 19,200,000 boxes last year. These estimates are of the commercial car lot and express movement, and exclude the usual loss from drops.

Decreased production of grapefruit is attributed to light and spotted setting of fruit, and to the fact that there will be more over-sized fruit than usual. Unless market conditions are such that the large sizes can be shipped and sold, they will either move by truck or be lost from dropping, the department says.

Colored Light System to Warn French Solons

Paris.—Members of the French chamber of deputies, when they reassemble after the vacation, will find installed a useful innovation. Twenty-two tape-machines are being placed in different parts of the building, each equipped with red, blue, green and yellow lights for conveying messages to deputies and journalists. Thus it will be possible for all to know what is taking place at any time.

In the French chamber, no means has hitherto been provided whereby a deputy or minister might know, without going to see, what was transpiring in the tribune. Consequently "surprise votes" often have been tallied.

Minorities, taking advantage of this lack, have sometimes been able to muster beforehand and carry the day. Many queer situations have developed. On one occasion a vote of confidence in the government, proposed by an unwary minister who had failed to note the absence of most of his supporters resulted in a vote of no confidence.

This sort of thing cannot occur under the new arrangement. A red light will indicate a vote, so that deputies may hurry back to their places.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

What would you do if you wanted to get a passport, or stop your shoes from squeaking, or build a chicken-coop, or found a hospital, or preserve persimmons, or become a diplomat—and you didn't know how? Suppose you wanted to know why the sun looks large at sunset, or the cost of living in South America, or the total exports of the United States last year, or the income of the Rockefeller Foundation, or who wrote "Sliver Threads Among the Gold?" Our Washington Information Bureau has answered every one of these questions and many other and more difficult ones. It maintains a big staff of experts and correspondents whose business it is merely to answer questions—your questions. This service is free. Send in your question together with a two cent stamp to cover the return postage. Address The East Liverpool Review & Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q. Do men or women think more quickly when driving an automobile and an emergency arises? C. S.

A. According to tests recently made by Dr. F. A. Moss of George Washington University and H. H. Allen of the United States Bureau of Standards in which 25 men and 10 women were put through a series of tests it was found that the average reaction time of the women was 0.56 seconds and that of the men 0.59 seconds, and the average variability of the women 0.17 seconds and that of the men 0.22 seconds.

Q. What American birds can be kept in cages? Y. McK.

Q. Will a tank float better filled with air or if it contains a vacuum?

Q. Does concrete harden as it ages? R. M.

A. The Portland Cement association says that concrete hardens with age, particularly within the first three years.

Q. In what states are Christmas trees grown? H. E.

A. The association is made up of a group of nearly 40,000 dentists.

Q. Is it warmer to wear two rather thin undergarments in the winter or one thick one? R. T.

A. Two thin garments are warmer than one thick one because the air between them is a poor conductor of heat.

Q. When were the clipper ships Dreadnaught, Red Jacket, and Comet built? H. A. M.
